SUIT AGAINST SALT LAKE CITY

E. H. Airis Wants the Municipality Enjoined

FROM DIVERTING WATERS

Of Parley's Creek, Thus Preventing Same From Flowing Through The Crismon Canal.

E. H. Airis today filed suit in the district court against Salt Lake City for an injunction to prevent defendant from diverting the surplus waters of Parley's creek and thus prevent the same from flowing through the Crismon ditch and thence to plaintiff's land. Plaintiff alleges that he is entitled by prior appropriation to said said surplus waters and that defendant last year constructed ditches about six miles further up the canyon than the Crismon ditch and is diverting the said waters to which plaintiff is entitled.

It is alleged that the water so diverted is not used by the city for any beneficial purpose but is allowed to go to waste. By reason of such diversion plaintiff alleges that his farm has been damaged in the sum of $500, for which amount he asks judgment. He also asks that the city be enjoined from continuing to divert the water.

VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFFS.

Harris & Co. Get a Judgment Against The Oregon Short Line

Harris & Co., of South Omaha, won their case against the Oregon Short Line in the federal court last evening after the jury had been out for six hours. This action was brought against the railroad company to recover the value of several carloads of cattle. Upon the verdict of the jury hang the issue in two other cases, making in all a judgment for $11,369.60 in favor of plaintiff. The case is somewhat complicated and involved Bradshaw Brothers, agents for Harris & Co., who have a case pending in the federal court against James Chipman, the American Falls banker, who is alleged to have held out $15,000 of the Harris money to wipe off an indebtedness incurred by the Bradshaws.

The case against the Short Line decided last evening involved a transaction in cattle. In September, 1899, Bradshaw Brothers loaded some cattle at Milford and Lund which were consigned to plaintiffs at South Omaha. The cattle were turned over to the Rio Grande at Provo but some of them were so weak that it was found necessary to take them to Lehi and turn them out in the Bradshaw pastures in order that they might recuperate. The Rio Grande agent was notified of their arrival by telephone and he gave a receipt for the bill of loading, but not for the cattle. That is said to be the last known of the cattle.

The court held that when the cattle were turned over to Bradshaw Brothers they were still in the charge of the Oregon Short Line, although the defendant contended that the Bradshaws were agents for Harris & Co. The jury found that the Short Line was responsible for the shipment until it had duly received a receipt for the cattel from the Rio Grande, which defendant was unable to produce.

HINES AFTER THEM.

Waterworks Superintendent Will Pursue Violators of Regulations.

Supt. Frank L. Hines of the waterworks department, will commence a crusade tomorrow against persons who turn on their water after the department has turned it off for delinquent water taxes or failure to comply with the regulations of the department. The ordinance provides that persons found guilty of turning on the water under such circumstances shall be fined $50.

Last year several persons were fined for such offenses and it is reported that quite a number have been guilty of the offense this year. They have the idea, no doubt, that after the water is turned off for delinquent water taxes they can turn it on agin at their own expense and defeat the purpose of the ordinance. Investigations will be made tomorrow by the department and some arrests will likely follow.

CITIZENS COMPLAIN.

Protest Against Lack of Water in Salt Lake & Jordan Canal.

Land and Water Commissioner MacKnight has received a number of complaints because of lack of irrigating water in the Salt Lake and Jordan canal. The water will be turned in again today and a watchman will be placed at that point to prevent further trouble from washouts.

FRANCIS TIERNAN DEAD.

Well Known Railroad Promoter Passes Away in New York.

J. G. Jacobs, general manager of the Salt Lake & Mercur railroad, this morning received a dispatch announcing the death in New York of his brother-in-law, Francis Tiernan.

This news will be a shock to many residents in this city, who knew Mr. Tiernan when he resided in Salt Lake during the latter part of the '80's. Mr. Tiernan was known all over the country as a successful railroad promoter, having in his time built a portion of what is now known as the Big Four system, a line from Fort Scott, Kas., to Wichita, now a part of the Missouri Pacific system, and a line out of St. Louis known as the St. Louis, Kansas City & Colorado.

During his residence in Utah he spent considerable money on surveys for a line from Salt Lake to Los Angeles and secured options on portions of the vast coal and iron fields of Iron county. He also bought about 2,000 acres of coal lands in that district and organized the Southwestern Coal company.

No particulars of his death are forthcoming at this time, but as Mr. Tiernan was a very large man it is thought that apoplexy was the cause.

At a meeting of the hodcarriers and other unions with contractors last night held in the Trades Union hall, a plan was adopted which was accepted by all parties to the strike. It was agreed that the men would go back to work under the same conditions as they had been working before the strike, but that wages should be raised on the 1st of August next, from which time the hodcarriers will receive $2.40 and $2.75 per day. John Murray and William Stewart were causing a disturbance on Twenty-fifth street last night. The police were called to the scene and placed the men under arrest. On the way to the station Murray attempted to draw Officer Silvay's revolver from his pocket when the weapon was discharged. Aside from burning and tearing the officer's trousers no damage was done. The men were ugly and resisted the effort to take them in with great energy, and in order to get them to the station the police had to use their clubs freely.

Officer Herricks had an encounter with a hobo who was threatening to shoot everybody in general and policemen in particular. The fellow struck the officer a heavy blow in the mouth, when the latter reciprocated with his club, and the tough received a deep gash on his head, and was subsequently landed safely behind the bars.

Casey Hamilton was also hunting for someone to shoot on Twenty-fifth street when he ran into the arms of the police and was escorted to the cooler. He will be charged with disturbing the peace.
