SANPETE MATTERS.

THE ELECTION—SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS—A HINT ABOUT BARNYARD FIRES, ETC., ETC.

Philip Hurst, Esq., writing from Fairview, Sanpete County, on the 8th of August, gives some interesting facts regarding the condition of things in that southern "granary of the mountains." He says:

"We are having general good health; crops look well but are late and unless the good weather holds out well in the fall some of our latest grain on wet ground may not mature. Grass on the range and in the meadows is above the average."

We had a very quiet election, polling 157 votes for the People's Ticket out of a possible 225. Many of the registered voters were away from home at work in the saw mills.

Our mercantile co-op. has just paid a dividend of 12 per cent in merchandise and carried 13 per cent, to the capital stock for the last six months. This company was organized in June, 1869, and the books show it has paid in 15 years 1058 per cent in dividends, while the stock is worth $1.25 to the dollar.

Our sheep co-op., organized in 1871, has paid in wool or carried to the capital stock an average of 25% for every year's business, the last one being 7 1/2% in wool and 25% stock. This was not cash, but the same kind of dollar as the one invested. Both companies have paid taxes and tithes on their business, and never have had occasion to call for an assessment.

I notice occasionally in your paper reports of fires destroying hay and grain stacks. If there is plenty of water and help at hand, considerable can be saved from what may look a total loss. After a fire has gone over the surface of a stack the ashes to some extent smolder the fire. We have found that plenty of water will cool the outside so that work can commence, whereupon the top can be removed; then cut down with a hay knife, carrying away and extinguishing the fire on the outside. We have just tried the above plan and saved one quarter of the haystack, the part in the middle, in tolerable good condition, while another quarter was carried off damaged with water and smoke, but not so bad but cows coming home from the range would eat it. Thinking the above plan may be of advantage to others, I have reported our success.

FOUND DEAD.

DR. MCILHENNY EXPIRES IN HIS OFFICE.

An inquest was held yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, at the office of Dr. S. S. McIlhenney, in Commerce Block, on the corner west of Walker Brothers', upon the body of that unfortunate gentleman, who had been found dead there Saturday evening between five and six o'clock. He had been seen about 5 p. m. passing along Second South Street towards his office, and was heard to stumble on the stairs as he went up, but continued on his way and no unusual sound was heard afterwards.

About an hour later a newspaper carrier entered the office and saw the Doctor lying on the floor in a small room adjoining his office. He informed Mr. Will Hampton, and the latter told the janitor, Mr. Randall; the two then went in together and discovered that the Doctor was dead.

At the inquest held before Coroner Taylor and a jury composed of Drs. Joseph S. Richards and A. S. Bower and John Tupper, the witnesses examined were Mr. Bechtol, barkeeper at the era House clubroom; W. J. Randall, janitor of the Commerce Block; Dr. Hamilton and Drs. Richards and Bowers.

Mr. Bechtol stated that the deceased had been in the habit of taking his meals at the Opera House lunch-room, for two or three weeks, and took two or three glasses of beer with his lunch, generally. Witness saw him last about 5 o'clock, or half past five, Saturday evening; he ate lunch at that time, taking sandwiches and beer. Witness noticed his unusual appearance, as he seemed much depressed. Last Friday he asked witness for some whiskey, but the latter had been requested by a friend of the Doctor not to give him any, and so answered that he thought beer would answer his wants. The Doctor had been moody and depressed for a few weeks; he told witness something about his being unfortunate, that a woman had died in his office, but this was found afterward to be untrue.

Mr. Randall, the janitor, said Dr. McIlhenney had rented in the Block for about three weeks; he had been taking more liquor at times than he ought. At half past 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon the Dr. was asleep in his room, and witness returning about 6:45 p. m., had his attention drawn by Mr. W. Hampton to his condition. He was lying on his right side on the floor in a cramped position, with his knees drawn up. Mr. Leonard telephoned for Drs. Richards and Dart.

Dr. Hamilton testified that the deceased was addicted to drinking, and had been on a spree for two or three weeks. He would take large quantities of chloral and morphine as a so-called to rid himself of the effects of liquor. He had been seen on the street and coming up the stairs about an hour and a half previous to witness' coming. His death was caused by general prostration from large doses of narcotics, producing paralysis of the heart and brain. He had no relations here, his father lived in Dayton, Ohio. Witness had been instructed by telegram from him, in answer to another announcing his son's decease, to have him buried here.

Drs. Richards and Bower stated that the father of the deceased had written to Dr. Hamilton, instructing him to take charge of his son's effects. The former were appointed to take an inventory of the same. The verdict rendered was that the deceased came to his death in his rooms in Commerce Block, Second South Street, Salt Lake City, about 6 p. m., August 9, 1884, from the effects of paralysis of the nerve centres. The body was packed in ice and delivered to Sexton Taylor, and buried in Mt. Olivet Cemetery today.

Dr. McIlhenney is said to have been a kind hearted, affable man and skillful in his profession. He was a graduate of an Ohio medical college, and practised in Montana several years before coming to Utah. He had had trouble in his domestic affairs, and was separated from his wife some months ago.

Admiral Lespes therefore, on Aug. 5, occupied the port of Kelung and coal mines in the vicinity.
