NEWS OF THE DAY.

Bands of armed men are assembled in Lower California, and brigandage or revolution is feared.

A stay of proceedings has been granted in the case of Dolan, sentenced to be hanged to-day for the murder of a woman.

The citizens of San Diego, Cal., are forming a volunteer corps to protect themselves from Mexican bandits.

The National Transportation Convention was in session in Chicago, yesterday.

A nugget of Black Hills gold weighing twenty-seven and one-fifth dollars was on exhibition at Cheyenne yesterday.

Mr. S. B. Axtell has been confirmed by the U. S. Senate governor of New Mexico.

The sale of the marine hospital at San Francisco has been postponed.

Thirty thousand dollars damage by fire at Washok.

Mr. Smith, late Commissioner of Indian Affairs, has been elected President of the Howard University.

English police are about going to France for the anticipated murderous crew of the British ship Lennie.

Consul Seward is appointed to S. Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to China. Mr. James Birney is appointed U. S. Minister to the Netherlands.

Three murderers were hanged at New York this morning for slaying details of their execution see this afternoon's telegrams.

A resolution was introduced in the U. S. Senate to-day, which will probably authoritatively determine the question, raised by the death of Vice President Wilson, as to the method of determining who is President pro tempore of the U. S. Senate, in case of the death of the Vice President of the U. S.

Mrs. Gorham, wife of the Secretary of the U. S. Senate, is dead.

In a boat race, two miles for two thousand dollars in gold, between American and Peruvian crews in the harbor of Callao, Peru, the latter were victorious.

Twenty persons killed and an indefinite number wounded in an election riot in Peru.

THOSE WHO HIRE SHOULD PAY.

U. S. MARSHAL MAXWELL, in his explanation, as pertaining to the report of the Bear Grant Jury, states that his allowances made as secretary of the committee were not sufficient for his official expenditures. This is likely true enough, and should be rectified. The Marshal is the employee of the United States, the government of the United States employed him, and it is right that those who employ should pay the wages or salaries and necessary expenses of those whom they employ. In this view it would be entirely proper for Congress to make a legitimate appropriation to help the Marshal out of his difficulties, while at the same time upon means rightly belonging to others. When the Territory was allowed to have a marshal, the Territory paid him the wages and to defray his necessary expenses, and there was no other about it. Now that the Territory is not allowed to have any marshal, of course it has none to pay. The Marshal belongs to the federal Union, was appointed and employed by the federal Government, and of course he rightfully looks to the federal Government to help him out of his difficulties. If he were the Territory's marshal, there is no doubt that the Territory would stand by him and see that he was not helplessly overwhelmed by the weight of financial difficulty in the discharge of his official duties.

THE DOUGHTY METHODIST BISHOP TROUNCED.

BISHOP GIL. HAYES is catching it from all quarters for his speech before those Boston Methodists, and his enthusiastic domination of Grant for a third term. The Bishop, it appears, being a rabid abolitionist, had become warm and excited over Southern affairs, and in the course of his speech was impelled to declare that there was to be a tremendous political battle this year, that the ministers of Boston were in the field of battle, and that the great question was, "Shall the Puritan or the Cavalier rule? Shall Boston or Charleston be the centre?" He then indicated Grant as the chosen Cromwell to lead the Puritan hosts to victory over the Southern Cavaliers, exclaiming, in stirring tones, "I believe that President Grant is the only man who could conquer the enemies of American freedom. If we throw him overboard we shall regret it," and he continued, "herewith, in the name of the American people and true Christianity, nominate Ulysses S. Grant, our present worthy President and defender, to a third term in the office of President of the United States."

In passing, we might ask who authorized this doctory Bishop to speak "in the name of the American people and true Christianity?" So far as the Methodist's own sect, the Methodists are concerned, it appears that they almost universally repudiate his hasty action, and it is presumable that he considers that the representatives of "true Christianity" are found among them, if among the members of any religious body.

The Methodist minister of New York, for instance, are reported as asserting that Bishop Hayes's speech, and the action of those who approved of it, was wholly unauthoritative, illegitimate, and shocking. And, the Bishop himself as eccentric, erratic, impulsive, outspoken, blurt, indiscreet, unwise, rash, unduly, extra, apt to fly off at a tangent, an extremist, a regular fire-breather for the fray, fond of a fight, always getting the church into hot water, that he went crazy on the slavery question before the war, and has never got over it since. One reverend brother "felt like kicking him." All which is highly amusing to spectators outside the Methodist pale.

the place of execution, but were cleared by the police. The report, as deputy sheriffs, special deputies, sheriffs, politicians and others, mixed up in inextricable confusion, and the pushing and shoving were resolute. When it was found that admission to the scaffold was to be gained only through a narrow gateway in the fence that ran across that part of the yard in which the gallows was erected, and the police in vain struggled to prevent a riot, a violent rush was made for the gate, and all those persons who had the right of entrance were compelled to fight every inch of their way or to remain outside. Order was restored at last, the police succeeded in forming a line, and the eight convicts were enabled to get into the inner yard contented themselves with climbing upon the coal bin outside the fence, and every spot of ground from which a glimpse of the gallows could be had. Quiet was then maintained until the moment of the execution. After the arrival of Sheriff Connor at the prison there was much delay. The men were plucked in their cells, and at half past nine were led out to the gallows. Weston first, followed by Thompson, each supported by a Catholic priest. Ellis, who brought up the rear, was attended by four clergymen of different denominations. At 10:25 o'clock, Sheriff Connor gave the signal, and the weights were let go and the bodies of the three murderers were lifted into the air. The most horrible scene then occurred. Weston died easily, no motion of his frame being perceptible except a brief shudder and an occasional contraction of his legs. Thompson, suffering more, his body shivered from head to foot, his breast heaved and he raised his arms three several times, working his fingers convulsively, but the mode of Ellis' death was the cruellest of all. At the moment after the noose had been adjusted he suddenly turned his head and disarranged a portion of the knot, and before it could be readjusted the sign was given and the weight fell. The knot slipped and became fixed beneath his chin, he began to writhe terribly, and placing his feet against the board at the side of the scaffold attempted to raise himself and relieve the strain upon his neck. He then swung around and convulsively seized Thompson, who was hanging next to him, and again endeavored to raise himself. He even succeeded in twice clasping his legs around Thompson's waist, and by thus easing his neck he was enabled to breathe more freely, and to prolong his agony. He seized the rope just above the knot, his arms having been fastened too loosely, and as he did so his handkerchief, which was in his hand, fell over his shoulder and he was heard to cry aloud—"Save me," and his breath was plainly discernible as it issued beneath the cap that covered his face. Strong men turned away pale and trembling from the sickening spectacle, and there were murmurs of "Take him down" and "Cut the rope," but fortunately there was no need of a double execution, for in his agony he broke the knot, and the noose suddenly closed around his windpipe and he was strangled to death.

The Star and Herald, of Panama, says that the twelve-oared cutter, the Harbor of Callao, between the crews of the U. S. steamer Richmond and a Peruvian man-of-war, was won by the Peruvians, by two hundred yards. The distance was two miles and a purse of $5,000 in gold. The Americans used a regulation boat belonging to the Richmond, while the Peruvians pulled a boat built for lighters, and seven hundred pounds lighter.

In Huancayo, Peru, during the voting for President, a riot took place, during which twenty persons were killed outright, and an undetermined number wounded.

Correspondence.

Editor, Deseret News:

We are having success on our mission, and feel well in the good work. I have with me at present Elders Junius F. Wells, Mr. W. P. Wells, Samuel Lehigh, David P. Lehigh, John C. Duncan and John Parry. They all spoke last Sabbath in the United States, 1810 Branch, and several of them for the first time in public, to an appreciative audience.

Elder Wells leaves here to-day for Illinois, to visit his relatives for a little season and then return to Iowa, where he has been laboring with success in conjunction with Elders Joseph G. Young and Jos.

F. Simmons. John Parry and John C. Duncan go to Pittsburg, and will labor at opportunity offers in Pennsylvania.

Elders Samuel Lehigh and David Bullock will labor in the mining regions of Missouri and Kansas.

Matthew W. Pratt and myself will labor in St. Louis and vicinity, where we have all the calls we can fill at present. There never was a time in my experience when the spirit of inquiry was more manifest than now, among the old "Mormons."

But there are thousands who have named the name of Christ who have entangled themselves with the world and will perish with having Babylon, whose cup of iniquity is nearly full.

To me the whippings of the Spirit are the Lord wants Elders in the field, and he will save the souls, and are willing to make sacrifice to accomplish this end. Great will be their reward when the Lord makes up his jewels.

The President of the St. Louis branch (Joseph Stary) and those who labor with him are doing all they can to keep the Saints together, and I think they have done well to keep the faith, some of them being here for upwards of twenty years.

We have our headquarters in St. Louis, at Brother's A. J. Kenshaw, 2008 North 14th Street, where the Elders have had for years a hearty welcome and pleasant home. President Stary, Andrew Burman and others are here, and in return feel blessed in so doing.

The Elders laboring with me are all well and willing to labor at all the best of their abilities in the fields assigned them.

Remember me kindly to the brethren in the office and all the inquiring friends, in which the brethren join, and believe me as ever your fellow-laborer in the cause of truth.

D. M. STUART.

Well Received.—Doctrine Essential to Reason.

CANTON, Fulton Co., Ill., December 9th, 1875.

Editor Deseret News:

The work in this vicinity is progressing, and I have some hope of being able, with the blessing of God, to organize a branch here. I am uniformly well received, and well treated, the only opposition I have met is from the doctrine of plural marriage, but am often surprised at the interest taken in listening to my discourses of it.

I am of the opinion that, particularly those of official thieves and annually, burden the people very heavily, and that the doctrine of the support of infidel creeds and the doctrines of spiritualism, and so blind have mankind become and so benumbed are their faculties that the power of God alone can convert them to repentance.

THE WORK IN THIS VICINITY IS PROGRESSING, AND I HAVE SOME HOPE OF BEING ABLE, WITH THE BLESSING OF GOD, TO ORGANIZE A BRANCH HERE.
