

GOVERNOR CUTLER,
TO POSTMASTERS

Gave an Epitome of the History
Of the Service
Here.

MR. THOMAS COMPLIMENTED.

Mr. Clove Strongly Urged More Free
Delivery Routes Throughout Utah.

At yesterday afternoon's session of the postmaster's convention, Gov. Cutler, in delivering his address of welcome, gave an epitome of the history of the postoffice service, and spoke highly of the courtesy and general efficiency of the employees of the department. The governor also praised Postmaster Thomas, and said the attacks upon him constituted the highest compliment which could be paid to him. He desired to express the high regard he held for the postoffice service, and to counteract the reports of his opponents that might be circulated out of the city.

In the absence of Postmaster Odell of Logan, Postmaster Clove of Provo made the response, referring to the mail service as the backbone of the state, and that the civil service rules to the detriment of the postoffice. Through postoffice service is not far distant. Through postoffice service is not far distant. Through postoffice service is not far distant.

Mr. Clove regretted this could not be said of the postmasters themselves. The present convention is in itself a political meeting, but for the no wise a political meeting. On the discussion of Charles H. Roberts of Birmingham canyon the governor was thanked for his address of Pleasant Grove. James D. Thomas of Pleasant Grove read a number of letters of regret from postmasters unable to be present.

Postmaster Clove, in the following discussion, strongly urged more free delivery routes through Utah, and said in part:

MR. CLOVE'S SPEECH.

"There are many small towns in Utah now which have the regular postal service without free delivery. That should be placed on rural routes. Of course, the postmasters, such as small places. But if you will go among the people who will be benefited, I believe you will experience no difficulty in getting enough subscribers to get a new route. The small town is not to be considered—it is the greatest good to the greatest number. Of course, rural free delivery delivered at the doors of the patrons is better than having to go to the postoffice after their mail. In many respects the farmer and residents of small towns receive better service than the people in the larger towns. Take Provo, for instance. The Salt Lake papers get there too late for the early morning mail delivery, and do not reach the subscribers until in the afternoon. The carriers can not be held that late. But the rural carriers are held until the latest important mails are received. Thus the farmer several miles out of Provo will receive the Salt Lake morning papers in the morning, several hours before those who live in the city. The people who receive free city distribution, the people should know about this. They are willing to sign petitions for rural routes if they are assured of the fact that they know that benefits will be derived, and they will be eager to get the free delivery route. And once they get it, there will be no taking it away. Utah is less advanced than any other state in this line, I believe, and it is simply through the tardiness of the postmasters in working up agitation for the routes."

"I was talking with Inspector Steele of the postoffice department at Washington—a Utah boy himself—some time ago, and he said he was working on country delivery schemes in several localities in Colorado. I believe the time is not very far distant when every county will have its own service, the people in the county being served from the common point chosen by the government."

DISCUSSION FOLLOWED.

The discussion which followed brought out a unanimous sentiment favoring the free delivery system and of the good roads development. Postmaster William Glasmann of Ogden was much interested in making Ogden the center of a route to include Huntsville, abolishing the postoffice at that point. Mr. Glasmann invited the convention to attend the theater at Ogden in the evening, at his expense, and the convention was minded to accept. But when it was understood that the delegates would have to pay their own railroad fares, they concluded to remain in Salt Lake. As there was no banquet the convention attended the Orpheum theater in the evening, as the guests of Postmaster Thomas. The following postmasters were present at yesterday's session:

BRYAN AND HEARST ARE ENDORSED

By Massachusetts Democratic Convention But Not Without Dissension.

OLD LEADERS POWERLESS.

John B. Moran Dominated Everything —Entire Ticket Named by Acclamation.

Boston, Oct. 4.—A new era for the Massachusetts Democracy was inaugurated today by the state convention of that party, when after a turbulent struggle over endorsing William Jennings Bryan and William R. Hearst, John B. Moran, district attorney for Suffolk county, who was already the nominee of the Prohibition party and the Independence league, was nominated for governor by acclamation. Save in one possible particular, Moran dominated the convention completely. The oldtime leaders, Josiah Quincy, Congressman John A. Sullivan, Congressman William S. McNary, and the element represented by such Democrats as former Gov. William L. Douglas and Henry M. Whitney, were utterly powerless.

George Fred Williams made a speech nominating John Brown Moran for governor. Mr. Moran is the present district attorney of this (Suffolk) county. The nomination was made by acclamation.

The ticket was then completed as follows, all the names by acclamation: Lieutenant Governor—E. Gerry Brown.

Attorney General—John W. Cummings, Fall River.

Auditor—T. L. Higen, Springfield.

Secretary of State—Charles C. Palmer, Hyannis.

Treasurer—George M. Harrington, Lowell.

Two of the candidates beside Mr. Moran had been nominated by the Independence league, Brown for lieutenant governor and Higen for auditor. The entire ticket was nominated by acclamation.

The platform adopted was prolific in demands for reform, and centered largely in those changes in the law which have been strongly favored by Moran during his service as district attorney and in declaration of principles.

The endorsement of Hearst's Democracy and of his leadership in New York was the first rock on which the convention was split.

The Bryan paragraph was greeted with cheers and handclapping and a general demonstration which lasted more than a minute, but when the first words of the Hearst tribute were reached there were hisses and cries of "No, No," and "Bryan only."

Then the Hearst supporters, given new vigor by the memory that the Hearst Independence league had endorsed Moran for governor, almost drowned out the Bryan delegates.

The voice vote on the question of adopting the platform as read was a rout rather than a chorus of ayes and noes. The vote was doubted and upon a rising vote being taken the chair declared the resolutions adopted.

Prof. Clark of Williams college, a delegate, protested against the Hearst plank, and after many interruptions succeeded in moving that the resolutions be reconsidered. On the first test of strength over the Hearst plank there was a defeat for the Hearst supporters. A motion to lay the motion to reconsider upon the table was defeated, though by a close margin. On the question of reconsideration there was a vigorous debate. Congressman Sullivan hoped that the convention would "strike from the platform a plank which would never be accepted by the Democrats of Massachusetts as a true expression of their opinion."

The chair declared that the motion to reconsider was lost, and ignored many protesting delegates who doubted the vote.

The convention was disrupted a second time over the endorsement of Mr. Bryan for president. It came after all the nomination had been made, and when many of the delegates had left for their homes. It was a move which seemed to divide the Moran forces themselves. It was started quietly by George Fred Williams when many of the delegates were expecting adjournment. Mr. Williams moved that the convention go on record as favoring the nomination of Mr. Bryan by the national Democracy in 1908.

He characterized Bryan as the greatest Democratic leader within the memory of man. The resolution was bitterly opposed by Cranville S. McFarland, secretary of the Moran campaign committee. In unequivocal language he charged that the Bryan resolution had been presented with "felonious intent." The resolution endorsing Bryan for president was declared carried after a voice vote and the convention was immediately adjourned.

WESTERN MARKET LETTER.

Special Correspondence.

Kansas City Stockyards, Oct. 1, 1906.—The arrival of 75,000 cattle last week, including 20,000 calves, gave buyers a chance to lower prices, and steers closed 20 to 30 cents lower, including stockers and feeders, compared to 10 cents lower, calves about a quarter lower. The run is 22,000 today, market steady. A good many were not satisfied with bids here last week, as it is hard to accept a big decline, and forwarded some cattle to other markets, but it proved disastrous in nearly every case. Many cattle close to what was bid for them here, some at the same price. More country buyers are here today, and a good attendance is expected throughout next week, which is the date of the American Royal Livestock show here. More than 100 carloads of range steers are entered in the various classes for that kind, and these will be sold after being shown, together with many other high grade stock and feeding cattle on the general market. Buyers are familiar with this custom, and many will be here to take advantage of the good assortment to be had, and a good market is anticipated. Colorado shipments have not been heavy lately, nor today, a good many panhandles here. Colorado stockers and feeders sell at 3.00 to 3.30, cows 2.50 to 3.30, killers 2.00 to 2.30, ewes 1.50 to 2.00, light veals 1.50 to 2.00, calves 2.00 to 2.50, light veals 1.50 to 2.00. A load of New Mexico hops topped the market here last Thursday at 4.50, 15 pounds, another load 134 pounds at 4.50.

Sheep receipts have been heavy, and prices are lower here in common with all the other markets. Muttons are off 10 cents, lambs 20 to 40 cents lower, country grades unevenly lower, as compared with a week ago. Run is 10,000 today, market weak to 10 cents lower, best lambs selling at 6.50 to 7.15, wethers 4.50 to 5.25, yearling ewes 4.50 to 5.25, feeding lambs bring 5.50 to 6.50, feeding wethers and yearlings and breeding ewes at 4.50 to 5.50. Utah and Idaho are furnishing most of the receipts. Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado also contribute.

ing, but very few natives included. Receipts at all points show a decrease for September, but run is likely to be heavy everywhere during October.

STEPHEN P. M. TASKER
CROSSES LABRADOR.

Philadelphia, Oct. 5.—Crossed northern Labrador with wife from Hudson Bay, all well. This telegram from Stephen P. M. Tasker, dated Domingo, via Cape Race, N. F., Oct. 4, was the first intimation of the whereabouts of the sender and his young bride since last June when they departed on their honeymoon. The message addressed to the Philadelphia of the Associated Press conveys the intelligence in addition to the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Tasker are safe and well, that they have also performed the almost impossible feat of crossing the wastes of Labrador at Hudson Bay.

Tasker is 31 years old. He is a marine engineer in the United States navy, detailed at Cramp shipyard. He took a six months furlough and with his bride undertook the expedition as a bridal tour.

Starting from this city four months ago, the Taskers went to the Hudson Bay shore of Labrador and there, organizing a pack train with dogs, sledges and provisions, began their journey. After traveling many days they lost their way and their food supply ran short. For assistance they were obliged to kill their sledge dogs. After their last dog had been eaten, they reached a small settlement where they were cared for by the natives. This information was furnished by a messenger who forwarded the above quoted telegram from Domingo.

CIGAR BOXES HIGHER.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—The first effect of trouble in Cuba on commercial interests was disclosed yesterday when every independent cigar manufacturer in the city received a circular notifying him that the price of cedar cigar boxes had been raised 10 cents a hundred. The reason given for the scarcity of lumber and especially of cedar, the great bulk of which is imported from Cuba.
