was a most interesting one, and was lis-tend to by an appreciative audience. "The Value of a Soul" was the subject handled by Elder Penrose, and was trated in an excellent manner. The discussion dealt with the nature and erigin of the soul, the relation of the spirit to the body and a comparison of the spirit with the body. "The spirit of man is eternal while the body is changeable and sub-ject to dissolution. God created all things spiritually first, and each spirit was permitted to occupy one body was permitted to occupy one body created out of the elements of the earth. The spirit is in the likeness of the body ad permeates every part. The eleand permeates every part. The ele-ments that compose the spirit, the intelmants that compose the spirit, the intel-igence it manifests always existed, were never created and cannot be de-stroyed. The organized spirit of man ame from God and is His offspring, while the body is of earthly creation. The duty of the teacher is to culti-vate the soul by drawing out the good that is in the child. No matter how barble be birth how degrading the

In the evening Elder Penrose delivend a discourse before a very large angregation in the Fourth ward meetinghouse, dwelling on the mission and datiny of the Saints, the benefits and pleasures of the performance of duty, the education derived from trial, sor-now and pain, the Providence of God and the agency of man and the final flow of the obedient and faithful. Many splendid improvements are being made, looking to the better equipment of the school for the coming year. It is somewhat astonishing to see what has already been accomplished and what remains to be done in the line of improvement to be done in the line of improvement to prepare for the anticipated increased attendance, as nearly all the dormi-tories and living rooms are already en-gaged, and further additions will ungaged, and further additions will un-doubtedly be necessary. Among the noticeable changes in the buildings is the conversion of one of the large barrack quarters into an audi-ence room 39x80 feet, and by a system of partitions five class rooms are uti-lized in the same building. This is on the northeast of the campus, next to the Murdock building so that all the the northeast of the campus, next to the northeast of the campus, next to the Murdock building, so that all the classwork can be in close touch. This change will be very beneficial. The old audience room on the southwest cor-ner of the campus is now fitted up as a gymnasium, 100x30 feet, with additions at the rear; $600 worth of parapher-nalia for that room is now at Milford, and will be installed before school com-mences. The major portion of this was subscribed for by last year's students, and it will be one of the best gymna-siums in the state. Quite an addition to the curriculum of studies will be made this year. Mechanics, cooking, needlework and kindred household duties will be taught by competent in-structors. The faculty will consist of 13 teachers, each one fully prepared in his to be the teachers.

teachers, each one fully prepared in his teachers, each one fully prepared in his or her line. Musicaliy, the school is to take a number of steps forward. In addition to the work of Prof. A. M. Durham, who has been at the head of musical affairs at the school for three years, and has proven himself eminently suc-cessful, George W. Woodhouse has been engaged to take charge of a brass band, and George Durham will have a band, and George Durham will have a guilar and mandolin class in his care. These will have daily rehearsals. Mr. Theodore Johnson, who will be director of woodwork, is a skilled artisan. A of woodwork, is a skilled artisan. A teacher of dressmaking will be provid-ed, and everything around the school looks very promising for a successful year's work. Another feature which will add materially to the comfort of the students is the installation of elec-tric lights, which will be done some-time during the fall. Principal Ander-son, with his aids, Professors Maeser and Durbam, have been active in bring-ing about these results, having been ing about these results, having been incessant in their efforts since the close of the last school year, and with the large force of men who are now em-ployed finishing up the improvements there is no question but the school will present a comfortable and attractive appearance, and be worthy the patron. age of all those who are in pursuit of higher education. HOOPER.
