DESERT EVENING NEWS

Thursday, October 9, 1908.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

The Saturday News has collected these hints:

Time-water is good for children.

A crack in the stove may be mended by mixing ashes and salt water.

A piece of zinc put on the live side in the stove will clean out the stove pipe.

Cool a sweater and soda will remove machine grease from washable fabrics.

The price of raw onions applied to the edges of insects will destroy the pest.

Nothing is better than turpentine for the banishment of carpet worms, buffalo moths and insects.

Alum, dissolved in water and applied to a bedsheet with a feather, will exterminate bed bugs.

To make paper stick to a wall (that has been whitewashed), wash in vinegar or salicylic acid.

Molasses rubbed on grass stains in white dresses will bring out the stain when the clothing is washed.

A little petroleum added to the water with which waxed or polished shoes are washed improves their looks.

To brighten the inside of a tea or coffee pot, fill with water, add a piece of soap, and boil for about half an hour.

A small box filled with blue and placed in the closet in the pantry or chest will absorb dampness and keep the air dry and sweet.

A little borax put in water in which scarlet napkins and red towels are washed will prevent them from fading.

Dampen your dust slightly before wiping off wood-work and marble. Use a cloth as well as a feather duster if you would be thorough.

Should you upset a bottle of essential oil on the carpet the best treatment for covering the spot is to place the oil over it, a plain blotting paper and a clean cloth.

Whisky will take out every kind of fruit stain. A child's dress will look entirely renewed by the dark berry stain on it, but if whisky is poured on the discolored places before washing it into the wash, it will come out as good as new.

Never put away food in tin plates. Fully one-half the cases of poison from the use of canned goods is because the article was left or put back into the can after using. China, earthenware, or glass is the only safe receptacle for "leftovers."

Oil of peppermint in water, diluted even to 1,000 parts in 1,000, will kill cockroaches in an hour, they dying of convulsions. One drop of the oil placed under a bell jar over a collection of cockroaches will kill both adults and spores in forty-eight hours.

Attending Funerals to Sleep.

"I saw not long ago," said a city undertaker to a New York Tribune man, "an account of the surprise of a reporter on finding that he had been taking some time to a detective in plain clothes at a funeral service, who was there out to insure, not to watch that some of the officiating was stolen. Now the presence of such an officer in the house is not only not unusual, but it saves undertakers and their assistants a world of trouble and anxiety; for generally when things are missed from the house after a funeral the hours are more apt to indicate the undertaker's assistants for it than anybody else, though I have yet to see the instance where the theft was really brought home to one connected with a craft."

Just the fact that things are often stolen from the house of mourning, as we call it, cannot be denied, and the larger the house, and the more friends that are invited to help service the greater the temptation to thieves, the greater their opportunity and the less the chances of detection. There are plenty of people both honest and dishonest, who make it their business to watch the papers for funeral announcements, and present themselves at the house with all the assurance of the oldest friend of the family.

You have, perhaps, taken notice at a funeral in your own family or in one with which you were intimately acquainted, that people come in and look at the dead with evident sorrow and sympathy for you, and yet for the life of you could not remember having seen them before. It is a way people have in this country, and the shapers know it and take advantage of it. To push their way in and deliver the eulogy, or perhaps make their way upstairs, and by keeping one sharp eye all the time on the other people in the house and the other on the goods and chattels, manage very successfully to get half a dozen small things, like a hair brush, a hand glass, a vase, a piece of lace work, or silver toilet article, into the capacious pockets they carry under their voluminous skirts.

Then, again, I have known women after the chief mourners had come away to the cemetery with the body and those left behind were overcome with grief—step up to the flowers that had been used in the funeral and deliberately make up choice bouquets for themselves. If any one had the boldness to object, or even to ask the reason why the women's eyes will fill with tears and the plea of a momentary loss of their dear friend, you know, I will be as bold as to tell you that no one who had not seen the thing done scores of times could doubt their sincerity. I once interfered seriously in such a case, but I got no thanks for it, as the woman I interrupted made a scene, and the people in the house would rather have let her take $20 worth of flowers than have had such a thing happen.

Other people are not so easy-going, however, and I remember one occasion when a husband found that a diamond ear-ring had been stolen from the ear of the body in the coffin. He suggested a woman dressed in widow's weeds, who had been over the dead person and placed the body in a coffin of wood, which about the mourner so that her long veil fell around her face and down on the coffin. Nobody knew her, and everybody thought that some one else did, and as she was allowed to go unobserved, and then retire, a little weeping, into a room.

When the husband missed the ear-ring he told me he suspected the weeping woman, and he went out to find her. We came upon her in the last room, still weeping, and I charged her with the theft. She was a cool one, I tell you. She gave the jewel up without a word, and when the husband looked at her and saw her hand, he said: "You are a good girl, and I forgive you, but you must not do it again."

Exploration of Alaska.

A bill introduced in the House of Representatives provides that the Secretary of War be authorized to send an expedition to the interior of Alaska for the purpose of making a thorough exploration and survey of that territory, with a view of ascertaining its resources and capabilities, and to report thereon to the committee on the subject of the territory.

A Free Talk.

I have lately read a valuable article, which is especially recommended to young men, and which would be valuable to many others, and one that I am sure is of daily use with many readers of this paper.

It is a mixture of equal parts of honesty and common sense, and is a valuable guide in the extraneous, from a wide to equal her, when you know it is to be found your money, and really not suitable for your use. Take a large dose of this tonic, get such articles of furniture as you really need in your home, put a shadow room for your children, and you will find that the tonic is a valuable guide in the extraneous, from a wide to equal her, when you know it is to be found your money, and really not suitable for your use.
