varieties. It is a good grape, but there are others preferable for the table and particularly for wine, and many are hardler and mature earlier in the season.

The Mission grape formerly was the variety principally if not exclusively cultivated in California, where it thrives remarkably well, as indeed does every variety of grape introduced there. Of late years many other varieties, American described as Weldon, taking a drink. Weldon asked him if he had a sixand especially European, have been and especially European, have been extensively planted in that State, and with such automatory results that it is now prevalently advocat-ed to do away with the Mission grape in favor of other varieties considered indubitably superior. It is held that the Mission grape will not make a first-class wine, and it is strongly recommended either to root it out and plant better varie-ties, or to graft it with these supe-rior varieties. The Bacramento Record-Union has several times advocated the abandonment of the cultivation of the Mission variety, cultivation of the Mission variety, all wines made from that grape having a peculiar earthy or "ground" taste, which cultivation Col. Loan said he believed Weldoes not work out. The interests of the wine manufacture in that State are held to demand this. Don Mateo Kelter, the experienc ed viniculturist and wine manufacturer of Los Angeles, in a recent letter to the Express of that place, advocates the abandonment of the culture of the Mission, and its sub-stitution by varieties which are nown to be good wine grapes. ST. PETERSBURG, 16 .- The Czar holds that war is needless, because the fall of Midhat Pasha marks the commencement of a state of anarcommencement of a state of anar-chy in the country, which will eventually compel Europe to inter-fere. General Ignatieff supports this view. The idea among the peace party is that the powers an-swering the Russian circular might enable Russia to withdraw, and await the result of the Turkish ef-formed to the transition of the trans forts at reform by publicly recog-nizing the sacrifices which she has made on behalf of eastern Christians.
