BREVITIES.

"Victory," said Napoleon, "belongs to the most persevering."

Quincy, Ill., has discharged its police from motives of economy.

Two things that can't safely be calculated upon—lightning and juries.

France has 337 theatres; Italy, 298; Spain, 168, and England, 159.

India railways charge passengers eight cents per mile.

"I want more head and less tongue," said Napoleon when filling the various departments of state.

Women who live to be thirty, and over, without marrying in Russia, are taboos in fashionable society.

Bull Run Russell will do the Suez Canal opening for the London Times, and Edward Dicey for the Telegraph.

The Queen of Prussia gives five hundred dollars to every woman in the kingdom who has given birth to twelve children.

At a public house the landlord has painted upon the outside of his door: "Good beer sold here; but don't take my word for it."

"I did not usurp the crown," said Napoleon, proudly. "It was lying in the mire, I picked it up. The people placed it on my head."

The city of New York consumes annually fully one million five hundred thousand sheep, Boston five hundred thousand, and other cities in proportion.

Ninety-two thousand nine hundred and ninety-three buildings in Philadelphia are supplied with water and about 5,000 in New York.

A newboy in New York, the other day, was heard crying out, "Ere's your Police Gazette. 'Nother one of them things by Missus Stowe."

A wedding guest in New York estimates that out of 82 marriages which he attended last season, only nineteen were "love matches."

Napoleon had no tendencies to gallantry. Madame de Stael said to him, "It is reported that you are not very partial to the ladies." "I am very fond of my wife, madam," was his laconic reply.

A fashionable young lady was seen walking down Montgomery street, San Francisco, recently, with five-dollar gold-pieces on the tips of the heels of her boots.

A writer in the New York Times charges that the practice of indulging in "private bottles" at home is fearfully on the increase among the respectable ladies of New York.

Mr. Jones, of Hartford, thought he smelt gas the other night and lighted a match to see if. He next found himself in the street, all ablaze, when a friendly policeman put him out by rolling him in the gutter.

A witty prelate was once asked if he did not think such a one followed his conscience. "Yes," said his lordship, "I think he follows it as a man does a horse in a gig—he drives it first."

A young lady explained to her inamorata the distinction between printing and publishing, and at the conclusion of her remarks, by way of illustration, she said, "You may print a kiss on my cheek, but you must not publish it."

A colored cook, expecting company of her own kind, was at a loss how to entertain her friends. Her mistress said:

"Polly, you must make an apology."

"La, missis, how can I make it? Got no apples, no eggs, no butter, no nuffin to make it with."

Mrs. Foley, of West Rutland, Vt., a few days since, poured kerosene oil upon her fuel to hasten the fire, and lost her life by the experiment. Thousands of foolish people tempt death in this way.

Dr. Lyman Beecher once said: "A great many professed Christians have no other idea of religion than that it is the means of getting to heaven when they die. As to doing anything for God while they live, it does not enter into their plans. I tell you, my brethren, I do not believe there is one in five hundred of such professors that will reach heaven; for there is a magnanimity in true religion that is above all such contemptible meanness."

A couple of practical engineers from Monroe township, Washington county, were present at the State Fair, and who were at the engine that was blown to atoms, killing so many people, say that not three minutes before the explosion took place they noticed that nothing but engine steam or gas escaped from the engine, and that they told several to get away for there was danger; that they had only got about one hundred yards away when the explosion occurred, carrying so much sorrow and desolation to so many families.—N. A. Commercial.

Samuel Wesley visited one of his parishioners as he was upon his dying bed—a man who had never missed going to church in forty years.

"Thomas, where do you think your soul will go?"

"Soul! soul!" said Thomas.

"Yes, sir," said Mr. Wesley, "do you not know what your soul is?"

"Aye, surely," said Thomas: "why it is a little bone in the back that lives longer than the body."

"So much," says John Wesley, who related it on the authority of Dr. Lupton, who had it from his father, "had Thomas learned from hearing sermons, and exceedingly good sermons, for forty years."
