The Levee at New Orleans has this to say: The first three months of the year in other cities have not had much effect here. True, water is not so good as it was a year ago, but when the depression in the river is in full tide, the water is very dangerous to the city.

George Blaine, of St. Louis, Missouri, who was an old speculator in real estate, died at his home, 1030 Broadway, on Monday with 12,000 head of one and two-year-old westerns. The sheep were all of the best and were June 1 at Albuquerque, N.M., and will take fully six weeks longer to drive before the destination is reached.

Three men named Wheeler, Jackson and Hall, are in the Del Norte, Colo., jail, charged with killing a traveling salesman at that place, near the mouth of the Colorado. They were caught in the act by stockmen, who captured the party and brought them in. The slaughter of a large stock has been going on since the summer on the upper Rio Grande and the stockmen think they have the right men, who hail from Maryland.

The value of the fruit crop of Delaware and Colorado is estimated at $2,000,000, with the Denver fruit crop. Delaware has been a fruit-growing country for nearly one hundred years, while only in the last few years has it begun to produce in the experimental stage of cultivation.

J. J. Kelley and Charles Cull were removing the old Olympia mine shaft in use on Fryer, Hill, Leavenworth, when Mr. Cull had purchased the shaft and Kelley was a partner in the shaft. The shaft struts collapsed, burying Kelley beneath the shaft. Had Mr. Kelley been working on the shaft, he would have been killed. Mr. Kelley recovered it was found that he had received injuries which will cripple him for life.

Reports from all over the state of Wyoming, says the Cheyenne Sun, are to the effect that the dry weather has failed the ranches and that the streams are drying up fast. News that have never been known to go dry before are now so dry as to be unusable. There is a great anxiety throughout the state making every effort to sell their stock. They believe that the life of the sheep business has departed for some time to come.

Within two weeks, says the Tucson, Arizona, Star, the main arteries on the 17-mile street railway will have been excavated for water. The work has already been started from Los Angeles, two miles are in the stage almost finished and still two more are in an advanced state of excavation. There will be six cars on the line and it is intended to increase the line in seven months, so that the service when completed will be less than five minutes.

Frank Vaughn, the thirteen-year-old son of Mrs. J. C. Vaughn, of Livingston, Missouri, has been probably fatally injured by a runaway horse at the Fort Worth race, in the upper Yellowstone, where he was riding a young Vandyke. The horse had started for the fence, and the straps being too long put the feet in the straps holding the straps. Mrs. Vaughn had caught the horse and was talking to the boy when he fell. The animal then dragged the boy a distance of forty yards. Little hope is entertained of his recovery.

Heavily clad by the surgeon's knife, says the San Francisco Chronicle, the corpse of a woman was more a beautiful woman than the girl in the underlying portion of Carew & Kinkaid. The body is that of Clara Matthews, who died from the effects of a criminal operation performed by two physicians and her lover. The operation was performed by Dr. J. P. Dismal and Harry J. Gray, who were both indicted for the crime. The case is being tried in the city of San Francisco.
