Fairvlew, Lincoln. Neb., July 10.-This was home day at Fairview. From Incoln and the outlying districts those who know the Bryan family came to congratulate them on the honor that has fallen to the master of Fairview. They came by street car as early as o'clock, and later there were all kinds of vehicles, from the old-fashioned lum. ber wagon to the automobile, carrying plause.) friends and neighbors. city of Lincoln came a large delegation, preceded by a brass band and a large American flag, carried by James Kern. From the time they came in sight until they drew up in front of the Bryan residence they shouted and yelled and cheered, and when the nominee spoke to them they punctuated every sntence with cheers and applause. Mr. and Mrs. Bryan received the crowd in front of the house and Mr. Bryan spoke on the steps. The visit of their neighbors greatly affected both Mr. and Mrs. Bryan. The es-tegem of one's neighbors is a priceless asset to anyone. The honors of public life often come under circumstances for which the recipient is not entirely re-sponsible. There are sometimes waves that carry into office those who have it expectation of being elected and carry out of office those who have public favor. I may recall two of which are in memory of all of us. You will remember that in 1890 there was a freat Democratic tidal wave that swept into office many who at the time of nomination had little expectation of success. Four years later there was an other tidal wave (a Republican wave) that swept out of office a great many Republicans who hardly expected to the political success of the people, Therefore, you cannot build securely more hoomrs that come without neces-sarily much effort or merit on your part. # FOREIGN COMMENT ON DENVER TICKET

London, July 10 .- The London newspapers anticipate an interesting contest for the presidency of the United States. This, they think, will arise not so much from the difference in the platforms of the opposing parties as from the strEcing personalities of their candidates. Mr. Bryan, having dropped the free silver and other "extreme planks is regarded as an acceptable candidate, but as likely to stand little chance against the "Roosevelt nomi-nee." His only chance, it is thought here, will be from the support given him by the labor party, but this is ex-pected to be more than balanced by the ccession of the business community to Mr. Taft

Daily Chronicle regards Mr. The Daily Chroniele regards and Bryan's policy as being the same as that of President Robsevelt, and says that it is a question of which of the candidates shall be entrusted with its execution. The Daily Graphic says:

on this basis, we can be both earnest and charitable, for if we love our country, we love our party; we desire the triumph of justice more than the triumph of erroneous opinions; we are prepared for either victory or de-feat, for if we win we know that the victory can only be permanent if it is a deserved victory and if it results in the advancement of the common-wealth, and we know that if defeat comes it can only be temporary if we are in fact right and those who win wrong, and thus believing in the om-nipotence of truth, we are prepared to meet each other upon an honest footing, and, our differences honest, bow submissively to the will of the people and pray that whichever party wins, the country's good will be pre-"Whatever is really good in the Dem-ocratic cread is already an integral part of the policy of President Roosevelt is bequeathing to Mr. Tart, hence there is no serious political issue; it will be exclusively a question of persons." Denver, July 10 .- The Democratic national convention concluded its labors late this afternoon by the nomination of John Worth Kern of Indiana for vice president, completing the ticket on which William J. Beyan was made the nominee for president during the early hours of this morning. The nomination of Mr. Kern was made by acclamation amid the resounding cheers of delegates and spectators. No ballot was necessary, as the tide of sentiment had set irresistibly toward the Indiana candidate, state after state registering its delegation in his fa-vor, and all other candidates with-drawing before the universal demand for his nomination. The convention, after adjourning at daylight with the nomination of Mr. Bryan, resumed its session at 1 p. m., with a powerful undercurrent already in motion toward the nomination of PROFOUNDLY APPRECIATIVE. Denver, Colo., July 10.—John W. Kern of Indiana, the nominee for vice president on the Democratic ticket, re-celeved the news of the action of the Convention in his apartments in the Albany hotel. When, early in the day, matters began to shape themselves in his direction, and his selection became almost a certainty. Mr Kern deter-mined that he would remain away from today's session, and, accordingly, his seat was occupied by an alternate. "I am profoundly appreciative of the persons from all parts of the country who called to congratulate Indiana's representatives on the choice of the convention. Mr. Kern visited his head-quarters and he was given an ovation. SUITS N. Y. DEMOCRACY. Denver, July 10.—Charles F. Mur-phy of New York, after the adjourn-ment of the convention, said: "I am entirely satisfied with the work of the convention. Its enthus-iasm. confideice and harmony were its distinguishing features. There can be no doubt that the candidates nom-inated were the first choice of a large majority of the delegates and that the platform adopted is a declaration of the principles which the delegates heartily endorse. "To both platform and ticket, the Democracy of New York will give a sincere, united and, I believe, most ef-fective support."

PROFOUNDLY APPRECIATIVE.

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

WHAT OF THE FUTURE: "I do not know what the future has in store for us; a kind of providence conceals from us the book of fate. We learn each day what each day is to bring forth, and we must be prepared for whatever comes, but I will say this to you, that I appreciate the generous good will and affection so many of the American people have shown more than I could appreciate any office that could rome to me. a curse than a pressing to the young man who inherits it. A prospective fortune large enough to relieve one from the necessity of toil is more apt to paralyze one's energies than to be a source of stimulation to him. But while my father did not leave me a fortune, he left me something that has been worth more to me than all the money of any millionaire could have been. He taught me to believe that every righteous principle would triumph. (Applause.) He taught me when a boy that I could afford to be in the minority, but that I could not afford to be wrong on any question; that if I was in the minority and right I would sometime be in the ma-jority (applause and cheers, and cries of 'You will now'), and that if I was in the majority and in the wrong I would sometime be in the ma-iority (applause and cheers, and cries of 'You will now'), and that if I was in the majority and in the wrong I would sometime be in the minority. I say to you, my friends, that that ad. vice, given to me by my father, has been worth more to me than any amount of money could have been; and I believe that it is a principle that we should imbue in the minds and in the hearts of all—confidence of the triumph of every righteous cause. If evils come, let us have confidence in the intelligence and the integrity and the patriotism of the people. I am an optimist. I believe the world is grow-ing better; I believe that the great movements for the uplifting of so-cicty are going forward with resistless force. We cannot stop the triumph of truth. We may eccelerate it: we may retard it; we cannot stop it. may retard it; we cannot stop it. A GREAT HONOR.

A GREAT HONOR. A GREAT HONOR. "But if I were to talk too long on principles like these I might be tempt-ed to apply them to conditions (laugh-ter) and to the issues, and that is not my purpose this morning. A great honor has failen to us. The voters of a great party have made me their standard-bearer. I need not tell you that I did not buy this nomination. I need not tell you that I had no way of coercing people. Why, my friends, I have no way of coercing the people who live about me—no way of coercing the people of Normai or of Lincoln or of Lancaster or of Nebraska, much less of the United States. It is not for me to say whether they have acted wisely at Denver or not; I am glad that the responsibility is theirs, yoot mine. (Laughter.) This I know: 1 appreciate it because it has been a free-will of-fering presented by some 6,000,000 of my countrymen. We are going to do the best we can to present to the public the issues of this campaign. We are going to meet you as we can, and then we are going to believe that whatever the report is on election day, it is going to be good, and if it is for us we will feel that we are going to be permitted to put into practise the principles against us, we will know that we can learn by the manner in which our opponents apply their principles whether or we are right in advocating them. "You have come out at the begin-ming of the campaign. Come out just as often as you will. And there is one thing about it—the pleasure of suc-cess will be moderated by the fact that it will take us from you, and the sorcess will be moderated by the fact that it will take us from you, and the sor-row of defeat will be softened by the fact that it will leave us with you. (Great cheering.)"

BRYAN'S FAVORITE PIECE.

After the address was concluded After the address was concluded there was music by the band. The Mexican seronade, "La Paloma," was played, it being the nominee's favorite, and he acknowledged that the piece was more appropriate, it meaning "the dove," since those animated emplems of harmony were set free in the con-vention hall at Denver. After the handshaking which follow-ed when the speech was over, the visit-ors were shown about the farm and through the house.

Hundreds of congratulations were received by telegraph during the day, nearly all predicting success in the fall.
