

ity of those whose signatures had been secured in Paris to the underwriting agreement which was then in the care of the Bank de Roma, Baron Calvet Rognlat and Mr. Schreyer, a banker, were the heaviest subscribers. While both were much disappointed over the misunderstanding as to the suces the underwriting here, they were stated to stand ready to pay their shares. Fi-nally the situation apparently had been explained to the satisfaction of every one and preparations were made for the first call upon the underwriters July 23 for 25 per cent of the subscription, to be followed by the second, payable Aug. 1, for the same amount.

MORGAN, HARJIS & CO.

Then came the exciting portion of the correspondence. The banking house of Morgan, Harjes & Company had been selected to receive payments to be ca-bled at once to the Mercantile Trust company of New York; but the sub-scribers had not come forward on July 5 to which day the neuments had been 25, to which day the payments had been postponed, and on July 28 a letter stat-ed that Mr. Alexander had changed his ne with regard to the situation. The writer is quoted:

"While it may be true that these underwriters were not treated properly by Young in leaving them under ression for so long a time that all the bonds had been sold, yet that has been well atoned for by the patience and care with which we have in the last week given explanation after explanation to all parties. They are now all in default from the 25th and I have told oppenheim to notify each one that their individual liability in case that money is not in New York in time to make the payment will not be limited to the amount of their securities, but that there will be consequential dam-ages to every party connected with the

YOUNG HALF IS CRITICISED.

The letter criticised severely in a postcript the impressions said to have been thrown out by the younger Harjes prejudiced against the whole affair and that it was said by the cashier that there was no market in New York for the bonds. The writer adds that he saw Haries at opper and theraitened to turn Harjes at once and threatened to turn the account over to the Credit Lyon-alse, and thereupon Harjes agreed to tell everything good he could about the personnel of the company and the afwere made, according to letters and cablegrams quoted, to counteract the effect of various reports circulated as to the impending collapse of the underwriting scheme in New York.

ALEXANDER QUOTED.

In one of the letters from Paris addressed to Alexander & Green, Mr. Alexander is quoted as follows:

"I constantly say to all parties that nothing can be done in the way of as-sisting the underwriters here to dispose of their bonds unless they frankly come forward when notified, acknowledge their fightfult ment, when all hands will unite in endeavoring to sell any bonds they may wish to dispose of.

CAUSES A SURPRISE.

New York, Dec. 22.-The hearing in the United States Shipbuilding receiv. ership proceedings was postponed to-day until tomorrow because of the illness of Counsel Untermyer of the suing bondholders. Before the examiner an. nounced the adjournment, Mr. Guthrie, counsel for Schwab and others, made statement regarding the publication of the letters and telegrams that passed between the firm of Alexander & Green

haif a block away and signalled for it to stop. When the footpad boarded the front end of the car, Paul Jenkinson, the motor-man, saw a revolver in the man's hand. Without a moment's hesitation the motor-man jerked the crank from his brake and struck the robber on the head, knock-ing him from the car and felling him to the street. At the same time the second thief got regarding the French underwriters, Mr. Guthrie said, in part: "I desire to call the examiner's atthe street. At the same time the second thief got on the rear platform of the car. drew a revolver and pointed it at the head of Deputy Sheriff Tempke. The officer saw the movement and struck the robber a blow in the face, staggering him. Con-ductor Hiram Savage followed up the ad-vantage thus gained by shoving the man off the platform. Tempke ran after the robbers but both escaped. tention to the publication in a news-paper in this city this morning of the letters, telegrams and cables which have been the object of examination at several hearings before you. New York, Dec. 22.—Fresh opposition has developed to the recently announced plan for refunding the bonds of the Col-orado Fuel & Iron company, and an as-sociation is being formed by minor bond-holders for mutual protection. Former Supreme Court Judge William Keener has been consulted by those who are antagonizing the scheme of reorgani-agreement entered into Aug. 1. 1901, for the purchasers of $15.000,000 of bonds is-sued at that time. he has advised his clients that no possible advantage will result to the debenture bondholders from the plan involving surrender of their de-bentures and participating in the new $45.000,000 issue of bonds. It is stated that the committee intends inviting co-opera-tion by other bondholders, and that a meeting wil be called in the near future. while these letters, telegrams and ca-blegrams were claimed to be privil-eged, they were furnished to a news-paper and published this morning. We understand this publication to be a di-rect contempt of court, and that the person guilty of causing their publication is guilty of a gross contempt. We ask you therefore that at the next hearing we may temporarily suspend the taking of testimony of complainants' witnesses and take testimony as to the person who gave publication to these letters, cablegrams and telegrams." Mr. Woolman, associate counsel with

r. Untermeyer, replied: "If there is to be an insinuation that Mr. Untermeyer or myself had any-thing to do with giving publicity to these communications, I here declare that it is absolutely untrue. Neither Mr. Untermyer nor I had anything to do with giving out those letters, tele-grams and cablegrams to the press. Mr. Guthrie knows there are many copies of them in existence, and that copies could easily be obtained. I was as much surprised at seeing them pub-lished this morning as Mr. Guthrie could have been." "I hope so, for the good name of the bar." exclaimed Mr. Guthrie. "You have done much in this case against the good name of the bar, Mr. Guthrie."replied Mr. Wollman. "Your course has been represensible. I do not know, nor do I care what the law is, but the persons who gave these communications to the press ought to be punished. I do not ob-ject to Mr. Guthrie's insinuation when Mr. Guthrie knows, as he does, how easy it is to de the press dency and Saints in Zion with fraternal greetings from the Karachi branch, Innolds has also received one from Elder cannot identify Fuller as the man who committed the atrocious deed. She has seen the man twice since the assault, and on both occasions stated that she was not sure he is the man. "Although the young lady does not identify the man, I think we will be able to make a good case against him," said Asst. County Atty. Smith to the "News" this morning. There was a delay of nearly two hours before the taking of testimony was begun, owing to the fact that Judge Diehl was summoned as a wit-ness in the district court. When court finally convened, Fuller stated he was finally convened, Fuller stated he was not ready for hearing, that he did not have an attorney to defend him and had no witnesses.

MISS GILL TESTIFIES.

Miss Gill was the first witness and testified that she resides with her par-ents at 905 east South Temple street and was employed at the home of Mr. Hallorith on Eleventh East street.

Answering Mr. Smith, Miss Gill said she did not recognize Fuller, and did not romember seeing him on the car on the night of the offense.

In describing the man who assaulted her she gave a perfect description of Fuller.

"It was rather dark." she said. "and the man's back was to the light. He was a large, tall heavy man, dark com-plexioned and wore a soldier's uniform and cap." Miss Gill said when the soldier spoke to her she screamed and he choked her. She remembered failing to the ground, but lost her senses immediately after.
