

UTAH KOREANS WILL SEND MONEY

They Declare Their Sympathy for Righteous Army and Its Work.

BITTER HATRED OF STEVENS

It Leads to Organized Effort to Help
Save His Slayers in San Francisco.

To do what they can for their mother country, in the sore distress that has overtaken her since Japan became master there, 200 Koreans in Salt Lake are holding daily meetings in their hall at the corner of West Temple and South Temple streets.

They have already reached a decision to raise all the money they can and send it to San Francisco to the aid of the two Koreans who will have to stand trial for the murder of Durham Stevens. A committee was appointed last night to accept donations, and it consists of D. Y. Chung and C. Y. Lee. Mr. Chung this morning talked at some length on the outrages being committed in Korea by the Japanese, and of the helplessness of the country to the Japanese have succeeded by chicanery in putting upon the people.

"Do not think that we regard this Mr. Stevens as typical of America's representatives in the Orient," he declared. "The great republic has always been friendly to the weak and down trodden, and has never believed in the rule of might, just because it is strong. There are men in Korea from America who are the warmest friends Korea has, and whom the Japanese would kill, as they kill hundreds of our countrymen, if they only dared. In Seoul, the capital of our country, there is in addition an English editor, who is the one brave man who is free to tell the actual condition in the country. Except him, the men writing news from Korea are subsidized, and their reports are not true."

"As for Stevens, he was a most active Japanese agent in accomplishing the destruction of Korean power through the breaking of promises. The Koreans who removed him, we regard as patriots, and shall hope for their acquittal, and work for it."

Of actual conditions in Korea, Mr.

Chung declared that it was very difficult to learn the facts because Japan rigidly censored all mail, and no letters of consolation and encouragement could be sent in or replies from such letters received. More than that no news about what is being carried on could escape the censor's office, except in very remote instances.

"Japan," he said, "was bound to protect the independence of Korea by her treaty with Russia. We first found soldiers coming, and protests were made, and an abandonment of this policy to the extent that the soldiers were sent as hordes of settlers, turned loose upon the land to get out of it through speculation, whatever prices money they thought was coming to them as a result of the participation in the recent war."

"These hordes of Japanese have done us uncountable harm. They took land when it pleased them, murdered Koreans and pillaged villages, and when the Koreans organized for their defense, and to file protests against such action, they were hunted down, murdered, and the villages in which they lived were destroyed."

"The Righteous Army has been the outgrowth of the conditions, and the members have had to organize in the face of the most bitter persecution and relentless opposition. Whenever a member of it is found he is killed. Our hope is that through it we may ultimately reduce the Japanese power in Korea to the actual status it is supposed to occupy, and does now so far as formal recognition goes."

TO INSPECT MILITIA

Major W. T. May of Fort Douglas Will Look Over Utah's Citizens Soldiers.

Orders recently issued by Adjutant General E. A. Wedgwood relative to the approaching government inspection of the Utah National Guard read as follows:

"The dates for the government inspection of the respective organizations of the National Guard of Utah have been fixed by general orders No. 4, as follows:

"Company A, Nephi, April 15.
"Company B, Mantle, April 16.
"Company C, Richfield, April 17.
"Company D, Mt. Pleasant, April 18.
"First battery F. A. and company H, Salt Lake, April 20.
"Hundred and first, S. and band, hospital corps, Salt Lake, April 21.
"Company C and signal corps, Salt Lake, April 22.
"Company B, Ogden, April 23.

"This order commands every member of the guard to be present at the inspection of his organization, and it is the duty of every member, under his oath, to be present. Pay for the service having been authorized, the attendance of every man within the state, not physically incapacitated, is required and expected. In many respects this event is the most important duty of the year and is required by the laws of the United States. By it the guard of this state is brought into competition with the guard of every other state and its comparative standing and efficiency is determined. The reputation of the state rests with the members of the guard. It depends upon the attendance of every member and upon his presenting a neat and soldierly appearance. The responsibility for a satisfactory showing rests upon each man as fully as though he alone represented the state in any contest or competition, for no man can fail in this duty without lowering the standard of the state. The guard has the ability to pass an inspection that will compare favorably with that of any state. Let every man do his part to the best of his ability and the result will be gratifying and satisfactory and a source of pride to the state."

Another similar order states that commanding officers of company organizations are to assemble their commands at their respective armories at 8 o'clock p. m. on the day named, in dress uniform and every member of guard is required to report for duty with his organization. Company books, including accounts of company quartermaster stores, must be brought up dated, and individual lockers and company quartermaster stores will be in readiness for inspection.

Adj. W. T. May of the Fifteenth infantry is the inspecting officer.

LABOR ADDRESSED BY CONGRESSMEN

Unionists Urged to Take An Active Part In Current Legislation.

CARY AND McDERMOTT ALLIED

Both Are Members of Telegraphers' Union and They Always Pull Together to Help the Toilers.

Special Correspondence.

Washington, Mch. 30.—Two members of the house have of late been addressing meetings of labor men here and have advised them to take an active part in the political contests of the year. Of course these gatherings are held for the influence they may have in the states, for there is no voting done in Washington, and if there were such a privilege here a contest would not amount to a great deal. But both of the great national labor organizations have their headquarters here, and from this point their literature is sent to all parts of the United States. The other night Representative McDermott of Chicago and Representative Cary of Milwaukee made speeches to the labor people in which they were advised to assert their power in the coming contest. They were told that if they did not arouse a general interest in behalf of the working classes the capitalists would continue to get all they asked of Congress and the toilers would be left, as usual.

ANTAGONISTS PULL TOGETHER.

By the way, both McDermott and Cary are members of the Telegraphers' union. They hold their cards and lose no opportunity to let it be known that they still maintain a keen interest in everything that affects that and kindred organizations. McDermott is a Democrat and Cary is a Republican, but that does not keep them from pulling together when it comes to working for the cause of labor. They have taken pains to show that they are opposed to Secy. Taft.

DEPEW STANDS BY FINANCIER.

Senator Depew not only came to life recently, as heretofore noted in these dispatches, but he made a second speech, and although he read it from the manuscript, it was powerful one from the standpoint taken by him. The New Yorker doesn't like the way certain people have been jumping on Secretary Cortelyou for arranging with J. Pierpont Morgan, John D. Rockefeller and other folks who can count their millions by the several hundred to keep the country from going to eternal smash, so he just got right up in the upper branch of Congress and said so. The interesting part of the proceeding was that while Depew was giving a history of how the credit of the nation was saved by J. Pierpont Morgan was sitting in the gallery reserved for the select and heard every word uttered. Morgan came all the way from New York to listen to the statements about how he and John D. managed to have seventy millions of hoarded money come out of its hiding place and get right into circulation instead of being degraded from use.

AN AMUSING COINCIDENCE.

Mr. Latta, one of the assistant secretaries to President Roosevelt, usually carries all White House communications to the senate. The other day Latta came in just as Senator Foraker was concluding his sensational statement regarding the Ohio postmaster appointment at Athens and in which he claimed vigorously that the president had been bringing pressure to bear in behalf of the candidacy of Secy. Taft for the highest office within the gift of the American people. Just then Vice President Fairbanks tapped on his desk and requested the senator to yield the floor to receive a message from the president. An official of the senate standing by Latta called out in loud pompous tones, "A message from the president of the United States," and made his customary bow. Latta got his little piece, and as the interruption to Foraker's speech was occasioned by a White House communication Latta could not help joining in the laughter on the floor and in the galleries. Even Senator Foraker smiled.

ARRANGEMENT OF WALL STREET.

Representative Clayton of Alabama got the floor for a short talk the other day, obtained leave to extend his remarks in the Record and had printed in that official organ of Congress the recent speech of William J. Bryan delivered in New York city, which was aimed directly at Wall street and which has been labeled "Thou Shalt Not Steal." In the same issue of the Congressional Record the venerable Col. Pete Hepburn of Iowa prints a long appendix to his remarks which is headed, "Wall Street Worst of Gambling Places." Each is a terrible arraignment of the money power and business in that famous street, and as the matter is now in shape to be sent out under the franking privilege as campaign literature the farmers will doubtless be liberally supplied with copies in order that they may read of the terrible things that are happening in the metropolises of the nation.

A YOUNG BEAU BRUMMEL.

Hon. William James Bryan, the youthful senator from Florida, next to Senator Frazier of Tennessee is the tallest member of the upper branch of Congress. Mr. Bryan makes one more addition to the smooth faced brigade in the senate. The young man also dresses in the height of fashion. He had announced himself a candidate for the senate prior to the death of Senator Mallory, the latter realizing that he was a dying man, having declared he did not again expect to be a candidate.

RAILROAD NOTES.

(Ogden Correspondence.)

The Southern Pacific wrecker was called to Ogden yesterday to pick up a derailed freight car and engine.

Supt. W. A. Whitney of the Union Pacific has been called to Denver on railroad business.

Every southbound train out of Ogden yesterday was heavily loaded with conference visitors to Salt Lake City.

Supt. H. L. Anderson of the Wyoming division of the Union Pacific passed through Ogden yesterday afternoon en route home from the coast.

Supt. Twining of the Pullman company, who has been in Ogden for a couple of days, left for the east yesterday morning.

The colonist travel to the northwest is very heavy. Extra trains are being run by the Rio Grande and the Short Line.

Supt. Manson of the Southern Pacific arrived from the west where he has been for the past few days on an inspection trip.

The volume of freight business on the local railroads continues to increase daily on account of the fruit business from California.

R. E. Scott, assistant director of maintenance and operation of the Harriman system with headquarters in Chicago, arrived from the west this morning and spent several hours in Ogden conferring with the local officials.

SHEEP SHEARING NOTE.

Sheep shearing is on at various points about the state, although a number of corral, usually among the first beginners, are still idle. This is due, partly to the unsatisfactory condition of the wool market and partly because of inclement weather. Some points at which shearing is on are the Rio Grande Western corral south of Price, Cleco and Verde. At the railroad corral some 70,000 head are looked for the Leonard Bros. at Huntington, and it is reported some 55,000 head are booked at Verde. Along the Salt Lake Route in Nevada, shearing is on in lively shape. The weak condition of the wool market and the indifference being displayed by buyers are far from pleasing to wool raisers, who say they intend being their own dictators, however, and are ready to hold on until affairs pick up.

RECORD CONSIGNMENT.

What is reported to be the biggest consignment of fireworks ever brought into this state will come into Salt Lake the first of the week. It comprises three cars of freight for a local firm.

BUSH HOMEWARD BOUND.

H. C. Bush, traffic manager of the Colorado Midland will be in Salt Lake from the coast today. Mr. Bush is now on his way to Denver, where his headquarters is located. He will be accompanied by John A. Beckwith, city passenger agent of the Denver & Rio Grande at Oakland.

MOVING DAY DUE.

The fences which have been around the Railroad Exchange building are now down, revealing a fine appearing ground floor, all enclosed with glass doors and windows. The plastering is about complete and floors and woodwork are receiving the finishing touches. It will be April 25 when the Rio Grande, Midland and Burlington offices move, but all are preparing to do so now. The store room of the Rio Grande on the third floor of the Daily building as well as the freight and ticket offices in the same block are being overhauled and their contents piled for "moving" day. Local and eastern furniture houses have been given orders which they promise will be filled in plenty of time.

CONFERENCE TRAVEL.

Conference visitors from nearby towns are coming in at a lively rate today, some 600 having come from Ogden and neighborhood, alone, yesterday. Local railroads, with the exception of the Oregon Short Line, do not expect this April's travel to quite reach that of last year. The Oregon Short Line asserts it is holding its own, but other roads are frankly confessing that travel so far is but two-thirds of what it was last year. From various sources it is learned no extra service or equipment has been needed to handle the crowds so far, although tomorrow may see a bigger influx of outsiders.

DAVIS HOME AGAIN.

J. M. Davis, acting general superintendent of the Oregon Short Line, is back at his desk after an extended visit in Chicago where he attended a conference of railway officials who discussed modern problems and other things uppermost in the minds of railroad officials nowadays.

STUENTS TO PLANT SEEDS.

The pupils of the various schools of the city are preparing for Arbor day, which occurs on April 15. For several years past the children have planted trees and made gardens on Arbor day, and this year arrangements were made whereby the custom should be continued on a larger scale, but the program will not be carried out in this particular until next year. The forestry department of the government was approached with the idea of securing evergreen trees for planting in City Creek canyon by the children. The department officials approved the plan.

very much and promised to supply 200 plants. The request was made, however, that the planting be deferred until next year, as the plants were young and too tender just now, that it would be risking many of them to plant them now. For this reason the evergreens will not be planted until next year, but the regular tree planting exercises will be carried on as on previous years.
