CINCINNATI.—The Times-Louisville special says the fire last night was not set by accident, but through the carelessness of the $50,000, with about $75,000 insurance. MADRID, 16.—Disputes from Barcelona announce that, yesterday, all the workmen in the cotton and woolen factories struck, so that the strike was general in the country. The employers of both sexes were on the plaza, and were harangued by several speakers, who urged them to emulate the course of the men of Alcoy, to overthrow the royal government and burn the churches and public buildings. These sentiments were not received with favor and the speakers were called traitors. The revolutionists, however, are apparently satisfied and negotiations have been taken to deal promptly with them.

Ruined Lives.

ALARMING INCREASE OF IMMORALITY AMONG YOUNG GIRLS IN THE CITY—HOW THEY ARE LED ASTRAY—THE LOW DANCING SCHOOLS—THE SUNDAY PRO-NIO—THIS ASSIGNATION HOUSE.

The number of young girls, oftentimes more children, brought before the Police Judge every month for commitment to the Magdalene Asylum, is increasing, but a very small fraction of the number who have left the path of virtue to seek the hollow and transitory pleasure of vice is still sufficiently large in the world, and among these young hoodlums and their games with the little name girls—"hawk hawks"—is the name the boys give to them. The police also a world apart from the felowers, and seem as if something ought to be done to stop the business at the start, but, of course we policemen cannot interfere so long as the girls have no complete legal protection.

OFFICER.—Yes; Columbia Square, between Polson, Harrison, Sixth and Seventh Streets, is about the most notorious place in the city in which the young girls are playing their games with the little name girls—"hawk hawks"—is the name the boys give to them. The police also a world apart from the felowers, and seem as if something ought to be done to stop the business at the start, but, of course we policemen cannot interfere so long as the girls have no complete legal protection.

REPORTEUR.—Is there any house particularly noted where the resort of depraved young girls.

OFFICER.—I don't know of any house in particular, but there is one house on the northwest corner of Third and Stevenson. We took a girl there last night, and she was always very polite and well behaved, and at first, and the silly girls are rather disposed to be pleased than otherwise.

REPORTEUR.—Well, why don't you go to work and break it up?

OFFICER.—Not that I am aware of. You go to appearances, it's nothing but a lodging house, and it's not my job to get a woman off the place. There is a very bad woman in that house. She is a noted procress, and I have heard of her going to people's houses and demanding money, and she has herself for a respectable widow or something of that kind—with the object of getting the ruin of some girl in the family. In fact, she has persuaded the mother to let her daughter visit her room several times, and finally to spend a few days with her. The girl's ruin was made, and the abe-devil having introduced her to one of the patrons of the house, I could give you the name of some man in this city who paid for the ruin of his daughter.

REPORTEUR.—Perhaps so. But I shall want some more information on this subject some other time.

OFFICER.—All right. I think the dancing schools do the community a great deal of harm, and I think they are doing a great many things. I know parents are often blamed for not looking more closely after their girls. You can make them open their eyes in time.—San Francisco Chronicle, July 31.

Thinking he might be able to give some information on this subject to persons who would be of service to him, he called upon a Chronicle reporter and had a short interview with him a few days ago. The reporter goes by asking him how the girl generally behaved on the dance floor.

OFFICER.—Well, they start in all sort of ways. Once in a while we find the girls who are in the habit of going to the dancing schools, and associating with notoriously depraved characters of either sex.

OFFICER.—The officer was instructed however, he found a young girl under such circumstances, to ascertain her name and the residence of the girl, and the dangerous path the girl was treading. If their parents were not to be brought in it is considered that the Magdalene Asylum is the best place for the girl to go to.
