Judge Howell Renders Important Decision Against Practice of Assigning Future Wages.

COUNTY VALUATIONS APPROVED

State Board Will Not Change Assessment—Jury List—Little Child Assaulted.

Ogden, Utah, July 21.—An important decision was handed down late yesterday afternoon by Judge Howell, when he upheld the demurrer in the case of the Star Loan company against the Utah State Journal, garnishee. The plaintiff is allowed 20 days in which to amend.

The case is one which has been watched with interest by local attorneys. It involves the validity of a person's assigning future wages which may become due from an employer other than the one for whom he is working at the time of making assignment as guarantee of the payment of a loan.

James H. Tillett borrowed some money from the plaintiff corporation, giving his promissory note and as security therefor an assignment of wages due him from ——, the blank space to be filled out by the manager of the plaintiff corporation. After borrowing the money Tillet entered the employ of the Journal, there still being a portion of the loan due.

Judge Howell states in his opinion, in part:

"The court is of opinion that there is no doubt that a person not engaged in any employment, and not under any contract, written or otherwise, of employment, cannot, even for a valuable consideration, make a valid assignment of all wages which he may earn in the future, without limit as to time and amount. Such an assignment is an attempt to assign that which has no existence, there being no event or contract on which a debt might arise. It is a mere possibility of subsequent acquisition of property, which is too vague and uncertain to be sustained as a valid assignment and transfer of property. To meet this fairly well recognized principle of law, the plaintiff contends that the assignment being in blank and the power of attorney given to fill in the same, the said assignment does not take effect until the completion of the assignment under the power of attorney, which was not done until after the said Tillett entered the employ of the State Journal company. But it seems to me that the giving of this power of attorney and the leaving of the blank in the original assignment, is a mere subterfuge to circumvent the principle of law heretofore enunciated, and that such a subterfuge ought not to becloud the vision of the court so as to make it impossible to see that the transaction is practically the same as if the assignment were originally made of wages due from any future employer."

The court then quoted at length from the case of the Lehigh Valley R. R. Co. vs Woodling, Atlantic Reporter, pp. 60-1. Here the following is found:

"Should the law be declared to be that such an assignment is valid, it is not difficult to see that it would open the door to improvidence and profusion on the part of the assignor, and in the end to utter and hopeless poverty."

VALUATIONS WILL REMAIN.

State Board of Equalization Approves Of Assessor Dix's Work.

There will be no increase in the tax assessment of Weber county. After an investigation of the subject, and largely upon representations of the late Judge Thomas D. Dee, the state board of equalization decided to permit the assessments made by Assessor Dix to stand. The following was given out by the board of county commissioners in Ogden yesterday:

The members of the state board of equalization, on the occasion of their visit before the board of county commissioners in June, were not apparently satisfied with the returns in certain lines on property values made by Assessor Dix of Weber county for 1905. An evident disposition was manifest to have certain property values increased. The board thereupon authorized Commissioner Stanford to investigate the matter and he called to his assistance Treasurer Alma D. Chambers. The effect of the good showing made has brought the following reply from the state board of equalization.

Hon. Joseph Stanford, Chairman Board of County Commissioners, Ogden, Utah.

Dear Sir—We beg leave to acknowledge letters from you with reference to the assessment of your county, and the data furnished showing the increase per year for some years past.

We also wish to state that we have received the very comprehensive data upon the same matter by our respected and loved colleague, the late Judge Dee, which more fully sets forth and amplifies the showing made by you.

We thank you for your interest in this matter and for the information given. With regards we are

Yours truly,
STATE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION,
J. J. THOMAS,
Secretary.

TO KILL THE BEET PEST.

Recommendations of Prof. Ball of the Agricultural College.

The presence of the insect pest in the beets of the Amalgamated Sugar company led Agricultural Superintendent Pingree to inquire of the Agricultural college of Logan as to a remedy. Mr. E. D. Ball, head of the entomology department of the Agricultural college, has written the following letter:

Job Pingree, Ogden, Utah.—Dear Sir: The insects that are injuring your beets belong to the leaf-hopper family in part and partly to what we call false chinch bugs. These insects do not bite, but simply stick in their bill and suck. They draw the sap out of the young beets and cause them to wither. The little warts that you see on the beet stems are their eggs.

"It is pretty late now, I am afraid, to do anything with the brood; they are about done and most of the beets that they have injured are too far gone to help. There are two broods in a year and they may get numerous enough to do damage again in about a month. Usually, however, by that time the beets have become so large that they do not materially hurt it beets have water enough.

"They can be destroyed by spraying with kerosene emulsion. To do this successfully, you would need to rig a gas pipe long enough to cover four or six rows with an attachment for a spray nozzle for each row. By hanging this behind a wagon or cultivator about a foot from the beets, with the nozzle pointed forward and down and then drawing a stick along in front so as to turn the beets about the time the spray struck them, most of these little hoppers could be killed.

"Robert Wilson, the county fruit tree inspector, can give you valuable information in regard to pumps, regulating the apparatus, and making the emulsion on a large scale, if you so desire. I am going to Sanpete and Sevier counties to examine the work of this pest, and, if I have any further suggestions when I come back, I will drop you a note.

"I might be able to call and look the fields over in about 10 days if you could arrange to have someone to take me around. Sincerely,

(Signed) "E. D. BALL."

LAND DRAWING ARRANGED.

Details of Modus Operandi—Parley P. Pratt Stricken With Paralysis.

Special Correspondence.

Provo, Utah Co., July 21.—George C. Hunt, inspector of special agents of the general land office at Washington, D. C., who is here arranging the preliminaries for the Uintah reservation opening, is highly pleased with he arrangements that have been made by the city officials, the Commercial club and the citizens generally for taking care of the people who will come here to register for the opening. He considers the locations of the registration offices, Provo, Grand Junction, Price and Vernal, to be very convenient for all those who may desire to register.

There seems to be a misunderstanding in the minds of some people of the practise of the government in the location of registration offices. They are not located in large cities, one reason being that all large cities have a greater proportion of inhabitants who would register without any intention of entering land than smaller places, and that it is not the people the government wants to do business with. Bonafide homeseekers only are wanted. The objection that old soldiers will be inconvenienced is also far fetched, as they are the only people who can register through an agent. There have already been applications from old soldiers in Kansas for agents here to register for them. They also have a privilege in drawing that is not enjoyed by other entry men; they can file a declaratory statement in the land offices at Vernal, and then have 60 days to make their entry.

Commissioner Richards will be here the latter part of the month with a corps of clerks for the Provo and other registration offices, and will have general supervision of the registration, and, with two local citizens, personal supervision of the drawing, which will be conducted here, commencing on Aug. 17, after all the registration tickets from the polls at Vernal, Price and Grand Junction have been forwarded here and, with the Provo tickets of registration, got in readiness for drawing. There is no advantage in registering early, as all the tickets will be placed together for the drawing, and the last person registered in Vernal, just as likely to be the first to draw a number entitling him to land as the first person registered in Provo, and so with those who register at the other places.

In addition to the publication of names of those who draw, which will no doubt be made in the papers, the committee will mail to each person whose number is drawn the number of his ticket and information of the date on which he must make his filing at Vernal.

The holders of the first 50 numbers drawn will be required to file their entry at the land office in Vernal on Aug. 28, the second 50 on the 29th, the 3rd 50 on the 30th, and so on till all have had an opportunity to file on land selected by them. The numbers will be called in their order at Vernal on each day and if a holder is not present when his number is called it will be held till the evening of the same day, and then again called, if at that time he is not there he loses his right to enter land under his drawing. At the end of 60 days any land not entered will be thrown open to the public for entry, except that those who have drawn numbers for the opening and have not entered land under the privilege conferred by the numbers will not be entitled to enter land on the reservation. They have not, however, forfeited their right to homestead other land open to entry.

There is an understanding on the part of some people that fees for drawing will be charged or that a certain amount of money must be paid on the land at the time of entry. This is not so. The only expense attached to registering and drawing is 25 cents for the notary public, who makes out the application for registration on blanks furnished by the government. At the time of entry at the land office the usual fee for a homestead entry, about $17, will be charged. Then when the entryman has complied with the law, in regard to time of residence, improvements, etc., and "proven up," he pays $1.25 an acre for the land, which amount goes to the Indians.

A rumor here to the effect that there is $50,000 deposited in the bank at Vernal to be offered for the first ten sections drawn, or rather for the right to locate under the first 10 numbers drawn is believed to be without foundation. The applicant in his affidavit sets out that the land he desires to draw is for a homestead for himself, and the number he draws is not transferable, and any collusion between the applicant and land speculators or any fraud that will tend to subvert the intention of the government to dispose of the land to actual homeseekers, only, is punishable by terms of imprisonment in the penitentiary, and the government has special agents at work looking for just such cases. So the attempt would be very dangerous, to say the least.

STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS.

Parley P. Pratt, son of M. L. Pratt of this city, was stricken with paralysis in the right side Wednesday at Eureka, where he was in the employ of the May Day Mining company, and yesterday morning he was taken to the Keogh-Wright hospital in Salt Lake City. His father accompanied him from Provo, and last evening telegraphed his family that the patient was in a greatly improved condition, and was able to move his right arm and leg, but not the fingers and toes on the right side. From the best information the relatives have here, the case is not a very severe one, and hopes of the complete recovery of Mr. Pratt are entertained.

FUNERAL OF DON H. ALEXANDER.

The funeral services over the remains of Don H. Alexander, held yesterday at the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Alexander of the Sixth ward, were attended by a large number of relatives and friends. The speakers were Elders W. N. Dusenberry, E. S. Hinckley, W. H. Dusenberry and Bishop Ralph Poulton.

GARDEN CITY NOTES.

Glenn and Otto Weeler, charged in Justice Noon's court by John Richards with disturbing the peace, were turned over to Probation Officer Woodruff, as they were under the age of 18 years.

J. R. Midgley, whose failure to go to Lovelock, Nevada, after money was sent him for his fare by T. J. Hill, his brother-in-law, and who was enquired after by Mr. Hill from City Marshal Henry, has been found on Provo Bench, where he is working on a fruit farm. He says he wrote Mr. Hill that he was not coming till the first of August, and explains that the reason he wrote Mr. Hill he (Midgley) was in the hospital here, was that he was not feeling very well.

R. R. Irving has started a movement that will be highly appreciated by the public, if carried into effect. It is for the business men to engage Prof. Miller's band to give open air concerts from the band stand in the Court House square every Saturday evening.

C. E. Leavitt, who went to Sugar City, Idaho, this spring, to take charge of the Sugar City Times during the absence of James H. Wallis, on a mission to the Southern states, has severed his connections with the Times, and will return to Provo in a few days. Mrs. Leavitt has already arrived.

Mrs. A. C. Sorensen, who was operated upon by Dr. S. H. Allen at the Groves L. D. S. hospital, Wednesday, is now improving, and if no unforeseen change comes will soon be a well woman.
