

LAKE THE SCENE OF BIG BANQUET

Party of Distinguished Women
Guests of Honor in Salt Lake.

COUNTRIES REPRESENTED.

Practically Every Civilized Land Represented by Delegates Who Are Traveling Across Continent.

The big pavilion at Salt Lake was a world center last night. In it nearly a hundred women, representing almost every civilized country on the globe, met and conversed, dined in the salt sea, exulted in the sunset, and partook of the banquet provided by the women of Salt Lake with every expression and appearance of genuine enjoyment. The responses to toasts made by the visitors teemed with expressions of sincere appreciation of the efforts of Salt Lake women for their entertainment, and that more were not heard was due to the fact that the late hour and the fatigue of the guests necessitated a cut in the program, which had on the list of speakers many more of the distinguished women of the world.

The arrival of the train at an earlier hour than scheduled caused some misunderstanding at first among the committee, but a large number of women representing various local societies, and all classes met at the depot and welcomed the guests. The early hour of their arrival made possible the arrangement of an organ recital before the lake trip, a more convenient hour than the early morning one for today as before planned. At the Tabernacle, through the courtesy of the first presidency, a splendid program of music was rendered by Prof. Ed. Kimball, the audience expressing delight at the organ and manipulation of the great organ.

E. H. Goddard gave interesting facts connected with the tabernacle and temple both of their building and dimensions.

The party then boarded the train for Salt Lake, and many of the visitors availed themselves of the opportunity for a dip in the famous waters. Afterward a delicious banquet was served on the lower floor of the pavilion, under the direction of Miss Lucy Van Cott, three tables being laid and reaching half the length of the great hall. These were decorated with sweet peas in every shade and presented a pretty appearance. Mrs. E. B. Wells presided as toast mistress in her usual happy style expressing in her opening speech the desire of Utah to be at peace with the world and good will of its people toward all mankind.

JOHN HENRY SMITH'S WELCOME.

She introduced John Henry Smith who said in substance that the people of Utah had founded a commonwealth were people of all nations could strike hands with brothers and sisters, nearly every language having its representatives in the state.

He welcomed the visitors in the name of a people who had been extended the hand of fellowship and love to people of all creeds. We have among us, he said, noble men and women who delight to greet the world and hoped that reciprocal pleasure and good will would attend the distinguished occasion.

MISS JAMES RESPONDS.

Mrs. Wells called next upon Miss James, president of the British Council of Women, who said in substance that long journey from the Atlantic to the Pacific they had passed through many scenes of contrast, and nothing more striking than that the people of the world were being drawn together in the association furnished by the great national and international councils. To her the journey had been a lesson in the differences of the achievements of the state in industry and art, but in the oneness of humanity, and in ending said that she desired to express on behalf of the British Council of Women the gratitude to these women of Utah for their warm welcome.

Rabbi Charles Freund was the next speaker and having for his toast the "Jewish Idea of Women," said that the women are revered by the Jewish people as inspirations for all things great and good; and women people who held this ideal of woman stood for a high civilization. The city may have its commercial and other business gatherings, but nothing can be of such value to the community as a gathering such as this. He wished the delegation Godspeed on its homeward way and hoped that they all might have pleasant memories of the visit.

FRAU MARIE STRITT.

Frau Marie Stritt, president of the German Women's congress, expressed her sincere thanks for the warm hospitality accorded the party. She said that a succession of wonderful had met them from shore to shore, on their way to the west, and that new wonders were now before them on their way back. One of the most delightful experiences was this coming to Salt Lake, where they met not only hospitality but personal friends. "Some of you were in Berlin," she said, "and we remember that your Mrs. Horne who is now at Seattle was pointed out among us as a woman of whom we said, 'the first to act as such in any country,' and it was of much more interest to us because it was Utah which had given her this privilege. Horne who sat in the legislature of 1896. Frau Stritt expressed her sincere thanks on behalf of the German delegation for the hospitality accorded them in Salt Lake City.

EFFECTIVE SPEAKERS.

Madame Popelin, president of the Belgian Council of Women, made one of the most effective speeches of the evening, though she expressed herself with the greatest difficulty in English. She had at last to make recourse to French for adequate utterance of her feeling, yet the enthusiastic spirit in which she welcomed the appreciation of the hospitalities and of the scenes which they had enjoyed in Salt Lake, interpreted itself. The sunset, the stars coming out one by one in the wonderful sky, made a scene she would never forget. During the long, dusty ride from Seattle, the question had come to them: "What can compensate us for this discomfort? Salt Lake had answered that question generously to every heart. This is our compensation."

Broken Kroeg of Norway, president of the Norwegian Council of Women, said that her specialty in speaking was for eulogies, but in Utah she had chance for this as the women already have won it.

"Our men gave us the franchise," interrupted Mrs. Wells.

John Henry Smith said that in connection with this subject he would say that he was chairman of the constitutional convention which made woman's franchise possible in Utah.

SWEDISH BARONESS.

Baroness von Platin of Sweden, representing the Swedish Council of Women, spoke feelingly of the welcome given them, and also appreciated the program in the Tabernacle. She said she was sure where all were working for good purposes, only harmony could be the outcome.

Miss Fries of Holland spoke humorously of their trip across the continent, and especially the visit to Salt Lake. When she wrote home that our large body of women were all to come to Salt Lake she said, "You will never get away from that place." We can tell them now, however, that we had no difficulty in passing through. She said that she was not so good a speaker as she was a dancer, and if she had danced at a typical dance she would have made a speech. She alluded to the Dutch sources of American ancestry, and spoke of Roosevelt as a typical descendant whom their people regarded with pride.

ITALY REPRESENTED.

The Marchesa Deauvon di Monte spoke for the Italian Council of Women and said that the sunset she had seen on the Great Salt Lake had never been surpassed by any she had witnessed in Italy. She had always heard much of the hospitality of the American people, and now had had good opportunity to extend it. She expressed special pleasure in Salt Lake's reception.

The program of toasts ended with a short poem by Mrs. Ruth M. Fox, expressing the motto of the National Council, "Lead Kindly Light," and bringing its sentiment into the lines of her poem.

It was nearly midnight, the program was brought to an end, Mrs. Wells making a closing speech in which she expressed the hope that only the pleasantest memories should be taken away by the visitors. The committees accompanied their guests to the train, where national farewells were taken, all pronouncing the experience one of the most pleasurable and interesting of their journey.

Some interesting bits were picked up from individuals among the distinguished party. The Baroness von Platin of Sweden, said with much pride that the Swedish government had made an appropriation of $3,000 to defray the expenses of the two women delegates to the Quinquennial at Canada. She said she believed this was the first government recognition of the importance of these great gatherings and that the Swedish women were very proud of the honor.

Miss Von Platin, and says that it is only abroad that the unmarried women of her country assume their titles. She spoke of the important work being accomplished along humanitarian lines in Sweden, and has herself been most interested in the settlement work in the east end, and said that King Edward had given a generous fund for the same work in Sweden. The Baroness is the author of a biographical work, the life of Henry Stead, and also of expressions upon social questions.

Miss Sade American, president of the Jewish Council of Women, arrived from Colorado yesterday in time to take part in the entertainment. She spoke appreciatively of the kind welcome given her here at her visit of several years ago, and said that President Snow had placed at her disposition a special train to Salt Lake on which 50 visitors went out to the resort, and that other hospitalities, also, were given in her memory.

Among the distinguished guests present from whom the limited time prevented expression, were Mrs. Martha H. Cannon, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Grannis, president of the National Christian League; Miss Marion B. Blackie of Scotland, Sade American, and many others. A number of Utah women, also, who had been listed to respond to toasts were also omitted.

LIST OF COMMITTEES.

The local committees were made up of representative women, and on behalf of the Relief society, Utah's largest society of women, two ladies were sent to Ogden to meet the visitors. Mrs. Ida Smoot Dusenberry and Mrs. Annie Wells Cannon. Among the other members of committees were Mrs. J. B. Hanchett, Mrs. Joseph Cohen, Young Ladies' Mutual Improvement Association—Mrs. Emmeline B. Wells, Mrs. Ruth M. Fox, Mrs. Julia M. Brixen, Miss Edin Wallace, Miss Augusta W. Grant, Mrs. Mae T. Nyström, Miss Ann M. Cannon, Mrs. Susie Young Gates, and all members of the general board.

NATIONAL WOMEN'S RELIEF SOCIETY.

Mrs. Bathsheba W. Smith, president; Mrs. Ida S. Dusenberry, Mrs. Phoebe Y. Beattie, Mrs. Hattie W. Harker, Mrs. Clarissa S. Williams, Mrs. Minnie H. James, and all members of the general board; Mrs. Ida Smoot Dusenberry.

THE PAVING BILL NOT PAID.

Patrick J. Moran, the official contractor, talked out in class last night when the board of public works held up his estimates submitted on the resurfacing of Main street. The board refused to allow the estimates because Moran failed to carry out an order issued by the board of public works held up his estimates submitted on the resurfacing of Main street. Contractor Declares He is Being Made a Punching Bag for Aggrieved Members.

Squabble Between Engineer and Public Works Committee Assigned as Reason for Non-payment of Contract.

The resolution was carried which was introduced by C. D. Rookledge last week refusing to pay Moran until he complied with the order of the board, which was in accordance with the plans and specifications. Moran will have to abide by this, the board says. He can either tear up the sidewalk and leave an expansion joint between it and the curb, or the board will hold out enough money to pay for the work at the expense of the contractor.

Moran called attention to the clause in his contract that the opinion of the city engineer on technicalities shall be final. Chairman J. G. McKee, who formed the contractor that the expansion joint was not a technicality, but called for it in the plans.

CALLS IT SPITE WORK.

"Just because you fellows and the mayor and the city engineer can't get along together, you decide to take your spite out on the contractor," Moran said.

"We get along all right, Mr. Moran," Chairman McKee replied.

"You can't tell me anything about it," Moran said. "I have followed it to the letter and I have completed the work and think that it is only fair to the city and to the taxpayers. I have submitted two estimates that amount to more than $35,000 and you are unwilling to allow me any of it because of the petty dispute between yourselves and the city engineer. If I had stopped work when the board ordered me to, you wouldn't have had the money to pay me. I have done my work according to contract and you have not paid me a cent for it and I don't think you should pay me a penny more until you have paid me what you owe me. I have done my work according to contract and you have not paid me a cent for it and I don't think you should pay me a penny more until you have paid me what you owe me."

HOW TROUBLE AROSE.

This statement ended the controversy and the board laid Moran's estimates on the table. The trouble arose when the board ordered Moran to place an expansion joint between the sidewalk and the curb. When Kelsey saw what Moran was doing he got the mayor and they went to the board and ordered him to stop. The board is willing to pay Moran for the work of re-inforcing the pipe under the railroad tracks, but it claims no responsibility for any of the other work.

ROBBED WHILE DRUNK.

Andrew Hilga's Double Trouble Develops While in Jail.

It was only when Andrew Hilga was taken, while in a bibulous mood, into the care of the police last night that was learned that he had been robbed of $7 and a watch, and that he was through the information given by two eye-witnesses to the throttling hold-up that two suspects were arrested. Hilga was found on West Temple street last night by Patrolman Slater in a condition that suggested the police station as the best place for him. When taken to headquarters Hilga told a rambling story of having been robbed, and in such a way that little credence could be placed in his story. Humanitarian Wants Troughs Placed in Streets for Horses

The "News" today received the following communication:

In providing drinking fountains upon the streets for the thirsty waterman the city can be found, but with the pure mountain water running in the modern sanitary fountains to be placed in twenty locations in the business district no better relief from the oppressive heat of the sun beating upon the pavements can be found. But something has been forgotten. The freedom of this city from mad dogs is undoubtedly due to the fact that water is provided for them in the ditches throughout the town. But what of the horses?

In one location in the entire business portion of the city is a drinking place for them provided. This is the fountain presented to the city and placed near the City and County building quite a distance from the main traveled roads. Perhaps never before in the history of the city were so many horses employed at the hardest sort of work imposed upon them. Great excavations are being dug in almost every block. In each case it means that the heavily loaded wagons must be pulled from the bottom of the pit and hauled away only to return some after time for a repetition of the task.

And nowhere during the day may they be stopped for a drink of water, of which they have no appearance so often indicates their need.

One contracting firm has placed a trough in South Temple street, and it from a fire hydrant. Many times during the day horses passing disregard the reins of their drivers and make for the trough, tugging at their check reins in a manner that tells how eager they are for the water.

When the matter was brought to the attention of a member of the council a short time ago, he declared that the placing of horse troughs in the business sections would put this city back forty years, would make it look like a country village. It would be provincial. It is in advance of humanity has been lost sight of, then the people of this city should go back and begin again. To provide water for pedestrians is a most sensible effort. But man may help himself. If he becomes thirsty he can always seek a place where water may be found. But with a horse it is so different. He must plod along through a long working day with parched throat, going where he is driven, dependent wholly upon the kindness of his master, who may or may not drive him to the only fountain in the city once or twice a day. If in advance of humanity that he will not be driven to that out of the way place for by so doing his driver loses time and at the same time seems to be the greatest effort of all.

It is a matter resting with the council. Small troughs for the horses be installed? HUMANITARIAN.
