

ing for the old faith. We hold that God is the same as He was, and that He will bestow the same blessings now as were formerly bestowed. This is a good faith in the midst of the trouble and confusion that exist. If it is true that God has restored the ancient powers and gifts, it would indeed be a good thing. And even if it were not a reality it would be good to contend for the faith of ancient times. It could certainly harm nobody to say that God hears prayers, that He is not deaf, but that He will answer the supplications of the most humble of His children. In these days of dreary darkness and dreary ignorance concerning God, it is good to be able to say that He has not deserted the human family.

Our endeavor is to stem the great wave of unbelief. It is a wave. As we in the summer have a wave of heat and in the winter a wave of freezing cold, so in the spiritual world there are different waves, and now a wave of infidelity is sweeping over the world. It is good to stand firm. I say, God lives. He hears and will answer our prayers.

The time is not far distant when the promise referred to by the previous speaker will be fulfilled. But great changes must first take place. We lift our voices of warning that judgments are at the threshold, and unless the world repent, the wrath of God will certainly be poured out.

The speaker bore a strong and eloquent testimony to the truth of the Gospel of Christ. He knew that it came from God. There is no barrier, no intervenor, between God and man, except Jesus Christ. The humblest man or woman can go to the Lord and receive knowledge for himself or herself. This is the faith we try to instill in the minds of men. And when everybody is guided by the Spirit, there is no danger of anybody being deluded. It is God's design that all should know for themselves. People are of no use except they have a personal knowledge of what is right and wrong, and only as far as they possess this knowledge can they become a united power for good.

The speaker exhorted his hearers to seek to obtain knowledge and to live so that the Spirit of God might rest down upon them.

The choir sang the anthem: "Father, let thy blessings at parting be upon us."

Benediction by Bishop W. B. Preston.

THE NEXT LEGISLATURE.

Although sufficient was known and published yesterday in these columns to show how the election had gone here and elsewhere, still the returns were not complete while from some points they were entirely wanting.
