BEGIN AT HOME.

Cheerfulness, and a confident and courageous trust in the future, are qualities that all people should cultivate. But a disposition to ignore evil conditions that exist, that produce widespread distress, and that can and ought to be remedied, should not be indulged in. The truth is always all-powerful in the long run. There is no such thing as permanent success in denying or ignoring it. It should be recognized and frankly confessed, and then conformed to.

A day or two ago there appeared in these columns an announcement of the organization of a Bureau of Information, whose chief object was to labor for the development of the resources of Utah by inducing the investment of capital and an influx of population. In referring to the material possibilities of our young State, the language of the prospectus of the Bureau was enthusiastic to the verge of the grandiloquent, and was well calculated to make a stranger believe that we have in these valleys great riches of easiest access.

And this is true. We have here in Utah riches of inestimable extent, and it is not difficult for man to put himself in possession of them. But the newspapers of this city have, within a few days, published facts not easily reconcilable with this statement, in the estimation of a stranger. The local press has told how two hundred suffering families applied for a moiety of the thousand dollars bequeathed to the poor of this city by the late Fred H. Auerbach, and accounts have been given of the poverty and suffering of many of these families, which would better correspond with the destitution seen in the old world, than with the conditions that do or ought to exist here.

Then there is the tax list for this year, which enumerates, in this county alone, about seven thousand pieces of real estate that are to be sold for taxes. This short tale is sufficiently eloquent, and its significance is sufficiently obvious. Then there is the army of unemployed men who would gladly accept work at any price, and to this showing might be added the multitude of people who are receiving, through church and other private channels, charitable aid.

What consistency is there in publishing broadcast throughout the continent, glowing accounts of the resources and possibilities of Utah, her attractions to the home seeker, etc., while the above described conditions, in her most populous and prosperous counties, remain without a remedy? Common sense would indicate the wisdom of providing homes for the homeless, and employment for the unemployed, who are here already, before bringing to the State any more of either class.

With genuine admiration for the patriotism and public spirit of the gentlemen who have established the Bureau of Information, the NEWS ventures to offer to them a suggestion or two. There are many wealthy men right here in Utah; let some of them be called upon, and shown where they can invest money profitably to themselves and in a manner that would furnish employment to labor. Let them be persuaded to organize and set on foot new industries and enterprises.

There are many families in the State who have no homes, and there are many owners of lands who are anxious to sell. Let these classes be put in communication with each other, and particularly let the land owner be prevailed upon to make terms which the home seeker can reach. No better plan than this for colonizing unoccupied lands can easily be formed.

If a Utah capitalist cannot be induced to invest in Utah enterprises, how can we expect to prevail upon an Eastern or an English capitalist to do so? If homeless people in Utah cities cannot be induced to settle on the vacant lands in the State, how can we expect to induce desirable immigrants from other states to do so?

Common sense again suggests that the Bureau begin at home; that it first take up a labor with home capitalists, land owners and home seekers; but it do something to relieve the congested labor market at home; that, in short, it cleanse the inside of the platter before polishing the outside.

THE ELECTION CONTEST.

The hearing before the State Supreme court today on the validity of the late election, was a very important proceeding, but there does not seem to be much public anxiety as to its outcome. The fear that the will of the people is to be set aside on a series of flimsy technicalities does not appear to be widely prevalent.

Another thing is quite noticeable in this connection: Very few of the persons who would be benefitted by a reversal of the people's will, are manifesting either open or active sympathy with the attempt to accomplish that result. The people expressed their wishes at the ballot box with such clearness and emphasis as to make it an act of hardihood to attempt to defeat them.

The court can, we confidently believe, be trusted to make a proper disposition of the foundations upon which the contest rests.

"FAITH CURES" NOT MIRACLES.

A New York physician, Dr. Shrady, has investigated the so-called miraculous cures of Schrader the alleged divine healer, and gives his views to the public through a new York paper. It is interesting inasmuch as it is the first time, we believe, that a scientist has taken the trouble of noticing the phenomenon seriously. Generally these so-called healers are simply ignored, a bad policy in view of the popularity they sometimes obtain. Dr. Shrady is said to be one of New York's leading physicians and the editor of a medical journal of recognized standing, and his views are entitled to consideration.

He admits that there are numerous cases of healing by Schrader. He relates a case of a man with rheumatism. The patient had not walked in four months. Physicians had labored in vain over him. The healer struck the town and the man read of his cures. One morning at daybreak the man crept from his bed, and alone, unknown to the rest of the family, started on the road to the healer's house. It was two miles, but he half walked and half crawled it. When in sight of the healer's house he straightened up and ran. There was a line forming, and the man had to stand with other cripples for three hours until the healer touched him. When the "divine hands" were laid upon him he sobbed with joy and had to be carried out, so great was his emotion. But when borne back home he was well, and though weak from long lying in bed, he was bedridden no longer.

The doctor argues, however, that there is not, properly speaking, anything miraculous in this circumstance. The patient was really cured before he saw Schrader. If, the doctor says, the sufferer had made the same effort for his family physician, had crawled into the street and risen to his feet by mortal effort, the muscles and the nerves would have begun to strengthen, and in a few days he would have been well. Whenever the influence of Schrader, the doctor thinks, is beneficial, it is owing to the faith and the efforts of the patient. A soft-hearted person you can make cry by telling him a sad story; you can make him laugh with a merry one, and can arouse him to anger with a tale of wrong. In the same way susceptible persons can be influenced by "healers." They are told that they are well, and they will straighten up and walk away rejoicing.

Whether this is all there is to the alleged cures of Schrader and other similar healers must be left to those interested in the investigation. It should be pointed out, however, that there is an essential difference between these alleged miracles and the works of power manifested both in ancient and modern times among the people of God. The latter had the great object in view to establish the claims of the servants of the Lord and the truth of their message to the world, and also to strengthen the faith of the believers. Miraculous power was the divine seal on the credentials of the messengers and a proof of authority to administer in the ordinances of the Church, even to the extent of forgiving sins on earth. And their power to remove sickness was not limited to cases of rheumatism or nervous ailments, but it extended over death, the grave and sepulchre. Here is a vast difference. Schrader, Schlatter and the others never claimed to be the bearers of a divine message to earth. They have no commission the genuiness of which must be established by accompanying miraculous gifts. Their power does not go very far. The so-called sacred water of Lourdes, or the whitened bones of some Catholic saint are known to have exercised a similar power.

Sciences is awakening to the fact that the belief of a patient is a powerful agent for life or for death. Dr. Shrady refers to the methods of a popular French physician. When this doctor is called he takes with him a medicine case. He finds the patient sick with diphtheria. Now comes the wonderful part. The doctor places a bottle of medicine against the affected part, in this instance the patient's throat, and holds it there quietly for five minutes. "We are now giving medicine by absorption," says he. "This medicine permeates the system and acts upon the throat. It is very powerful. It acts immediately while administered in this way. You will soon go to sleep." And the patient does go to sleep. His mind, lulled by the feeling of the little bottle at his throat, passes away into slumberland, and the doctor meanwhile instructs the nurse how to take care of the patient. As soon as he awakens and gets restless the bottle is reapplied. The nursing goes on, and the patient gradually recovers.

This, the doctor asserts, has succeeded in every case, except one out of eighty sick people, and their diseases ran all the way from gout to fevers, from cold to serious internal troubles.

The inference is evident. The natural powers with which human beings are endowed are so wonderful as to almost resemble the supernatural power sometimes manifested by those holding the Priesthood of the Lord. The effects are sometimes so similar as to nearly deceive even the elect. There are, however, marked differences, and it is necessary to be aware of these in order not to be mislead by appearances.

UTAH IN AN ENGLISH NEWSPAPER.

A special correspondent of the London Telegraph has been making a tour of America, and writing letters to his journal about different parts and features of this country. He visited this city, had interviews with prominent persons here, and has attempted to write about existing conditions in Utah.

He dwells at length on the subject of woman suffrage and some of its results, treating it in a vein which may be called witty in England, but is very insipid to an American newspaper reader. He also says considerable about the abandonment of polygamy, interspersing his observations with what are evidently intended to be jokes and witticisms, but on this side of the water are liable to be mistaken for almost anything else.

There is not much intelligence in his Utah letter, neither does it contain any considerable amount of malice. It is the production of a shallow but good natured individual whose allotment of gray matter under the skull was insufficient to enable him to comprehend what he was looking at while he was in Utah, or see in it anything more than material for a few remarks intended to be facetious. That so great a journal as the Telegraph should give its valuable space to such nonsense is a matter of surprise to an American, whose practical mind would naturally incline to the opinion that facts, intelligently stated, would be far more acceptable to the reader.

ONLY NEW MEN NEED APPLY.

If a Washington dispatch is to be believed, presidential appointees will be selected from timber which has not heretofore been used to prop up the civil service of the country. In other words, Republicans who held office under Harrison but were removed or supplanted under the Cleveland administration, will not be selected to serve their country under the McKinley administration. They are hopeless back numbers, out of date and of no use in positions of honor and emolument.

New men are to be chosen. So many of those helped to elect McKinley that the offices to be filled are insufficient in number to go around, even when all the old war horses are relegated to the pasture of the superannuated.

This announcement will bring sadness to a number of hearts in Utah. There are several nice places to be filled in this State by President McKinley; and there are a number of old friends of the Harrison administration who would like to be designated for them. But new men only need apply.

It will be observed that the truth of all this depends upon the veracity of a Washington correspondent, and that he may not have told the truth, which is sometimes overlooked by his fraternity.

Dr. Miller,

Mr. A. L. Armstrong, an old druggist, and a prominent citizen of this enterprising town, says: "I sell some forty different kinds of cough remedies, but have never in my experience sold so much of any one article as I have of Ballard's Horehound Syrup. All who use it say it is the most perfect remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, and all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, they have ever tried." It is a specific for Croup and Whooping Cough. I will relieve a Cough in one minute. Contains no opiates. Sold by Z. C. M. I. Drug Store.

Business Suits

For

Business Men.

The Clothing Manufacturers we buy of are the best in America. They have the skill, the capital, the experience, that enables them to make the best. We make the most careful selections from samples shown by these men—so, that you might say that we get the cream of the clothing-milk. No cheap tailor in this town has the capital or skill to compete with our $20 suits; if he had he would not be a cheap tailor. Our $20 suits will fit and wear as well as the best $15 suit you get of a tailor—and our $15 suits will match the best $25 tailor made suits you ever saw—while half the tailors in town could not equal our $20 suits for fit and finish if they tried a year.

EVERYBODY IN UTAH TO READ THIS

WHERE IS THERE A MORE BEAUTIFUL lot on more beautiful city in the world than Salt Lake? Where is there another of its size that so large a proportion of all business crossing the American continent stop to visit? Go to any mining camp in Nevada, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming or Colorado and ask the miner and the mining man where they expect to live when they make a stake, and almost invariably they will say in Salt Lake; or go to any city in the East, let the people know you are from Utah and a large per cent of them will say, "I have always had a desire to go to Salt Lake City to live." Now is it not reasonable to presume, with every one speaking in praise, that this city is destined to have a steady, healthy growth and become a great city. Today it has one thousand and one attractions which is the greatest? Would not the verdict of ninety-nine persons out of every hundred be the finest salt Lake and the saltair Pavilion, with its great bathing in the world, visited by from seven to twenty-five thousand people in a day. Is it not evident there will be built here, in the near future, hotels, restaurants, cottages, apartments, cottages and parks, with shade trees, lawns, fountains, drive ways, etc., where fourteen will go during the hot months to enjoy a cool breeze from the lake. When you consider that saltair Cottage is but a few minutes from salt Lake and the saltair Pavilion, and that Saltair Cottage City begins at a point on the Lake and extends along the railway towards Salt Lake City, giving a frontage of one and one quarter miles along the lake.

I will sell one in the plat until January the 1st, 1897, for $150 each, cash payments to cease, weekly payments 25 cents. Money refunded. Call at office and get a fine three-colored lithograph map. To accommodate those who are busy during the day I will keep my office open until 8:30 p. m.
