

FEMININE FLOTSAM.

For Health, Grace and Beauty.

A science whose superiority over the much abused system of dressing is being demonstrated by the healthfulness of those adopting it, is the regular practice of proper bodily exercise and proper breathing in connection with the observation of simple hygienic rules that aid in the work of restoration without necessity for any radical sacrifice of material comfort. Mrs. A. L. Johnson of 333 First South street, who is the local exponent of this simple science of health culture in a recent interview said: "There is no form of physical ailment that this method can not cure. Indeed most of our ailments especially lung and throat troubles could be overcome by a knowledge of proper breathing. It is recreation that moves the body. When we breathe only from the lungs we are soon exhausted, because of the supply being limited."

The knowledge of abdominal breathing corrects this and gives a wonderful increase of force and vitality. We should also learn to control the movements of our body, to relax muscles and joints, giving the entire physical structure freedom from tension and immobility. Such knowledge with a little practice will enable us to regain the elasticity of youth, giving grace and easy movement to all parts of the body. Grace of carriage, the development of physical beauty, clearness and sweetness of voice, is obtained through this system and every one can gain its knowledge and apply it daily with practical results. As we advance in the practice of the rules, we gain health and strength undreamed of. The form becomes erect, the eye bright, the voice sweet and clear. Few can realize the actual benefit to be gained from this knowledge."

Mrs. Johnson stated that she has had patients suffering from rheumatism, paralysis, catarrh and other ailments entirely cured in a few weeks through the scientific application of the system of health culture, which she teaches, and the knowledge that there is a simple and natural science which will restore health without recourse to drugs, scalpel or knife, will doubtless be hailed with relief by many who have long groined helpless and hopeless under the bondage of old systems of material medicine.

BEAUTY'S GRAVEST FOE.

An Ill-Temper is Always Sure to Ruin Its Victim.

Bad temper and worry will trace more wrinkles in one night than hot and cold bathing and massage and lotions can wash out in a year's faithful application. Physicians assert that an immense amount of nerve-force is expended in every fit of bad temper; that when one little part of the nervous system gets wrong the face first reveals it. The eyes begin losing the luster of youth, muscles become flabby, the skin refuses to contract accordingly, and the inevitable result is wrinkles, femininity's fiercest and most tedious foe. There is no use attempting to reason with a woman about the evil effects of ill-temper while she is in an ugly mood. She knows perfectly well that it is bad form; that it savors of the coarse and undisciplined; that it is weak and belittling and immoral; and that it hurls her enemies to her feet.

But she does not stop at just that time to think about it, and to remind her of the fact only adds fuel to the flames.

tail lines around her mouth, she will probably think twice before again forgetting herself. For no matter what she asserts to the contrary, woman prizes youth and beauty above every other gift the gods hold it in their power to bestow upon mortals.

Little Miss Mackay's Jewel Collection.

Mrs. Clarence Mackay's wee mite of a daughter has a complete collection of jewels all her own. Jewelry is young Mrs. Mackay's pet fad, and so she has not only purchased for her week-old babe the daintiest layette ever made for a New York baby, but a collection of jewels costing far up into the thousands.

In the first place, the baby herself owns three necklaces of great beauty. One is a string of small but exquisitely matched pearls. This one chain of pearls cost over $100. Then the baby has a necklace of pink coral beads, which is very costly because of its particularly beautiful shade of pink. Her other necklace is made of turquoise, cut in tiny hearts and set in rims of silver.

For every one of the four dozen dresses which the baby owns she has a different set of studs. They are used in place of buttons and generally match in color the ribbons which trim the little gowns, which they are worn. Some of the little ribbons are mounted in rims of gold, or the gems are mounted in the center of a circular stud of white enamel. There are many sets of pearl studs and very pretty ones of turquoise. The enamel studs—many of them shaped in fine flowers with a tiny real jewel for the center. One extremely pretty set consists of four tiny, blue enameled forget-me-nots with little diamonds for the centers. There are also white enamel daisies and wee pink wild roses with diamond centers.

Though little Miss Mackay will not walk for some time to come, yet she has solid gold buckles on her silk socks and soft kid slippers. The buckles vary in shape. The most artistic are little gold bowknots.

DOVES ON HER WEDDING TRAIN.

Lord Chesterfield and Enid Wilson's Marriage.

Lord Chesterfield and Miss Enid Wilson were married in London Wednesday afternoon. The ceremony was attended by a large and distinguished gathering. The bride is a cousin of the famous Wilsons of Tranby Croft. She wore a satin train embroidered with silver lilac, doves and stars. The bridesmaids wore scarlet coats with white capes and felt hats. The groom's gifts to the bridesmaids were his muffs of sable, and his gift to his bride was a diamond tiara and a check for $10,000. The present card of Chesterfield is Sir Evelyn Francis Scudamore Stanhope. He is not a direct descendant of Philip Dormer Stanhope, the fourth earl of Chesterfield, famous as a statesman and politician, but best remembered for his letters to his son. The great Chesterfield died without issue and was succeeded by his cousin from whom the tenth and present earl descended. The country seat of the Stanhopes is called Holmes Lacey, and is one of the most beautiful of the historic places of rural England.

The most substantial of Miss Wilson's gifts is the lease of a house in Grosvenor Gardens, London, for forty-eight years. It is a good house as well as a very pretty one, with lofty rooms and handsome decorations. This gift is from Miss Wilson's father.
