CENSUS ENUMERATORS.

The census takers, who will commence their labors on Tuesday, June 1st, have quite a task before them. They should take pride and pleasure in having their reports accurate and complete. By diligence, care and dispatch they can accomplish this with little difficulty. The schedules are sufficiently plain for any intelligent person to understand and fill up as required.

There is one point, however, to which we direct attention, which is not perhaps made clear in the form prepared. The inhabitants of each precinct must be grouped together, and a distinction made between the people living in a town and those scattered outside but in the same precinct. For instance, take the town of Nephi. In Nephi precinct. When the census of the town proper is finished, the enumerator should write: "Here ends the town of Nephi in Nephi precinct;" when the census of the people outside of the town is finished, write: "Here ends Nephi precinct."

The object is to keep the record of the frontier cities and towns and those outside of corporate limits, but in the same precinct, separate and distinct. A little reflection will enable the enumerators to perceive what is desired and to fill up the schedule according to proper form.

NO TERRITORIAL FAIR.

We have received the following minutes of a special meeting of the directors of the Deseret Agricultural and Manufacturing Society with a request for publication:

At a special meeting of the Directors of the D. A. and M. Society, held on Saturday evening in the City Hall, the subject of holding a Territorial Fair in this city, this fall, was freely and fully discussed, all the directors participating in the discussion.

The Society being without funds and not owning a suitable building to hold an exhibition in, and in view of the cost of fitting up places for the proper and safe display of in and out door exhibits, it was deemed, under the circumstances, inadvisable to attempt to hold a fair during the coming fall.

Aside from the expenses of these exhibitions, which must be met by the Society, any public resource set aside for that purpose, such undertakings require a great deal of the personal supervision and care of the directors, (who receive nothing for their labors) and in view of possible losses arising from rain, fire, and other unforeseen causes and being anxious to preserve the exhibits from damage, the exhibitors, representing all the exhibitors, are necessarily very great.

As these annual territorial fairs are for the general good of all classes of citizens, stimulating as they are calculated to do, the development of our immense resources and exciting commendable enterprise all over the Territory, regrets were freely expressed because the late Legislative Assembly failed to appropriate a necessary sum for such exhibitions.

All these considerations taken into account, a motion unanimously prevailed that the directors of the society cannot consistently undertake to hold a Territorial Fair this fall.

We regret very much that the directors have been compelled to come to the conclusion expressed above. Exhibitions of the products of the Territory are calculated to accomplish a vast amount of good. Farmers and stock raisers in witnessing the results of skill, experience and intelligent direction of labor, are stirred up to thought and emulation, and the result is, better crops and finer animals. Local manufacturers receive an impetus by the presentation of their handwork to the public eye, and the inventive receive suggestions for improvement and new undertakings. The public taste is cultivated by inspecting works of art and the beauties of nature, and people of all ages and both sexes are profited and encouraged in seeing what has been done, and reflecting on what can be done with the vast resources of our mountain home.

There were many demands upon the limited revenue of the Territory at the recent session of the Legislature. The committee on claims and appropriations spent much time in considering them and making a selection of the most pressing. That they did not report favorably on the requested appropriation for a Territorial fair was not because they were opposed to such exhibitions, or failed to recognize the benefit of such displays, but because they considered other demands more essential to the public good, and perceived the consequence of a failure to see the responsibility of the Territory to pay the expenses of such exhibitions.

We think, however, that the sum necessary for the erection of a permanent building for the D. A. and M. Society—which is a Territorial creation, the work of the Legislative Assembly, and for the cost of a yearly fair and its premiums, would be money well and profitably expended. We hope that by the time of the next meeting of the Assembly the territorial finances will be in such a condition as to warrant reasonable outlay for these purposes, and that the members will appreciate not only the importance of the claims of the Society, but the propriety of sustaining it in its public work for the public good, by substantial support out of the public funds. We are sorry that there is to be no Territorial Fair in 1880.

ARIZONA'S PRE-HISTORIC RUINS.

ARIZONA, where the people are establishing themselves as successful tillers of the soil, shepherds and stockraisers, also contains the ruins of the ancient people whose history is recorded in the Book of Mormon. That Territory has been hitherto famous only for the struggles of the white settlers and the achievements of soldiers in subduing the wild and ferocious Apaches. But to the antiquarian and explorer it will be found a rich field for archaeological investigation. The following description of some of the ruins, called prehistoric, of the race which has disappeared from the land, is from the pen of Dr. F. T. Lockwood, and published in the Germantown Telegraph. It will be interesting to many of our readers, especially to those who can see in its sentences testimony in support of the sacred record, exhumed from the hill Cumorah and translated by the gift and power of God:

"Among the most prominent traces of a past civilization are the remains of towns or cities in the Rio-Salinas (Salt River) valley, where remain to be seen undecayed parts of many buildings, houses mostly—these remains extending in some places two or three miles, showing the cities to be of considerable size and populous. In one of these prehistoric towns (situated six miles east of Phenix, county of Maricopa County) is a fort-like building, two hundred and seventy-five feet long and one hundred and thirty feet wide. It was surrounded by a high wall, and the remains of the town proper from assaults by invading foes, and these, doubtless, surrounding Indians. Thirty feet of masonry surrounds the wall, and at a distance appears a mound, the walls are from six to ten feet high, and about six feet thick, and the great thickness of these concrete walls may be inferred from the design of the structure. Traces of several cross-walls are visible, also, outer wall surrounding it. On the south side, this outer wall is thirty feet distant from the main wall, on the east sixty feet, on the north one hundred feet, and on the west about sixty feet. Remains on the north and northwest indicate wings, used doubtless as guardhouses. Near the south wall is the remains of a ditch, and a little farther south is a large reservoir; and around about the town are remains of several reservoirs. The pioneer excavations of the ruins and reservoirs must have been made in engineering, as recent surveys indicate, since no attempt could improve the location, etc.

In some places the main canal made for conveying the water from Salt River to this old town (or city) is fifty feet wide and eight to ten feet deep, and runs for miles from the beginning of this great canal it was divided into three branches, obviously for the irrigation of the greater part of the immense tract, and that surround the town remains.

In many other parts of the Gila valley, messes, are found remains of irrigation canals, broken pottery, buildings, towns, villages, etc. Near 'Gila bend' are the 'Painted Rocks,' whereupon are carved various hieroglyphs, representing rude, many birds, reptiles and other real or imaginary objects, checkerboards, camels, turtles, with semi-circular unknown figures, chess pieces, etc. It is supposed that intelligent tourist of an intelligent prehistoric race.

This noted object of curiosity is situated 125 miles from Fort Yuma (on the Colorado river), near the Gila river, and nine miles from the spot where the Oatman family were murdered by a few renegade Indians (supposed to belong to the Fort to tribe) in 1831. One hundred miles farther up the Gila many scattered ruins are to be found. Here, outside of the ruins, are the debris of time-decayed houses, towns; here on some hill and mountain are the remains of what have been high stone walls, and in many places stone axes, stone hammers, stone metals (for corn-grinding). In and around some of these old ruins are springs, and in some kinds, painted and engraved, painted and unplastered; the painting and glazing upon some of these relics is still bright, as if freshly applied. It would be no too much to say, that the knowledge of what this paint was made, and still more so the history of its use, and the people for whom it was made.

But follow me now, intelligent reader, to one of the most conspicuous and famous of these many ruins—to the 'Great House'—the 'Great House.' Its concrete walls are now nearly forty feet high and five feet thick at their base. This old castle is sixty-three by forty-five feet, and about four miles (south) from the Gila river and twelve miles from Florence, the county town of Pinal (Pe-nal) county, and is surrounded by a high wall, and in some places twenty to forty miles in extent. The great irrigating canal that was made to convey water from the Gila to various parts of this great plateau, and to this old castle and its environs, begins about thirty miles up and east from this old central ruin. From the Pima Indians, who now occupy this part of the Territory, no clue can now be obtained as to when and by whom these ruins were made. The public taste is cultivated by inspecting works of art and the beauties of nature, and people of all ages and both sexes are profited and encouraged in seeing what has been done, and reflecting on what can be done with the vast resources of our mountain home.

There were many demands upon the limited revenue of the Territory at the recent session of the Legislature. The committee on claims and appropriations spent much time in considering them and making a selection of the most pressing. ## TOWNSHIP AND MINERAL EXTERIOR.

Suggestions of the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

WASHINGTON, 26.—The Secretary of the Interior has transmitted to the Senate a report from the Commissioner of the General Land Office on the subject of entries of town sites on mineral lands.

Commissioner Williamson, in his report, first gives briefly the outlines of the practice of the general land office in relation to the subject, citing a number of cases which have already been decided, one of which is mentioned for the purpose of illustrating the difficulties involved in cases where town sites are made upon lands located, purchased and valuable for placer mines.

He then says: "In view of the fact that it has for many years been the law, that no title to a valid mining claim or possession could be acquired through a town site entry, and that when a surface placer claim of value existed, the townsite claimant necessarily had personal knowledge of the inapplicability of the entry of both claims upon the same grounds, I am, in the absence of accurate knowledge of the equitable claims, if any, existing in individual cases, not inclined to endorse in general application, and to be conclusively settled, what, if any equitable relief is due, or what legislation could be directed to relieve such occupiers of town sites, who would not at the same time destroy essential rights long since allowed by the law to mineral claimants." Comparing defects in the present laws, Commissioner Williamson says: "That in view of all the difficulties which seem to surround this question, and the uncertainty of title which is represented to result from the apparently unavailability construction of existing laws, such legislation should be made as would most distinctly define the respective rights of mineral and town site claimants." To this end he suggests that if new legislation be held, it should provide for the following conditions:

First.—Where mineral location of lodes or veins antedates town occupation, patents should issue without reservation to the mineral claimants.

reservation should issue to the town authorities without regard to the character of the land.

Third.—When the ground is known to be mineral, and the location of mining claims and buildings, stores, etc., proceed contemporaneously, very different questions of facts arise in every case.

When the surface occupants decide upon a permanent and organized occupation, it is in their power to immediately apply for a patent, or at least give a published notice of their claim, and file the same in the district land office, and this would be a full notice from its date to all subsequent locators of mining claims, and the rights of the town to unlocated ground should attach, and patent issue without exception in favor of still subsequent locators.

While prior locations made during the period when everything except the mining location was considered as temporary, and calculated only for temporary purposes, should not be embraced in a townsite entry, but be subject to entry and patent with any reservation by the individual owners thereof.

In conclusion, the Commissioner says: "I think that any objection to this plan, based upon the fact that valuable mineral ground may some time be patented to a town, should be subordinate to the larger and more important fact, that secured any certainty of proceedings and place of title."

The delegation to Cincinnati is believed, will vote as a unit for Bayard, notwithstanding the fact that some members are personally antagonistic towards him.

GO AS YOU PLEASE RACE.

Victorio Leaving His Followers Out of Sight.

SANTA FE, New Mexico, 26.—General Hatch, absent at Ojo Caliente on Friday morning, when he was joined by his Indian scouts who left Victorio's trail a few miles north. Hatch at once put the scouts on the trail again, the trail again to wait a day or two for his exhausted command which is nearly dismounted. Since leaving Mesquero Agency, Hatch has marched over a thousand miles, and now he is at a large number of dead animals in their track. An Indian recently killed was shown to be a Comanche, who has been cleared out by the Apaches, who have murdered 75 whites since May.
