OGDEN SOCIAL NEWS.

An event anticipated with much pleasure by the music loving community of Ogden is the appearance on Monday evening, January 13, at the Ogden tabernacle of Miss Emma Lucy Gates, Utah's talented vocalist, in connection with a male chorus of one hundred and twenty-five voices under the direction of Prof. Joseph Ballantyne. The public of Ogden will doubtless attend this musical and give Miss Gates a hearty welcome to our city. She will shortly begin a tour of the United States under Major Pond, a very eminent manager. The price of admission has been made very low, only 30 cents for reserved seats, and 25 cents for the other seats. The young ladies of the Third ward gave a very enjoyable party in the ward hall last evening, which was largely attended. Miss Alice Doxey and Henry Hill, Jr., two popular young people of this city, were married this week. Mrs. F. W. Adams and son of Salt Lake, and Miss Damon of California, were visiting with friends in Ogden this week. Miss Nellie Healy is visiting for a short time with relatives in Denver. Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Steward returned home Monday from an extended pleasure tour of the east. The home of Mrs. Craig, 1841 Twenty-fifth street, was the scene of a very pleasant party on Wednesday afternoon. "A Hard Time Tea," given by Meadames Craig and Pardon under the auspices of the M. E. Aid society, the attendance was very good and a few hours were spent very enjoyably at music and literary exercises, etc., after which delicious refreshments were served. A small admission fee was charged, which will go to the assisting of the needy of the church. Walter Herrick, of Ogden, left Thursday morning for California where he goes to do missionary work. Read T. Cannon, of Salt Lake was an Ogden visitor this week. J. V. Nelson, in a very pleasing manner, entertained the outgoing and incoming city council of Ogden on Monday last. The gentleman had prepared a long table in the fireman's hall where he served the city fathers with refreshments. Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Larkin, of St. Johns, Good county, are visiting with relatives in Ogden. The masquerade ball given Wednesday in the Union opera house by Foster's military band, was a very delightful event. There was a select crowd in attendance and one of the most pleasurable evenings of the season was spent by all present, including dancers and spectators. Prizes were given to the following: Ladies first prize, Miss Daisy Eggleston, waitress - manure set. Gents first prize, Amos T. Day, Zulu chief, silk umbrella. Ladies and gents second prizes were won by Miss Monahan and Will Tribe. The band balls are becoming very popular, and soon the band treasury will have enough to buy many new instruments needed. Miss Jessie E. Painter, a popular young lady of War, West, and Levi H. Draney, a well known young man of Plain City, were married by Justice H. C. Wardleigh. The Y. L. and Y. M. I. A. of the Lynne ward have arranged for a grand ball to be given in Southwell's hall Monday evening. Ford's full orchestra will furnish the music and a good time is assured all who attend. The Bohemian Dancing club, one of Ogden's leading social functions, have invitations out for a grand ball to be given in Dignan's dancing academy Tuesday evening, January 12. This will be the first social hop given by the club during the season. Dignan's augmented orchestra will furnish the music. Mrs. E. N. Kinn, of Terrace is visiting friends in Ogden. Miss Isabel Todd, of Hoover, and John Carver, of Soda Springs, were married Monday by Justice H. C. Wardleigh.

PROVO SOCIAL NEWS.

Provo, Jan. 11.—The Sorosis met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Mattie Osborne. The president, Mrs. Cordelia B. Beck, presided. The following instructive program was rendered: Club Courtesy—Mrs. Hannah Tucker, Dewey's "School and Society"—Miss Ruby Christensen. Dewey's Visit to Provo—Miss Alice Reynolds. Mrs. Elmore Warner read a very interesting paper entitled, "To Avenue Trafalgar." The club adjourned to meet January 15, at the same place. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bullock have returned to Provo from Anaconda, Montana, with the intention of making this city their permanent home. The "63" was entertained Tuesday.

LEAVES FROM OLD ALBUMS.

This interesting group, taken from an old picture, shows three of President Young's daughters who appeared as the statues in the original production of the play of "The Marble Heart," at the Salt Lake Theater about the middle thirties. The central figure is that of Miss Fannie Young, afterwards Mrs. Thatcher, the one on the left is Miss Rinda Young, afterwards Mrs. Conrad, and the one on the right Miss Emma Young, afterwards Mrs. McIntosh. Neither of the three is now living.

The play of "The Marble Heart" had a wonderful run and was first brought out here by Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Irwin. Hon. John T. Caine played the part of Volage in this production. evening by Miss Miriam Nelke, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Schwab. The ladies' prize was awarded to Mrs. Rose Searle and the gentlemen's prize to Mr. George Havercamp. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses. The Provo Terpsichore gave a grand ball Thursday night at the Mozart pavilion, attended by a large number of Provo's society people. Mrs. E. A. Wedgwood of Salt Lake City visited friends in Provo this week. Miss Fawn Twelves was a Salt Lake visitor this week. Miss Pearl Pierce has returned from a visit to relatives in Salt Lake City. D. A. Swan Jr. has gone to Salt Lake City to reside.

The first meeting of the Parents' class after the holidays held Wednesday evening in college hall was a very successful one. Professor Marshall of the University of Utah delivered a most instructive and interesting lecture on "Literature for the Home." He took the position that parents must provide for the physical, mental and spiritual training of their children, and reading good literature gives breadth of thought, correct language, a love of purity and a hatred of vice. The desire for stories on the part of the children can be made a tremendous leverage for the development of the soul. The speaker depicted the stories that create a sympathy for criminals and criminal life. It is not so much the characters that are depicted as positively depraved that exert a pernicious influence, but those that are partially bad. He recommended the following books and periodicals as safe and beneficial for the young: Hans Christian Anderson's Fairy Tales, Grimm's Fairy Tales, Louisa Alcott's works, Margaret Bonnet's stories, St. Nicholas, Youth's Companion, Robinson Crusoe, History of Great Men, Abbott's Biographies, Stories of Travels, by Paul DuChauffe, Field's Poems, Nathaniel Hawthorne, and Wonder Book. President Brimhall spoke briefly, expressing the belief that if parents realized the benefit of the instruction in the class there would be a larger attendance. Miss Katie Howe rendered a piano solo and Professor Lund a vocal selection.

The Nineteenth Century club met Friday with Mrs. Rose M. Searle. The following program was rendered: "Footprints of the Dutch in the New World," Miss Fina M. Ford; "The Dutch East Indies," Mrs. Fannie S. Sutton; "Horticulture in Holland," Miss M. Alice Isely. A pleasant social was given in the Second ward meeting house Monday evening under the auspices of the M. I. A. in honor of Elder Seth Scott, who is about to leave on a mission to the southern states. An interesting program was rendered. Friday evening a ball was given in honor of Elder Scott, by a number of his friends in the Mozart pavilion, which was a very enjoyable affair.

CLUB CHAT.

The Cleofan will meet at the home of Miss Emmeline Wells next Tuesday, an interesting program is planned for the afternoon. Bishop O. F. Whitney will give a talk on "Lord Byron," with readings from Childe Harold. Daughters of the Revolution of Chicago have taken up some remarkable work, their new departure being started by the state agent, Mrs. Margarette Warren Springer, and relating to an effort to get in touch with the socialists. Mrs. Springer has hired a hall and arranged for a series of talks to which the socialists are invited. Although the feeble condition of Mrs. J. C. Croly was fully understood, the word of her death came to her many friends in this country with the shock that life's final always brings. The immediate cause of her death was heart failure, but it was preceded by a long illness, and she never fully recovered from the effects of a fall, which broke her hip over two years ago. Her seventy-second birthday occurred four days previous to her death. Mrs. Croly fought her growing weakness this autumn with the strong arm of a new medicine, going to Buffalo in October for the opening of the State Federation Convention, and her words of greeting there, which all who heard

The national annual convention of this society is announced for April next, the place of meeting to be Denver, Col. The route to Chicago for a large reception, which is to be given by the Betty Zane Chapter to the president general, Miss Adaline W. Sterling, and the general officers and board of managers, and Mrs. Croly is now at its head. Her suggestion, last year, a literary circle was started in the club. Fine classes in German are conducted by native teachers, and on the last Saturday evening of each month a reception to gentlemen is held. The club-rooms have been attractively fitted up, by contributions from the club members, and the support of the club is easily and generously provided for in the large colony of American women from which its membership is drawn.

The American Woman's Club of Berlin is founded in 1894, but some reason seems, until recently, to have been less known over here than some other clubs for women in Europe. Its present membership is close upon 300 and its Presidents have been prominent American women living in the German capital. Mrs. Runyon, wife of the American ambassador in 1894, being its first leader. Mrs. Thi was her successor, and Mrs. White is now at its head. HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS. Christmas is almost here and gift discussions are prevailing. The gift for an invalid friend or for an old lady is perplexing to choose. Sometimes one of the white embroidered Chinese shawls, an illuminated night clock, a new picture to hang in a room, which much time must be spent, a hand screen, or a pretty vase of clear glass with a Christmas rose in it—any one of these would be acceptable. If the invalid man pass much of her time in bed, one of the warm wadded-silk bed-jackets or a nightgale of flannel and lace may solve the problem. An old lady who spends much time alone in her room, and who is devoted to solitude, has greatly enjoyed through the year a grandiose gift of last Christmas. This was a lap-board for her card-playing, especially designed and made to her needs. A light, smooth piece of board a quarter of an inch thick and about eighteen by sixteen inches in dimension was covered neatly on both sides with green felt. The edges bound all round with a leather binding put on with tiny tacks. This light, convenient board, easy to handle and amply sufficient for almost any salitaire layout, would undoubtedly please some other shut-in devotee of the game that needs no partner.

At one of the weddings of the week the six bridesmaids were dressed in varying shades of pink, ranging from a delicate tint to a deep rose-color. The frocks were of crepe de Chine, and the hairdos were of pink with pink ribbons and pink shades, hats and attendants in white. A late innovation in wedding effects, and one that is highly artistic. A lovely bridal procession of a fortnight ago showed the bride's attendants in exquisite gowns of mauve, with white shades, hats and attendants in white. Some good effects in bedroom curtains are found in those of sheer muslin, plain, with three inch-wide tucks running an inch apart the same width back from the ruffle, lengthwise down the curtain. The fall of these curtains has an inch hem and one tick of the same width.

Evening dresses of crepe-like fabrics that do not wrinkle are much to be desired. The wrinkles and creases hanging them in the kitchen for a short time when the tea-kettle is boiling or the wash-boiler sending out clouds of steam. The garments should be slipped on by hand, and suspended free from contact with anything. After twenty minutes take into a room which is warm and dry. Card-playing is so popular a pastime that it is worth while to record a way to improvise felt card-tables. In a certain card club in a neighboring city every hostess has her set of felt tops. These are pieces of felt cut larger than the table which they are intended to cover, the edge finished with a hem, through which a stout elastic is run. This is spread over the table, fitting itself smooth when the rubber is properly adjusted. A large round dining-table is covered in this way for various games that would deface a polished table or in which the smooth surface would interfere. The tops, of course, can be cut to fit any table, and it should be added that the idea is most successfully carried out with round tables.

For a plain cold cream use the same formula, omitting the cucumbers, and adding four ounces of rose water. An added touch of convenience is given to the large shopping-bags of silk or velvet, if a small pocket is slipped to the hinges in which change and little things that lose themselves in the big bag may be put. Clubwomen make use of these bags for all sorts of paper and memoranda, and the inner pocket will be found useful for the same purpose. To elude quick search in the larger interior.

A delicious way to use cold turkey or chicken, which may be pigeon holed against the coming feast, is to mound the white meat with cranberry jelly. Put a layer of strained cranberry sauce in the bottom of a mould, and over this a layer of the meat, finely chopped and seasoned. Add more cranberry and another layer of meat, alternating the two till the bowl is full. Put a weight on top and set away to chill and harden. When ready to serve turn out on a dish and garnish with celery tips.
