On June 24, 1902, Frederick K. Sa-ward, Raymond Newman and Louis P. Dailey were elected directors, the muutes reciting that Howard K. Wood, one of the incorporators and sub-scribers to the stock, had assigned his scribers to the stock, had assigned his right to one share of common stock to each of the persons above named to qualify them as directors. No stock of the United States Shipbuilding com-pany, however, was issued to or placed in the name of these directors, so far as the records of the company disclose. Newman was elected president: Dailey, vice president and Seward, secretary and treasurer. Wood, Gould and Mc-Laren were, at the date of incorpora-tion, all connected with the Corpora-tion Trust company of New Jersey, and the directors were employees of said the directors were employes of said company. At this meeting the offer of Promoter John W. Young to turn over the United States Shipbuilding company the several constituent plants was submitted the formation of the several constituent plants was submitted, the ferms for the sale of the stock of the companies being as

In connection with the purchase of the stock of the Union Iron Works of San Francisco, Henry T. Scott and Irv-ing M. Scott were to agree to enter into a contract with the shipbuilding coma contract with the shipbuilding com-pany not to compete with it in its busi-ness, and not to employ their capital or to personally engage in any shipyards or shipbuilding business for the period of 10 years, and the company was to contract to engage G. W. Dickie, R. Porsythe and John T. Scott as officers or managers for five years, at annual salaries of $10,000; W. H. Gould, as mining engineer for five years at $10,-000 per year; Lawrence E. Scott as an-sistant constructor at $5,000 per annum for five years; W. P. Scott as assistant to the president of the shipbuilding company for five years at the annual salary of $5,000; H. A. Scott as assist-ant to the engineer-in-chief for five years at $6,000 per annum, and Edward Gunn as assistant chief draftsman for three years at $2,000 per year. The offer of the Harlan & Hollings-worth company, the Castern Shipbuild-ing company, the Castern Shipbuildreceiver says he is advised. The report concludes with a discus-sion of the condition of the constituent companies under the receivership, showing that the receiver had posses-sion of all but the Bath and Union plants, but claiming that so long as the present board of directors of the Bethlehem company is retained no benefit will accure to the receivership from this company. The receiver is convinced that the present interests in control are wholly hostile to the shipbuilding company, are endeavoring to fircumvent legal proceedings, and that a separate receivership is neces-sary. sary.

The offer of the Harlan & Hollings-worth company, the Eastern Shipbuild-ing company, the Crescent Shippard company and the Samuel L. Moore & Sons company also contained condi-tions disadvantageous to the purchaser. The agreement with the Bethlehem company placed the United States Shipbuilding company entirely in the company placed the United States Shipbuilding company entirely in the hands of the Bethlehem company and its principal stockholder, Charles M. Schwab, the receiver contends.

Receiver Smith then relates at length how the shipbuilding directors accept-ed the offer. Increased the capital stock, mortgaged the plants and deliv-ered bonds and stocks to Young. The receiver continues:

Chicago, Nov. 2.—His wild gesticula-tions mistaken for the frenzy of a menaic. Frank Hayden was allowed to choke to death last night. A piece of doughnut lodged in his throat, depriv-ing him of the power of speech, and when he struck himself on the back ears that with the exception of the Union iron works the subsidiary companies, taken together, had abso-lutely no working capital; but, on the contrary, their liabilities exceeded their resources in the sum of $294,919.33. The

the report says: "One of the causes was the fact that the directors parted with bonds to an amount upon which it was impossible to meet the interest. The failure, how-ever, was practically, if not directly, brought about by the fact that in the Bethlehem transactions the United States Shipbuilding company officers had to deal with people who, while thoroughly understanding the intri-cacies of 'higher finance,' seemed to be overlooking the requirements of com-mon fairness." While the agreed price of Bethlehem was $9,000,000, to be paid for by $10,000-,000 in bonds at 90, Charles M. Schwab, its owner, the report says, secured from EDGAR HOWE, Secretary. its owner, the report says, secured from the directors of the company an addi-tional $20,000,000 in stock and an agreethereby gaining control of the com-pany whose total stock was $45,000,000. In this deal, the receiver says. Mr. Schwab parted with nothing, the capi-tal stock of the Bethlehem company being rules of the Bethlehem company EDGAR HOWE, Secretary, Salt Lake City, Utah, October 31, 1903, tal stock of the Bethlehem company being placed beyond the control of the shipbuilding company by the trust agreement. If interests friendly to the shipbuilding company had controlled this stock, it would have been able to reach the Bethlehem earnings but the provision for the selection of Bethle-hem directors, the trustee named by Mr. Schwab appointing three directors NOTICE TO WATER USERS.

All protests against the granting of salt hem directors, the trustee named by Mr. Schwab appointing three directors and the shipbuilding company, con-trolled by Schwab, designating the other four, placed them entirely in his hands and the United States Ship-building company entirely at his mercy. The further provision of the agree-ment, guaranteeing 6 per cent dividend upon the Bethlehem stock from the re-ceipts of the entire company, impels Mr. Smith to ask, "Was ever such an-other agreement, so apparently harmother agreement, so apparently harm-less, yet so ruinous, conceived by the mind of man?" The action of the Bethlehem com-pany in withholding earnings of up-wards of $2,000,000 annually was, says wards of $2,000,000 annually was, says Receiver Smith, "with the apparent purpose of bringing about the destruc-tion of the shipbuilding company." That the execution of the S mortgage and bond by the Bethlehem company to secure Mr. Schwab at the time of the consolidation is a fraud up-on the creditors of the Bethlehem com-pany and otherwise void because of Schwab's control of the directors, the receiver says he is advised. The report concludes with a discus-
