The young man was well known throughout the country, and many friends regretted his sad condition, and will also regret the sad event, which prevents the possibility of his being restored to them, in this life, sound and well.

THE BUILDERS' COMPLAINT.

The committee on sites and buildings reported as follows:

"Your committee on sites and buildings to whom was referred the communications of H. W. Redfield and the Builders and Trades exchange, both in regard to the Oquirrh school, beg to report that the board has advertised for and received bids for each class of work separately and in the aggregate and believe that the course pursued has been in accordance with law.

"Your committee has directed the superintendent to make the necessary excavation for the foundation and when completed will report to this board. The experience of the board with the foundations of the Jackson, Franklin and Sumner school building, demonstrates that, owing to the uncertain character of the soil in many parts of the city, it is impossible to determine the extent of the foundation required until excavation is made, and believe that this course will be more economical and be productive of better results than if included in the general contract.

"In the opinion of your committee, the course pursued is dictated by ordinary prudence.

"The published report of the treasurer shows the financial condition of the board. Your committee is of the opinion that this contract should not be awarded until the matter of the issue of bonds required for the erection of the Oquirrh and other school buildings, requisite to complete the system originally intended, to supply all portions of the city with proper school facilities, be first submitted to the people.

"The communications have been referred to the attorney of the board, whose opinion is hereto annexed and made a part of this report."

The attorney's report was as follows:
