

MCUNE FOR MAYOR.

Dangerous Taking of Him for Their Standard Bearer.

CANDIDATES FOR THE COUNCIL.

Political Conventions to be Held Tonight
—Political Meetings and Appearances.

The work of the Republican municipal organization last night in placing their ticket in the field brought home to Democrats very clearly the fact that they have a similar talent to perform as many more days have passed.

The contemplation of the fact also suggested the necessity of putting up candidates—for certain parts of the city and for certain offices there have been—strange to realize—new Burke's who sought the nomination. However, candidates have materialized or have been materializing up至今 and energetic friends until all the offices will be carefully filled.

For the mayoralty nomination the man who was spoken of today apparently more than any other was A. W. McNamee. Special emphasis was laid on the desirability of having him as the champion of the people.

Elder Parman submitted the name of Elder B. Godard as vice president of the association.

A committee on entertainment was also appointed to take such steps as might be deemed advisable to raise funds.

Marriage License.

A marriage license was today issued to F. G. Berry, 21, and Harriet L. Tidhunter, 19, both of Ogden.

Advice to Young Authors.

There are few things absolutely necessary for the young author who proposes to become an author in fact, as well as in hope. The first of these may properly be named as a working knowledge of the language in which he proposes to write. He should be well informed of the various forms of composition, although that will do him no harm, provided it is mixed with a good share of common sense. By a working knowledge of the language I mean that he should be able to express his ideas and meaning clearly and forcible; grammatically, without circumlocution, without repetition, without the intercession of words which do not help forward toward the end.

Any person who can do this much, even if no more, may write successfully for publication along certain lines. All literature—in the literature that finds expression in the periodical press—is of a certain type. Practical ideas, telling how a new is made, how temperance is promoted, how a treat should be equipped, how a coat is mixed, make up a large amount of material that is now being published, both in our newspapers and magazines.

Work of this kind is the very backbone of literature. It is regarded more favorably by editors than almost anything else. The author who can do this is most easily done; it affords excellent practice work.

The writer of such practical articles comes almost directly to the requirements of simple, straightforward methods of expression, and the language used is that of a style that will serve him well when he comes to more ambitious undertakings.

There is opportunity for development, even in these most modest undertakings, and the author who has a desire and a place in which to write when there is not some opportunity for advancing your description by the introduction of pertinent knowledge of research, or by graceful passages more or less filling up the space available.

Charles E. Newell, O. H. Pratt, W. M. McNamee, John M. McNamee, D. J. Hart, and C. H. Walker, those most likely to succeed seem to be Newell, Pratt, and McNamee, though the claim is made that the "Third, Eighth, and Ninth" wards are strong.

Candidates for the city council from different products will be chosen in the following with but few exceptions:

F. G. Berry, O. H. Pratt, John M. McNamee, C. H. Walker, those most likely to succeed seem to be Newell, Pratt, and McNamee, though the claim is made that the "Third, Eighth, and Ninth" wards are strong.

Second President—Jeff Henderon, Arnold Granger, John Allen, Charles Jackson, and Poplar Grove, and it is anticipated that nearly all of the popular west of Ogden will be represented.

H. F. Lord, who was highly regarded, died Saturday morning.

Other prominent names mentioned are the candidates for the Council will be held tonight and the city engineers to name the general ticket on Monday next beginning at 11 a.m. at Democratic headquarters in the Commercial Market building.

Australasian Mission.

An interesting meeting of Elders and Saints who have labored or resided in New Zealand was held in the First ward assembly hall on Sunday evening, Oct. 10th, under the auspices of the "Māori Association."

Kader William Parman, president, gave a short review and reviewed the remarkable experiences of the past and the importance of the mission with which all present had been connected.

Elder E. G. Ward was requested to report on the present condition of that field of labor, which he often speaks of with great interest, resulting vastly in the minds of each during the discussion upon each district, the various roads and towns through which they have often traveled. The meeting was held in a very prosperous condition. Resolutions were made to the effect to start a staunch and influential, whose influence as an intelligent and leading class, had been especially valuable. At the request of Elder Parman he reported the names of Bishop Hirini Whareora and family, who had been the names of the deceased, and had been buried. These parsons had been heralded and commented upon throughout the length and breadth of the land by newspapermen of all classes.

Mr. Parman said, "The names of the deceased are as follows:

John T. Catine, Salt Lake.

James Clegg, Salt Lake.

Frank W. Jennings, Salt Lake.

E. H. Kidder, Salt Lake.

Charles S. Sorenson, Salt Lake.

John W. Pease, Salt Lake.
