THE OLD AND NEW HOME
MISSIONARIES.

THE Home Missionaries of the Salt Lake Stake of Zion, who have labored long in this useful field, were liberated with the death of the year 1884. Many of them have been in active service in this position for a number of years; others have more recently been called to officiate in this calling; all have worked faithfully and without any pecuniary reward. They are entitled to the blessings and good wishes of the people to whom they have ministered.

A change was considered advisable for several reasons. It is not wise to keep men continually in one position; home missionaries should not be required to stay too long in their onerous position, any more than foreign missionaries; a rest is good for the speakers and a change is good for the people; there are other men of the Stake qualified to act in this capacity as well as those who have been engaged; it is wise to give all the Elders an opportunity to exercise themselves in the public ministry; a new set of speakers may arouse new interest in the cause.

These and many other reasons that might be named have suggested the propriety of a change.

The general promptness and fidelity of the brethren whose names appeared on the old list are notable and gratifying. In winter and in summer, at early morn and at dusk, they have been responsive to the calls upon their time and talents, and whether in the city wards or country settlements they have been "unsat in season or out of season."

Traveling by team or paying their own fares by railroad, they have faced storm and cold, or heat and dust, and dispensed the word of life freely. Harmony has characterized their feelings and utterances, good will and brotherhood has abounded among them, and two and two they have filled their appointments and studied the public welfare rather than their own feelings.

Their labors are pleased to know, have been appreciated by the Stake and the Saints generally. Missionary Sundays—each alternate week in town and every other week in the country—have been anticipated with interest. Great good has certainly been accomplished by the labors of these diligent laborers, though apparent in part, will only be fully realized in the great hereafter when "every man shall be rewarded according to his works."

The new list contains the names of old and tried laborers, called to active home service, and many younger men of limited experience in this direction. We trust that they will prove as faithful and true, as prompt and active as the brethren retired. It is expected that they will inform themselves regularly of their appointments and make it a duty and a pleasure to fill them without flinching or excuse; also to report themselves regularly at the meeting on the evening of the last Wednesday in every month. We mention this simply by way of information; they will doubtless receive instruction and counsel as may be required from the Stake Presidency.

The retiring Home Missionaries should not consider themselves laid upon the shelf. We understand that it is not the intention that their services may be specially required, and they still retain all the authority and obligations of their Holy Priesthood. They will find many openings for the exercise of their talents, and should be willing to use them for the glory of God and the benefit of their fellows in any sphere in which they may be desired to act. There is no need to "rust out" in this great latter-day work.

We extend our congratulations to the old Home Missionaries on the success which has attended their labors in the past, and to the new Home Missionaries on the opportunities now opening to them for doing good both to themselves and to others. Their services imparted are blessings received. And to all of them we wish honor and blessing, and a useful and joyful career through life, as well as cordial greetings on the opening of the new year.

REMARKABLE PERSISTENCY.
GOVERNOR MURRAY is one of the most popular preachers and preachers, in a small compass, in the line of usurpation, that the present century has produced. His course indicates that his presumption in that direction proceeds from egotism of a duplex character—personal conceit and an inflated conception of the scope of the powers of his official position.

The first can readily be passed over as a mere human weakness, but the second renders him unfit to fill any position involving exercise of any degree of authority, as it will always be next to impossible for him to remain within its legitimate boundaries. He ignores both popular and representative rule and favors autocracy in its most despotic form.

The poor man's futile struggle for power would be almost pathetic were it not for the element of viciousness incorporated in the ineffectual battle.

His attempt to usurp Territory and County office in Utah by his autocratic process is still fresh in the memories of the people. That effort resulted, as anticipated, in total failure, but he keeps on making appointments to all the same. His repetitive action in again appointing Dr. George C. Douglas as the officer of Auditor of Public Accounts and Librarian has a good deal of the farcical element in it. It appears a trifling too to use that apparently unopposed gentleman, so deeply afflicted with the office hunting mania, as a political cat's paw. He was the Governor's choice for auditor under the Hoar amendment subterfuge, failing that, direction, poor Dr. Douglas posed in this city as a capable sanitarian, urged the corporate authorities to appoint an efficient officer to look after the sanitary condition of Salt Lake, making it unmistakably plain that coupled with his opinion regarding the necessity of such an officer, he was the one man capable of filling the position he hoped to have created by his ingenuity. The City Fathers were impervious to his importunities and the bottom fell out of that little project.

Next the Doctor turned up at Washington, rode and tackled in hand, fishing for the office of Clerk in Judge Zane's Court, but that prospect also speedily faded from his view, and we are informed that, evidently in sheer desperation, he sought the governorship of Alaska, but it is clear that that frigid Territory had not as yet, in the estimation of the powers that be, sufficiently filled up the cup of his ingenuity to be so sorely afflicted, and the unfortunate man was once more consigned to the slough of disappointment.

But still the Doctor keeps bobbing up as lively as ever in the hope of snatching an office of some kind. The Governor appears to be responsible for the heated race that Dr. Douglas has been running after office. Mr. Murray evidently takes the gentleman for a crank, for no sooner does one revolute take him to the lower level than the Governor gives the handle a turn and up he goes again to the culminating point. Were it not that Dr. Douglas, whom we do not believe to be a bad man, necessarily elicits some sympathy, all this would be very amusing.

The latest proclamation and appointments probably mean that the curtain will shortly rise on another act of the drama of the Conspirators' Dream.

ABOUT EATING.
It requires far less food to sustain life and keep one's strength than many people imagine. It is not necessary for a person to gorge himself with victuals four or five times every day, as many English people do, nor even three times a day, according to the American custom, to live. Indeed, a person must have extraordinary digestive powers if he succeeds in living to a very advanced age while pursuing such a course. Many more persons kill themselves by over-eating than die of starvation. Regularity in eating is far more essential to health than is a great quantity of food at each meal. A very little, taken at proper and regular intervals, will sustain life and preserve health, while a hearty meal after a long fast will frequently so overtax or derange the digestive powers as to produce sickness. Fasting, however, is not to be altogether condemned, but rather recommended, for more reasons than one. John Wesley used to say that the man who never fasted was never a saint, and that the man who never prayed, fasting is now advised by many of the wisest and most observant of physicians as a remedy for many of the ills that afflict mankind. It is claimed that rheumatism and many other diseases may be effectively cured by fasting, and the bodily powers to rest and regain their equilibrium, and thereby philosophy in the theory. Extra care is necessary, though, after fasting, to avoid over-eating, or eating such food as will again derange the system, and simulate, and in the latter particular, people differ so much that it is best for each person to observe the effect of various foods upon his own organism, as no published rules will serve as a safe guide to all.

Neither is variety in food so essential to health as many people imagine. A large proportion of the earth's inhabitants subsist almost entirely upon a single article of diet all the year round, and thrive on it. Sydney Smith alluded to the staple food of the Scotch people in his day, and its ample nutritive properties, when he gave as a motto for the Edinburgh Review, "We cultivate literature on a little oatmeal." And a very little oatmeal will serve to sustain life and qualify one for cultivating literature or following other pursuits in which an active mind is required, far better than a full diet of other foods that require all the power of one's being to digest.

The custom among the colored children in the South of indulging in what is called "fat-bone breakfast" has been cited in illustration of how people may thrive on a single and very plain article of diet, and very little of that. This "fat-bone breakfast" is simply a stick of sugar cane, which the little darkeys are in the habit of chewing, or twisting and sucking, and with this as their only food they will get fat.

Another example has recently come to light, which will doubtless be made the most of by vegetarians. A couple of shipwrecked sailors have been found who, cast away on a desolate island, lived for seven years upon coconuts, with an occasional flying fish as a relish.

A DUEL TO THE DEATH.
Rockwood, Tenn., 2.—W. F. Dorsett and Nathan Pass engaged in a street duel yesterday. They had a difficulty the day previous, and were determined to settle it. They met on the street at about eight o'clock, and with shot guns, Dorsett received one wound in the face and another in the arm, and Pass received one in the forehead and neck. Both men were mortally wounded.

NEW YEAR'S DAY IN WASHINGTON.
WASHINGTON, 2.—New Year's Day has been generally observed here, the weather was almost as disagreeable as a year ago, when it rained throughout the day. At 12 o'clock the city was covered with snow, and the day was very cold. The inclemency, however, did not interfere with calling. The reception of the President-elect, Cleveland, was a grand affair, and was assisted by a number of ladies prominent in society, who stood with him in the Blue Parlor, the callers entered the Red Parlor, passed through the Green Parlor into the east room, from which they made their exit.

MADRID, 1.—It is probable that Alfonso will go to Andalusia with officers of the government, visiting the scene of the recent terrible earthquakes, to afford relief. Terrible gales passed over the last night, blowing from the north, the bodies of those who were killed by the earthquake are being blown about by the wind. The inclemency, however, did not interfere with calling. The reception of the President-elect, Cleveland, was a grand affair, and was assisted by a number of ladies prominent in society, who stood with him in the Blue Parlor, the callers entered the Red Parlor, passed through the Green Parlor into the east room, from which they made their exit.

MORE EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS.—Several Towns and Villages Destroyed.

MADRID, 2.—Earthquake shocks were again felt at Granada, Malaga, Seville and Alcala last night. The panic among the people is unabated. A number of towns and villages have been completely destroyed. The inhabitants have deserted them, many have fled to the mountains, and have been completely destroyed. The inhabitants have deserted them, many have fled to the mountains, and have been completely destroyed.

A ROYAL DECREE has been issued ordering that a national subscription for the relief of sufferers be made. Public officials have agreed to contribute one day's pay each. By this means $200,000 will be raised.

SPANISH AMBASSADORS, ministers and consuls in all countries will also open subscriptions.

LONDON, 2.—The Russian government has proposed a plan for the settlement of the Egyptian question, which will probably prove acceptable to France, namely, that a new loan be guaranteed by the powers, and that a reduction of interest, and any surplus obtained be divided among the creditors, and that the British withdraw from Egypt on a fixed date.

government engineers conducting the improvements of the river front say that the bridge is in the way of a successful continuation of their work, and that it must be removed, and give way to a structure of wider spans. Its removal is necessary to prevent a repetition of the disastrous river floods of the past.

Only women will be employed by the Clerk of the Georgia Legislature to perform clerical work hereafter, a resolution to that effect having been adopted by an "overwhelming vote." The Montgomery Advertiser says: "In the debate on the resolution it was contended that all avenues of employment should be open to women, who had no voice in the Government, yet obeyed its laws and paid its taxes. The vote was overwhelming."

The Cleveland Plain Dealer has been sold to R. T. Holden, a capitalist of Cleveland, who made some rich strikes in Western mines. This virtually releases Major Billy Armstrong, who is expected to be Postmaster. R. T. Holden is a literary man and a lawyer. The paper will be issued in the morning hereafter. It is proposed to make it a red hot Democratic daily that will oppose the Enquirer and establish an organ for the Northern Ohio Democracy.

An example of the "law's delays" and the manner in which the guilty escape justice thereby in this land is given in the San Francisco Bee. "On March 1878, Mrs. Emma C. Downes died in San Francisco from the effects of an abortion produced on her by Mrs. Hodgson. The latter was tried and convicted, after many delays, and on October 1, 1879, was sentenced to a term of years in the penitentiary for ten years. An appeal was taken to the Supreme Court, and a new trial ordered. The case was continued from time to time on various pretexts, advanced by counsel and most wasteful, after a lapse of nearly seven years from the date of the crime, the charge has been dismissed, all evidence against the woman having disappeared. There is no doubt of her guilt. A new trial was ordered because of a mere technical defect in the form of the dying statement of the victim. No wonder the people get disgusted with the administration of 'justice' in the courts."

A Relative Found.—It was stated in Wednesday evening's issue that nothing was known of the residence or relatives of H. A. Archer, the man who was found dead in his bed at the White House, beyond the fact that he was a solitary address found among his effects, to which a telegraphic message was sent by Sexton Joseph E. Taylor, and to which he received this morning the following reply:

KROOK, Iowa, Jan. 2, 1885.
