The produce of the Victoria gold fields (Australia) continues rather to increase. The richest diggings are at Mount Alexander.

Rents are rising rapidly in Sydney. Many people are returning to England in disgust.

The Emperor of China is now in possession of a fleet, consisting of six ships of war, with English names, and commanded by Englishmen.

The Chinese insurgents punish smokers of opium by beheading, and those who use tobacco by the bamboo.

Manchester, with a population of 400,000, has only three newspapers, neither of them daily.

The independence of Australia is now being openly advocated in that country.

Mexico is evidently jealous of American go-ahead-ism, and there is a growing feeling in favor of forming a protectorate alliance with Spain.

The Queen of England reviewed, on the 3d Aug., the magnificent fleet concentrated at Spithead, consisting of fifty-three sail, inclusive of steamers, which is ready at a moment's notice to proceed to the Baltic.

William Wheeler Yelf, well known in the Isle of Wight for his piety and general respectability, has been transported for life, for embezzling a portion of the funds of the Isle of Wight Savings Bank, of which he was secretary.

The election of the General of the Jesuits took place at Rome on the 2d of July. The new General is Father Beckes, Provincial of the Province of Austria, and a Belgian by birth.

It is proposed to tunnel the Ohio river at Louisville, Ky., after the fashion of the Thames.

Four editors in New Orleans have died victims to the yellow fever—two of the Picayune, one of the Delta, and one of the Crescent.

The New South Wales Legislature has passed an act for the regulation of gold fields, so stringent as to disgust the miners, and put a stop to many of the diggings altogether.

No man is a gentleman, who, without provocation, would treat with facility the humblest of his species. It is a vulgarity for which no accomplishment or dress can ever atone.

The following fragment of conversation was overheard lately on board the Alida—“I met Lord Elmsmere and his party at Niagara, the other day. I knew the ladies were persons of distinction the moment I saw them, because they were no jewelry, nor any other ornament whatever.”

So certain are the operations of the English post office, that if the sending of a letter can be proved, and there is no evidence to show that the sender received it back again from the dead letter office, it is considered legal evidence of its having been received by the person to whom it was addressed. We wish it was so in the United States.

That was a good remark of Seneca's when he said: “Great is he who enjoys his earthward as if it were plate; and no more than great is the man to whom all his plate is no more than earthenware.”

One hundred and forty-two trains leave Boston daily.

In the Northern part of Ohio, 100 townships have expressly abolished the liquor traffic.

SUMMARY.

From the N. Y. Herald, from August 21st, to September 21st, 1853.

The following quotation from the Herald of Sep. 21st, will give our readers a little insight as to how matters are tending in the political world—“Unless once more the shadows they are casting before them, in a few years Turkey will have passed under the Muscovite crown, and Cuba and Mexico will be ours. Great Britain dare not interpose to save Turkey, and poor Spain will certainly not struggle hard to preserve Cuba. But these expansions cannot long continue without a collision between the two conquerors. We may acquire Cuba and Mexico, and Russia may seize Turkey, without sensibly interfering with each other; but the next step will bring us face to face. Russia would not resign the control of the Pacific without a struggle, and we could not stand by complacently while Europe was being parcelled out into Russian provinces.”

General complaint is made at the South of damage to the cotton crops from excessive rains. {Wonder if cottons won't rise from 40 to 48 cents per yard.

Major Ballard, one of the first settlers of Kentucky, and the hero of a “hundred fights,” died on the 5th of September, aged 92 years.

The London Times, of August 30, says:—“The Chinese revolution is in all respects the greatest revolution the world has yet seen. In mere magnitude it comprises a population equal to all Europe and all America put together. It unites the chief features of all the changes that stand out in the history of the world. As a destruction of temples and idols, and a total change of religion, it calls to the early ages of the Christian Church, and those latter times when the Northern nations embraced Christianity in masses. . . . This mighty change has come so fast on us that we have not yet realized its consequences. . . . But the most marvelous feature of the revolution remains. The means are utterly insignificant. [Has the Times only just begun to learn that God is bringing to naught the greatness of the great, and the wisdom of the wise, and working mighty changes by ‘insignificant means,’ that He may have the glory? Man has gloried long enough in his imaginary greatness and might, and now it is high time for God to work.]

Disturbances have taken place in several parts of Italy, arising from the high price of provisions. In Sicily the exportation of every kind of grain is prohibited until further notice, and any which may be seized in contravention of the order, is to be confiscated for the benefit of the poor.

Difficulties of a serious character exist between the Governments of Great Britain and Morocco.

The United States and Austria are at loggerheads in consequence of the rescue of an Hungarian refugee named Martin Koszta, in the port of Smyrna, by Captain Ingraham, of the United States, said refugee having been arrested by Austrian authorities.

The London Times says, “the dispute is not likely to be brought to any speedy or satisfactory solution.”

A woman, weighing 704 pounds, is drawing crowds of visitors in New York.

Admiral Sir George Cockburn, one of the oldest English naval officers, died at Leamington on the 19th of August, in the 82d year of his age.

A destructive fire broke out in the wool factory of Harnden & Leland, Augusta, Me., and spread rapidly, communicating to the large machine shop used by the Railroad Company, and to a flour mill, saw mill, grist mill, and two drying houses. The loss is estimated at $75,000. Many people are thrown out of employment.

An important project is mooted in the London Times—a ship canal from the bend of the Danube to the Black Sea. This would render navigation independent of the obstacles at the mouth of the Danube and would avoid nearly two hundred miles of dangerous sailing against the strong current of the river.
