You have already done much in opening roads ley on the north, by way of the Blue Mountains, and from Escalante on the west across the grand canyon of the Colorado, and we hope ere long to see a route opened by way of the Henry Mountains into Fremont Valley, thence to Salina. Much remains yet to be done, and it is desirable as fast as practicable that a road should be made along this river under the cliffs, to facilitate easy communication with the various rich ottoms in the bends of this river. While the Indians appeared friendly and satisfied with our ef forts to establish settlements here; yet with the unsettled condition of Indian affairs in Colorado and New Mexico, with the well known fact that there are small predatory bands of renegade Indians, liable to prey upon defenceless persons, as well as awless adventurers from among the whites, we therefore deem it a matter of common prudence, that in the luciplent stages of your settlements here, your temporary dwellings should be in close proximity to each other, and where practicable, we would recommend that you build in the form of a hollow square, and close up spaces between your dwellings with stockade; and when your tivation, your frigation canals made, mills for making lumber and flour built, so that you can begin permanent buildings upon your town lots, your temporary dwellings will enterprise. Let all your energies be directed, primarily towards this end, that you may raise produce for the sustenance of yourselves and familes and a little to sell to others.
