THE quarrel between the North stand him, he asserts that the uni-American Review and Judge Black verse could not have had a design is greatly to be regretted, because designer to his own origin; the world the Judge's reply to the last chapter was not made because we cauno of Ingersoll's vigorous abuse of Je-hovab and sophistical attack on the chanism of a watch is so curious Christian religion will not appear in that "it must," says he, "have had a ma'er," but he adds the watchmaker himself is more wonderfully when the learned jurist was solicited made than the watch, and hence he to reply to the noted infidel, it was infers that he also must have had a understood that the attack should not be published without the de-fense. Both were to appear toge fense. Both were to appear toge though perhaps unconsciously, right ther. The bane and the antidole in this. It makes a demonstration were to be given simultaneously, as complete as mathematics that The publication of Col. Ingersoll's man was created by "some pre-ex-istent and self-conscious being of The publication of Col. Ingerson's last lengthy paper without any re-ply made Judge Black highly indig-nant, and through the columns of the Philadelphia Press he exposes the doings of the Review editors in slashing style, at the same time an-swering some of Ingersoll's soph-isms.

The editors claim that the ar-The editors chaim that the ar-rangement with Judge Black only how the justice of God is not visible applied to the first article, nothing being said about the others except that more would likely appear, and that more would likely appear, and that Ingersoll's late paper was too lengthy & admit of a reply perverted minds are received as in the same number. It appears that the publishers-Appleton & Co , dislike the course taken in this matter, for they announce that when the publishing contract for the Review terminates that they will not continue it, the proprietors will have to seek another publisher.

We will here insert a few paragraphs from Judge Black's rejoinder. Concerning polygamy, against which Col. Ingersall launched one 30 went via Omaha to Ogden, under of his powerful philliples, the Judge

"If he had flung out at monoga-mous marriage, which Christianity upholds, his act, though unjust, might have had an apparent object not altogether preposterous. Indeed, monogamy is as open to mere vul-gar vituperation as polygamy When an unclean mind exerts itself to imagine what may take place it is easy to talk about brutality and the animal degradation of woman in one case as another. To the beastly all things are beastly. In point of fact the great body of unbelievers have denounced the Chris-tian institution of marriage with es-pecial bitterness. To tie one man and one woman together by a bond which nothing but death can dissolve is, in their opinion not only unjust and immoral, but a base and brutal tyranny which imposes a degrading restraint upon the natural ights of men and women to love and cohabit with whom they please. and cohabit with whom they please. This is prime and a prominent par of the atheistic theory, ever, where advocated by its regular (gans and its greatest disciples. In France, where their s cieties are prance, where their s cieties are compact and powerful, they define their creed substantially thus: I. There is no God. 2. Religion is a to produce this effect was the prat-to produce this effect was the pratlie. 3. Property is theft. 4. Love must be free. 5. Marriage is slavery. 6. Children belong to the State and not to anybody in particular. This is "the gappel of dirt." I don't say that Mr. Inger oll swal lows it whole. He believes, or at least he practices, the Christian dcc-trine on the subjects of macrisce, paternity, and property, not because he is bound by the Divine command-but because he for the believes it. Others, 6. Children belong to the State and but because he feat like it. Others, rejecting as he does the "golden metwand of the law," have an equal right to take their own fealings as the measure of righteousness. So one set of atheists curses marriage and another blackguards p: lygamy; and they are both right if there be no God above all and over all." It should be understood that when Ingers ill assails polygamy it is that kind that prevaits in Oriental coun-tries, and that is incorrectly suppor-ed to exist in Utab; and the Chris-ingles during the coming winter promises to become guite an item of business, as the temporal progress of the Saints will soon permit them tianity he attacks is the modern form as moulded and made up by men, His caustic sentences apply neither to "Mormon" plural mar- figures that compare favorably with riage nor the pure religion of Jesus Christ, as taught by the disciples of the Nazarene, and restored by reve- dull season of the year, labor is in lation to the Latter-day Saints. Judge Black thus handles the in-fidel's argument against a lawgiver to the universe: Judge Black thus handles the in-"He starts another files, which has the same special merit of being his own, namely, that the material universe is not goversed by laws The ianets move at a rate and in orbits which can be calculated with abso-lute certainty; the earth revolves on its axis with such perfect regu-larity that the very second of time at which the sun will rise at a par-ticular place can be predicted a thou-sand years beforehand; chemical subs ances combine always in ex-actly the same relative proportions; in the animal and vegetable world like produces like; in all organized beings certain causes are known to ge certain causes are known to duce certain effects favorable or nfavorable to life and health. 1 Mr. ngersoll's idea is that these are flot
