

or this morning, and no definite news has been received today from the scene of the mutiny. The officials decline to make any statements, but it is asserted from a reliable source that the mutineers, with the exception of a few on the smaller islands who have a few guns, have surrendered. The prisoners are being landed in batches, guarded by loyal troops. They are dull and seem to have little thought of the punishment which awaits them.

KENTUCKY GIRLS.

Party in Paris Where They Are Compared With French Girls.

New York, Aug. 2.—A cable dispatch to the Herald from Paris says: Thirty-two young American women, adjudged the most popular in Kentucky through a newspaper voting contest, and who arrived Tuesday night, had their first day of sight-seeing Wednesday. The French papers in the English, occasionally assume that the girls were chosen for beauty. Hence they are making comparisons with French girls not all complimentary to the girls from Dixie. The girls do not seem to mind it, because they have been desired by French newspapers as "a bevy of American beauties."

There was a crowd of between 1,000 and 1,500 excited men and women waiting for their appearance at the Hotel du Louvre, where it was a polite or respectful mob. They passed open judgment on the young women, favorable or unfavorable according to fancy. Everywhere the Kentuckians turned they found kodaks leveled at them. Once on their way the photographers followed them. They photographed the young women as they stood before Napoleon's tomb or as they left the cave to enter the church of Notre Dame. They will remain in Paris until Monday morning, then will "do" Switzerland, Germany, Holland and Belgium.

The car was dashed violently against a pole and demolished and McElroy's throat was cut almost from ear to ear by broken glass. The driver of the hack was seriously injured.

FOUND TUBERCULOSIS.

State Board of Health Has Made a Startling Discovery.

The state board of health announces the discovery in this city of tuberculosis among cows, and infected animals are being killed as fast as discovered. Secretary Healy emphasizes the necessity of stamping out this disease, as it is carried in the milk and infects children. How it came to be established here is at present a matter of conjecture. The secretary says every cow in the state should be tested for the presence of the disease.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Last night Miss Louise Walden and George J. McLaughlin were married at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. A. M. Walden. In the presence of the family and a large number of friends, with Rev. Paden performing the ceremony, Miss Margaret Walden and Lenore Morse attending the bride and Roscoe Breeden acting as best man, while delightful bridal music was furnished by Miss Virginia Beatty and Morris Andrews. The decorations were in pink and white, the bridal party standing under a canopy of vines and sweet peas, while all about them were the dainty flowers combined with greens. The dining room was in the center of the house, the bride and groom making a picture of the table. The bride wore a gown of white organdie with elaborate trimmings of real lace, her long veil of tulle being caught with a diamond pin, the gift of the groom. The bridesmaids wore in white and pink, Miss Walden wearing pink organdie and Miss Morse white net over pink. The bride's brother, Forest Walden, gave the bride away. A number of the girl friends of the bride, assisted in the dining room and on the porch which was decorated with flags and a table set for punch, lemonade and iced in sweet peas. Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin left on a late train for a trip to the St. Lawrence and will afterward make their home in Rochester, N. Y.

Another pretty wedding of yesterday was that of Miss Lucretia West of this city and Charles E. Murdock of Logansport, Ind., the event taking place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. West with Rev. W. M. Paden officiating. The decorations were in the hands of Ernest Lambourn, and were beautifully done, the bridal party standing in a bower formed with the window whose tower like shape lent itself admirably to the effect. From the top of the tower streamers of plumosa started with white carnations were brought to the front where hung a large wedding bell of white pinks and pink roses, while all about the room were vases of Shasta daisies, the mantel, which was banked with palms, being done in the same flowers. Between the parlor and dining room hung portiers of plumosa and white carnations tied with bows of white satin ribbon, and on the window curtains throughout were sprays of ferns. The dining room was in pink and green, the bridal table which stood directly under the chandelier having a centerpiece of pink gladioli, while sweet peas were at each corner, and streamers of tulle, caught with bunches of sweet peas, reached from the chandelier to the ends of the table. On the chairs of the bride and groom were bows of white tulle fastened with a bunch of white sweet peas. The stairs and landings were banked with palms and festooned with plumosa, and each door was decorated with streamers of smilax. The bride wore a handsome costume of white chiffon cloth with trimmings of real lace, and her veil the gift of the groom, while a shower bouquet of bridesmaids completed the toilet. The bridesmaid, Miss Nellie West, was gown in white net over pink tulle and carried roses. The little flower girl, Hortense West, was in a basket of Shasta daisies. Mr. J. F. Murdock was best man. A number of the intimate friends of the family assisted in receiving, and in the dining room. The bride and groom left after 10 o'clock for Idaho and will later go to Indiana to make their home.

Yesterday Miss Flora Tripp and Dr. J. E. Robertson of West Jordan were married. Dr. Paden performing the ceremony in the new Presbyterian church. The couple leaving afterward for a trip before returning to West Jordan to make their home.

INCOMPARABLE MOUNTAIN.

This ever-delightful mountain canyon is fast assuming place with the forests and most exclusive country home parks of the west. Former campers who enjoyed the wildwood beauty and charm of the "Old Armchair" when it was first opened in 1904, are now amazed to see comfortable country homes, costing from $1500 to $2500, overlooking the shady driveway, from Hazel Dell to Royal Park and Lotosdale.

Each house is surrounded by its own private park and grounds, standing well away from and above the road, and with pleasant views. Former campers who enjoyed the wildwood beauty and charm of the "Old Armchair" when it was first opened in 1904, are now amazed to see comfortable country homes, costing from $1500 to $2500, overlooking the shady driveway, from Hazel Dell to Royal Park and Lotosdale.

From the deeply hidden or sparkling brook wells up the laughing splash of falling water, while shy, wild birds in the verdant foliage overhead sing sweetly the woodland songs that cheer the heart.

The social life is comparable only with the open house and generous informal hospitality of the old country homes of the south before the war.

These delightful places usually have their own or mutual-piped water systems, and stables, rooms, convenient kitchens, cool, open, screened diningrooms, and wide verandas, are considered most certainly essential.

Smooth, well-made trails give easy access to the very heart of the deep forests, and stables, rooms, convenient kitchens, cool, open, screened diningrooms, and wide verandas, are considered most certainly essential.

PROSPEROUS TOWNS IN THE GEM STATE

Many Great Changes Wrought in The Past Fifteen Years.

FIELDS AND ORCHARDS TEEM.

Oakley, Yost, Albion, Burley, Heyburn And Twin Falls Visited and Described by Correspondent.

Burley, Idaho, July 31.
Editor Deseret News:

I have nearly completed a tour of the Cassia stake of Zion, in company with Elder Marcus O. Pank, the stake clerk, and have visited all the settlements of the saints in the stake, except Blaine and Grouse Creek. It has been extremely interesting to me throughout to notice the improvements and changes made since I was here on my former visit 15 years ago.

OAKLEY'S RAPID GROWTH.

Thus Oakley, which in 1890 figured as a small pioneer settlement, was divided into three wards, in 1901, and in January last, a further division took place in the organization of a fourth ward. Instead of the naked and barren sagebrush plains which characterized Grouse Creek valley in 1890, with only here and there a patch of cultivated land, the whole region of country around Oakley now abounds with beautiful farms, orchards and gardens. The handsome stake tabernacle in Oakley proper, a noble rock structure—occupying a central and elevated position on the main street, and the academy buildings, a short distance away, give the growing town a cosmopolitan appearance, not to speak of the pretentious business blocks, stores and shops which line both sides of the same street.

Oakley has been the headquarters of the Cassia stake ever since that stake was first organized in 1887. Horton D. Haight was the first stake president and held that position till 1903, when he finished his earthly career. A number of his sons and daughters are now active and prominent workers in the Church. The second president of the Cassia stake, Elder William T. Jack, still stands at the head of ecclesiastical affairs in this region of country. Elder John L. Smith, formerly Bishop of Oakley ward, and William T. Harper, formerly bishop of Albion ward, are counselors to President Jack. In Oakley Second and Third wards the saints have recently erected new and commodious meetinghouses. The one in the Second ward became a reality mainly through the efforts of the sisters of the ward. In the Fourth ward, which is only a few months old, the saints are busily engaged now in reconstructing a purchased building, turning it into a modern meetinghouse, and in Marion ward the people are just completing a $10,000 house of worship.

YOST FORGING AHEAD.

In our visit to Yost, formerly George Creek, in Boxelder county, Utah, which belongs to Cassia stake, we were most favorably impressed with the progress made during the past few years, and the present prosperity of the people. This place was organized as the Yost ward in 1904, and can already boast of a large and commodious meetinghouse and a modern school house. The settlers on One Mile Creek and other smaller streams in the same neighborhood constitute a community known as Standrod which belongs to the Yost ward. The district school house stands on the boundary line between Utah and Idaho, one-half of it being in our state and the other half in the other. The first settlers of this place came principally from the Sixteenth ward, Salt Lake City.

At Almo the saints have just completed a magnificent meetinghouse—a brick structure, with a well-proportioned tower on the south end. Bishop Thos. O. King has also built himself a large, modern residence.

Elba, on Cassia creek, is, perhaps, the most flourishing settlement on the east side of the Cassia mountains. Having extended their well cultivated farms and orchards over all the available lands in the narrow fertile valley, the people are now commencing to climb the hills with their improvements. Already the mountain slopes on the north present a number of green patches, which suggest successful cultivation. Bishop Thomas Taylor still holds the post here. He has been the bishop of Elba ever since the place was first organized as a ward in 1887.

At Albion, the county seat of Cassia county, the saints are increasing in number, and have recently erected a copy little meetinghouse costing about $2,500. Unlike some other wards, who build beyond their means, the saints at Albion had paid in full for everything, with some to spare, when their house was dedicated a few months ago. Thomas E. Harper, the bishop of Cassia county, is also probate judge of Cassia county. John L. Smith, first counselor in the stake presidency, is county assessor and collector, and Joseph Y. Haight, who presided over the Society Islands mission in 1900-1902, is county recorder, while others of our people occupy minor positions in the county government. Thus it will be seen that our brethren in Cassia county (which has a mixed population as to Mormon and gentile) take an active part in civil affairs.

Perhaps the most interesting part of the Cassia stake of Zion is that section of Snake River valley which is included in the stake. Until two years ago that immense stretch of level country which extended from Minidoka southward to the mountains was entirely uninhabited. It was a dreary, dreary waste which had to be traversed with teams by our brethren from

BURLY FLOURISHING.

Thus we have already a flourishing ward in Burley, organized last June with Lewis W. Robbins as bishop; and then a branch and Sunday school organizations, also, in Heyburn and near Twin Falls. In some of the other towns, branches will undoubtedly be organized in the near future.

GREAT FUTURE PREDICTED.

As yet no water has been turned into the canals, although the immense government dam, about six miles from Minidoka, is nearly completed. But those who have witnessed the rapid transformation which irrigation has wrought in Utah and parts of Idaho as elsewhere can easily draw a mental picture of this part of Snake River valley when irrigation shall have become an established fact, fruitful orchards, beautiful lawns and thriving towns will greet the eye of the traveler here in a few years, when one of America's great rivers shall be put to that particular use which mortals scarcely dreamed of until President Brigham Young and the people who derided the government canals wrought taught the world that artificial watering of arid soil could turn even the most barren and barren wastes into fruitful fields. When a hundred thousand people in the near future shall be comfortably housed and fed from products raised on the lands lying under the government canals now nearly completed in this part of Idaho, then perchance some local historian will be inspired to write a few special chapters on the success of irrigation and explain how this great canal system in Snake River valley is the result of the gradual evolution of a system originated by a God-fearing people who nearly 60 years ago sought refuge from murderous mobs in the arid regions of western America.
