What witnesses will be brought before the court in behalf of Admiral Schley is for the admiral himself to say. No one can possibly what witnesses the court is going to summon before them.

remainder.

The judge advocate of the court on the 29th of July addressed a letter to Admiral Schley requesting the admiral communicate with him in relation to the witnesses, if any of them were located at a distance from Washington, whom he might wish to have appear before the court. This was done because it was taken for granted that most of them were officers of the navy. It was highly important that they should be within reach when wanted to testify.

"Admiral Schley responded with a partial list of those whom he thought would likely want present, stating that there would doubtless be others. He was told that he would have a right to call others as witnesses, and was also informed that some of the persons named by him might possibly be called by the judge advocate. "The whole thing is in the prelimi-nary stage to see to it that officers of the navy who are cognizant of the facts involved will be where they can be reached in season to attend as witnesses if needed.

Beyond this statement Mr. Hackett declined to answer specific questions as to particular witnesses, especially as to whether Admiral Sampson was on the list prepared by the judge ad-vocate of the court, and he further announced hereafter he would decline to answer all inquiries regarding matters relating to the Schley court. Frederick A. Mollenhauer Dead.

With reference to the Venezuelan complications, absolutely nothing is is known here of a definite nature beyond the broad statement, believed on all sides, that President Castro of Venezuela is giving the rebels moral and even more substantial aid. There are also rumors of a declaration of war between the two republics and of a pitched battle near the frontier, in which Gen. Urlbe has been defeated, and also victorious according to one version. To sum up, there is evidence on all sides that the government considers the situation to be a critical one and the absence of Gen. Alban at the present moment tends to intensify the feeling of unrest and uneasiness.

INVADERS OF VENEZUELA. Berlin, Aug. 14 .- The Kolnische Zel-

Strike at Fall River Impending.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 14 .- A strike over the cut down in wages in the print cloth mills in Fall River is impending. Already the unions have voiced their intention to resist the cut down proposed by the manufacturers, the mill spinners unanimously declaring that they will hunger and even starve before they will accept the new schedule. The mill spinners' committee has asked that the unions in the various New Eng-land mill cities be urged to give finan cial assistance. The National Mill Spinners' association will be apt to ledge its assistance.

At meetings of the carders and weavers' committee the talk is much calmer. The sentiment seemed to be unani-mous to resist although it is pointed out that the actual feeling of organized labor in this city will be shown at the meeting of the textile council Thurs. day evening.

German Crown Prince's Movements.

New York, Aug. 14.-Concerning the movements of the German crown prince the London correspondent of the Tribune cables:

It is reported that the German crown prince will arrive here on Friday. His visit is to be strictly incognito, and its object is not known, but it is likely to revive the rumors of an impending engagement to the heir to the throne and Princess Ina of Battering.

H. E. Garman Called to Pittsburg.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 14.-President H. E. President Garman has not decided whether he can find time to go.

> BREAKFAST ON DRINK. Coffee Makes Many Dyspeptics,

"Coffee and I had quite a tussle. Two years ago I was advised by the doctor to quit the use of coffee, for I had a chronic case of dyspepsia and serious nervous troubles, which did not yield to treatment. I was so addicted to cof-fee that it seemed an impossibility to quit, but when I was put on Postun. Cereal Food Coffee, there was no trouble in making the change, and today I am a well woman."

in the crib discovered that their position was extremely critical. About twenty-one men and one woman were hemmed in by the burning crib, which was of wood and was filed with inflam-mable material. Too terrified to dress they were forced back step by step to the water's edge by the advancing fire

In a few minutes the remainder of the

hre. Smoke enveloped them and their only hope seemed the water of the lake. They were without boats and three miles from shore they had no hope of aid reaching them. Soon the flames forced them into the water and rather. forced them into the water and gathering any piece of wreckage possible jumped into the lake. There was not even a ledge around the crib for the imperilled people to cling to, and they were floating near the burning crib screaming for help, when the tug Sprankle reached the scene. The tug was in the harbor when the fire was first seen and though it went at full speed to the burning structure, the building had burned to the water's edge when it reached there. Capt. H. Thorne of the tug J.

Sprankle stated that he found the lake in the vicinity of the fire swarming with men. They were all naked and were swimming about in the water almost exhausted. He says that he says at least one man throw up his arms in despair and sink to a watery grave. Capt. Thorne and his crew rescued eighteen of the men and brought them to Cleveland

Daniel Hartman was one of those brought in on the Sprankle. He said that the first intimation of anything wrong was the terrific explosion which awakened him and others.

"A fearful panic followed," he said, "many of the men rushing from their beds and throwing themselves into the lake. I ran from my bunk and looked around and saw that the crib was doomed. The fire spread like lightning and there was hardly any use fighting it. It soon got too warm for me and I jumped into the water."

Men brought in by the tug all united in saving that there was little hope for the poor unfortunates in the shaft.

"The elevator is burned," they said, "and they are cornered down there like rats. As soon as the air becomes dead they will smother."
