

singers from the high schools, were stationed at the intersections of Washington and Fourteenth Streets, opposite the City Hall. School girls were dressed in white, trimmed in gay colors, and each of the 5,000 children held a bouquet of flowers.

When Grant's carriage reached the corner of Clay and Fourteenth Streets, he alighted and taking the arm of C. N. Fox, president of the City Board of Education, and accompanied by State Superintendent Campbell and Mayor Andrews, and followed by veterans of the Mexican war, he walked down the row of school children and up the other amid showers of bouquets and flowers suspended across the avenue. The children bore three banners. The first was inscribed, "Welcome, Grant, the City's Guest," the second contained a quotation from Grant's Des Moines speech: "The free school is a promoter of that intelligence which is to preserve us as a free nation;" on the third was, "We strew these roses beneath the feet of him who saved us from defeat." As the General and party began their review of the children, the High School pupils, accompanied by the Sixth Regimental band, sang "America." When they reached the City Hall they sang "The Star-Spangled Banner," and when he returned to his carriage, "Red, White and Blue." The procession then proceeded through the splendidly decorated streets and throngs of people to a pavilion on Harrison Street, arriving at 1.25 p.m.

The military and civic companies filed in and formed on either side of the building. General Grant and party, the committees and invited guests were seated on the platform, and then the doors were thrown open, and multitudes filed through, passing the General in the review and going out at the rear. The pavilion was splendidly decorated with evergreens, wreaths of flowers, mottoes and flags.

When the crowd had all passed through, the Grant party were again placed in carriages and driven to Tubbs' Hotel, where a fine collation was spread in the large dining hall elaborately decorated. Across the upper end on a raised platform was a table for General Grant and attendants, and down the body of the room were three long tables for the guests. While the feasting was in progress, the First Regiment band played patriotic airs. Over 500 persons joined in the banquet. From the hotel the party drove to Badger's Park, to attend a camp fire of Federal and Confederate soldiers and sailors of Alameda county. The tables were spread in the amphitheatre and covered with tin plates, cups, knives and forks, and supplied with "hard tack," pork and beans, coffee and tobacco, and when these had been discussed, L. B. Edwards, chairman of the committee in charge, introduced General Grant to the surroundings, and as soon as the prolonged cheers had subsided, Grant addressed his old comrades as follows:

Gentlemen of the two armies and navy: I am very proud of the welcome you have given me to-day. I am particularly happy to see good will and cordiality existing between soldiers of two armies, and I have abiding faith that this good feeling will always exist. You need not have anything to fear from any nation in the world. I am satisfied from travels in foreign lands that no country will wish to meet us as united people. They will be perfectly willing to do us justice without appeal to arms, and as that is all that Americans want, I am confident our country has a long career of peace and prosperity before her.

On his return from Oakland this evening General Grant attended a banquet tendered by a number of representatives of the press to John Russell Young. A number of distinguished gentlemen were present, including Governor Irwin, Mayor Bryant, Generals McDowell and Miller, Senators Jones and Sharon, Congressmen Page and Davis, of California; Templeton, of Illinois; Hazelton, of Michigan, and others. In reply to a toast General Grant responded briefly, expressing his gratification at the welcome awarded him in California, concluding: "The good of my countrymen is dearer to me than the praise of all the world besides." The General remained but a few minutes and left for the carnival ball at the Pavilion. Dennis Kearney called at the Palace Hotel to-day and sent up his card to Gen. Grant, but the General declined to receive him.

FOREIGN.

LONDON, 24.—The lines of communication in Khoram and Khor-yber valleys are being strengthened by considerable reinforcements, and various posts are being fortified in view of the possibility of local troubles.

It is now clear that the object of the meeting of Andrassy and Bismarck was to maintain peace in Europe by a strong alliance, and to gradually separate Russia from the rest of Europe.

Lord Salisbury and Minister Waddington have agreed to reject the Russian proposal for a European commission of control over the entire administration of Egypt.

The Chinese ambassador and suite have gone to Livadia, to visit the Czar and exchange ratifications of the treaty between Russia and China, leaving a permanent mission at St. Petersburg, under one of his present staff.

John Henry Peston, member of Parliament, sailed from Liverpool for Philadelphia, on a brief visit to the United States, to investigate subjects connected with agriculture in America in its relation to British interests.

OTTAWA, 24.—The Dominion Exhibition was formally opened, to-day, by his Excellency the Governor-General and Princess Louise. Twenty thousand people were present, including the governors of Ohio, Maine, and Vermont, with their respective staffs.

LONDON, 25.—The force under Gen. Baker reached Kushi yesterday afternoon.

Yakob Khan's envoys have had an interview with Sir Frederick Roberts, and have assured him of the Ameer's friendliness and willingness to be guided by British advice.

Stanley, when at Sierra Leone, gave his name as Swinburn, and invested the expedition with so much mystery and secrecy that the steamer Albion, in which he and his party arrived, was in danger of being stopped by the authorities. Stanley then declared himself and his purpose.

The cotton operatives on strike at Ashton, will resume work on Monday, at five per cent. reduction.

The Agence Russe, semi-official, denies that Russia is intriguing with Afghanistan and says: "Had Russia wished to create difficulties for England, she would have liberated Abdul Rahman, the pretender to the Afghan throne, whom, on the contrary, she is watching in Samarcand, and is preventing his flight to Afghanistan."

The Agence Russe concludes as follows:—"The events at Cabul and in the Turcoman territories tend to prove the necessity of a good understanding between England and Russia."

QUEBEC, 25.—Two inches of snow fell at Mt. Lewis this morning.

LAND CLAIMS.

Those of our readers who are interested in land matters, and especially those who contemplate making entries of final proofs should not fail to call at Chas. W. Stayner's Land Office Agency, south of Z. C. M. I., Main Street, Salt Lake City, U. T. They will invariably find it to their advantage to call on him before going to the Land Office, as he will give them advice gratis how to proceed.

A REAL LADIES' JOURNAL.

EHRICH'S FASHION QUARTERLY, of which the fall number lies before us, seems in every respect to be just what a lady needs. Here are all the fashions of the coming fall illustrated and described at length, in a variety to suit every taste and pocket; the illustrations being, not the highly colored copies of foreign designs, but the faithful transcripts, by competent artists, of actual costumes in the publishers' possession. Here, too, are drawings of an infinity of other articles of feminine and household use, executed with equal fidelity and excellence. And accompanying the description of each and every item is a statement of the prices at which it can be furnished in various degrees of excellence.

The purely literary department of the magazine is also very meritorious. Stories, sketches and poems, by authors of prominence, occupy this portion of its pages, and are diversified with lessons in dress-making, practical suggestions for housekeepers, and a well written article on lace making at home which will be studied by every lover of fancy work.

The subscription price of the magazine, only 50 cents a year, is small enough; but that none need feel they are investing their money without due knowledge, the publishers have prepared a special edition of advance specimen sheets of the Fall number, which they offer to send to any address, free, on receipt of a 3 cent stamp for postage.

Published by Ehrlich & Co., 287 to 295 Eighth Avenue, New York.
