BRAVE DEED OF UNKNOWN SAILOR

Rammed Home Charge in Gun on The Georgia, Closing it Before Flames Got to It.

GAVE HIS LIFE FOR OTHERS.

When He Saw Flash Did Not Seek Ladder but Sought to Avert A Terrible Disaster.

Boston, July 17.-On board the Georgia in Boston harbor this afternoon. Capt. Henry McCrea told to the Associated Press the story of the disaster on board the battleship on Monday, which has cost the lives of nine men of the United States navy and caused injury, in some cases probably fatal, to 13 others. Capt. McCrea

CAPT. McCREA'S STORY.

I saw we were beating the records of the other ships of the fleet. On the bridge I could hear the commands from the after turnet. So I knew when the next shot was coming.

"I heard the shout, Fire," but there was no shot, and then I saw men running aft to get the fire hose that is always laid out in readiness when there is firing going on.

"I rushed to the after bridge, near the turnet to see what was the matter. The water was already being poured into the turnet. The boatswain and Midshipman Gravescroat led the way for their men with the hose, I tell you, there was courage. No man knew into what danger he might he rushing. But those men never

"Then they began to bring out the men. One of the first was the one in whose hands the powder was when it flashed. He was laid on top of the lower turret, with a blanket under his head. I went to him. I could not precognize him. His hands were burned to the bones. The flesh was gone. ed to the bones. The fiesh was gone. With those hands raised above his chest and the tips of the fingers bent toward each other, I could hear him whisper: 'Oh God; Oh, God; O

He could not move his hips enough to utter other words.

"I bent closer and said to him: 'My dear fellow, God has heard your prayer.' He was breathing, but in short gasps and soon died.

"The men were brought out as fast as they could be taken from the turret. Most of them felt relief as soon as they got to the open air. The gases from smokeless powder are terrible. That's what kills. The external burns were hideous, but to breathe that stuff is fatal.

nal burns were hideous, but to breathe that stuff is fatal.

"One man in that turret was not hurt-Midshimman Kimball—and I do not understand how he could have escaped. He helped to take out the men! He, too, showed grit after the hock he had had. Lieutenant Goodrich set an example to his men that none but a courageous officer could set, when he plunged right into the flame and gases to lead the way to safety. I told his father, Rear Admiral Goodrich, that it was such offisatety. I told his father, Rear Admiral Goodrich, that it was such officers that made a great navy. His example will not be forgotten. After he got to the deck he threw himself overboard. If our launch had not been nearby on its return from the examination of targets he would have vented a far greater disaster. I don't know his name. He's dead. He and one other stood by the second gun that had just been loaded. The last powder bag had been put in, was protruding a little from the gun. When he saw the flash, instead of dashing for the ladder to save himself, he crowded home the charge in the gun and with the help of the other men got the gun closed before the flame reached the bag. If the flame had touched that bag there would have been an awful explosion, for the powder was confined in the gun and would not have flashed as the other did, but would have exploded. Not a man in the turret would have been left alive, whether other damage might have been done. That man gave his life for others.

"I am told Prest. Roosevelt has inquired about a man that gave his life in closing the shutter from the ammunition room to save the ship from blowing up. It would be very wrong to have a story like that go out, because I cannot find that there is any foundation for it, or need for a man to make any attempt to do anything of the sort. But if the president wants heroism, let him look up this brave man who stood by his gur to save the rest.

"Since we went back to the target grounds the men have been shooting better than before the accident.

"We haven't finished practise, and we are going back to the targets and break the record."

The board carefully inspected the turret in which the explosion occurred, and took the evidence of such officers and men as were familiar with the conditions about the turret at the time and were witnesses of the affair.

The Georgia steamed up the harbor this afternoon and the board of inquiry transferred its investigations to the naval hospital at Chelsea.

Owing to the critical condition of the injured men in the hospital, four of whom it was feared might not survive the night the surgeons in charge of the hispital would permit the board of injured men.

quiry to examine only three of the injured men.

The men who were interviewed by the board were Charles Hansell, gunner's mate, of New York; Charles L. Eich, ordinary seaman, of Frankfort, Ind., and Samuel L. Rosenberger, ordinary seaman of Philadelhpla. The nature of the questions and answers was not given out, the inquiry being strictly secret.

It is understood that the investigations of the board are practically complete, and that tomorrow its finangs will be transcribed and forwarded to Washington through Admiral Thomas.

ANOTHER THEORY OF ACCIDENT. Among the naval officers of the fleet

Among the naval officers of the fleet there is a growing sentiment to reject the theory that the powder was set afire by a stray spark from the funnels of the ship.

It is known that the crew of the after superimposed turret had an intense weal to become the crack crew of the fleet, and it is thought that over-zeal-ousness and disregard of precautions in such rapid handling of the guns might have caused the tragedy, the explosion being due, possibly to unburned grains of powder from the breech igniting the bag of powder.

of powder from the breech igniting the bag of powder.

Late today it was learned that the dead seaman known as George Miller enlisted under an assumed name. His right name was Benjamin Kreiger. He left his home in Brooklyn last February and enlisted in the navy. His mother is believed to be either in Los Angeles or some place in Georgia.

Article 63—The church shows herself to be incapable of guaranteeing the efficiency of evangelical morality, for she remains tightly bound between a doctrine which cannot be made to agree with modern progress.

Article 64—The progress of science requires a reform in the conception of the Christian doctrine on the subjects of God, the creation and the revelation.

Article 65—Modern Catholicism cannot be made to agree with science if it cannot be transformed into Catholicism that is non-dogmatic, that is to say, protestantism large and liberal.

The great part of the propositions are such as any other Christian church would have condemned as a menace to Christianity.

The vatican will follow up the syllabus with vigorous disciplinary measures against all priests refusing to subscribe to its decisions.

TELEPHONE COMPANIES.

Cannot Withhold Use of Their Lines From Competitors.

St. Paul, Minn., July 17.—A special to the Pioneer Press from Helena, Mont.,

Judge Hunt in the United States court today rendered a decision of far-reaching importance to telephone users holding that one company could not withhold the use of its lines from anwithhold the use of its lines from another, even though it is competing. The Montana & Wyoming and Mutual Telephone companies applied to the court for an order compelling the Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone company to furnish connections when desired at reasonable compensation, which was resisted on the ground that the lines were built for its patrons and not those of competing companies. Judge Hunt found for the compalinants, and state it that within a few days he would name a commission to fix the division of charges when such use is made of connecting lines.

Local parties, among them Mayor Arthur C. Harper, are heavily interested in the new field.

New York, July 17 .- In view of the widespread publicity given the plans of widespread publicity given the plans of Klaw & Erlanger for the acquisition of European theaters and possible confusion regarding the scope of the enterprise, L. L. Erlanger today gave out the following statement:

"The $1,000,000 corporation which is being formed and in connection with which Levy Mayer, our counsel, sailed for Europe on Tuesday, is entirely separate from the United States Amusement company and from the so-called theatrical syndicate, and will be in no sense a merger of existing theatrical orsense a merger of existing theatrical o ganizations. It has a wholly distinct purpose—the purchase of theatrical realty all over the world. We have been realty all over the world. We have been offered a great many theaters in different parts of Europe, and, if the terms can be agreed upon, we shall purchase the properties outright and conduct these theaters on the Ameripurchase of big vaudeville theaters.

"No one excepting the parties connected with our negotiations is in our confidence, and it is hardly necessary for me to say will be because that is not the way that big plans are formulated and carried out.

"The vaudeville theaters that are purchased will be operated by the United States Amusement company and the ed States Amusement company and the legitimate theaters that are acquired will be conducted in conjunction with the theatrical syndicate. I desire it to be clearly and emphatically understood that the new corporation will be an institution entirely separate from the United States Amusement company and the syndicate, but it will work in harmony with and prove beneficial to armony with and prove beneficial to both.

"Mr. Mayer, before sailing for Europe, had practically arranged for the capital. He will be the legal adviser and the executive business will be placed in my charge."

NEW YORK RECOUNT LAW IS CONSTITUTIONAL.

New York, July 17 .- Justice Ingraham in the appellate division of the su-preme court today announced that the court had unanimously decided that the recount law which provides for a rerecount law which provides for a recount of the ballots cast in the last mayoralty election in New York city, is constitutional. In view of the action yesterday of the appellate division in Brooklyn in deciding that William R. Hearst is entitled to a recount under this law, Justice Ingraham stated that it had been decided to let the case go to the court of appeals for final decision. In the meantime, Justice Ingraham said the court would issue an order for a stay of proceedings under the law, until the court of appeals had time law, until the court of appeals had time to render a decision. Clarence F. Shearn, counsel for Mr.

Hearst, raised the point that the cour had no authority to issue an order to stay the operation of a law passed by the legislature. After an argument the court reserved decision.

court reserved decision.

The court, after consultation, denied the motion to make permanent the temporary writ of prohibition, but granted a stay of further, proceedings until the court of appeals shall have passed upon the constitutionality of the recount law.

The decision of the appellate court today precludes the possibility of a recount of the ballots in the last mayoralty election until fall, as the court of appeals will not be abe to reach the case until October.
