

and other sources of water supply; also to build, to construct and maintain reservoirs, canals, ditches, conduits, flumes, and other means of storing and conveying water, together with all necessary dams, headworks, regulating gates and other means of controlling the supply, use and flow of the water for the purposes mentioned; also, for the doing of all things necessary to carry into effect the purposes and objects of the corporation.

The capital of the corporation is to be $2,100,000 divided into 21,000 shares of $100 each.

The subscriptions to capital stock are to be paid in money or property, such as water appropriations, and rights to the use of water from Bear Lake, Bear River, Ogden River, Weber River and other tributary sources; also contracts and franchises for supplying water to Ogden and Corrinne, and for irrigation of land lying tributary to the aforesaid source of water supply; also, irrigating canals, reservoir sites, rights of way for canal and real and personal property acquired, as well as labor performed in connection with the water appropriation and the rights and franchise mentioned, together with all hereditament and appurtenances pertaining thereto, and any and all easements acquired thereby, and by the continued development thereof.

The term of existence of the company is to be fifty years.

The general place of business will be Ogden, while the business is to be carried on in Utah and Idaho.

The board of directors are as follows: John R. Bothwell, the promoter of the project; John T. Caine, delegate from Utah to the House of Representatives in Congress; Louis B. Adams, of the Utah National Bank of this city; Francis E. Roche, heavy land owner in Weber and Box Elder counties; Jas. C. Armstrong, president of the Commercial National Bank of this city; Charles C. Richards, president of the Utah Trust and Loan Company of this city; James H. Bacon, president of the Salt Lake Bank, of Salt Lake City.

The organization as far as completed stand as follows: John R. Bothwell, president; James H. Bacon, secretary and treasurer. Vice president has not been elected.

The annual stockholders' meetings for election of directors are to be held the first Tuesday in May, of each year.

The powers of the company are as follows: To fix, regulate and receive the rates, tolls and charges for supplying water; to make by-laws for the management of the corporation and its officers; to issue bonds to such amounts as may be deemed necessary to carry out the objects of the corporation; to secure the payment of all bonds issued, by mortgage or trust deed upon the franchises or other property now owned or hereafter acquired by the corporation; to possess all powers, privileges and immunities of private corporations organized under the laws of Utah.

Mr. Bothwell was seen last evening in regard to the first meeting to be held by the board. He stated that an informal meeting of the board would be held today to go through the papers of the company up to date and the business that had been transacted so far. On the following day the first formal meeting will be held in this city. At that meeting Mr. Bothwell, president of the company, will make the formal assignment of the city water contract to the corporation incorporated yesterday. That is, the company as incorporated will take hold of the contract made with Ogden City and carry it out to completion.—Standard.

CURRENT EVENTS.

Released From Prison.

Bishop Zundell, of Washakie, Box Elder County, was liberated from the penitentiary a few days ago, having served a sentence of four months for unlawful cohabitation. The fine and costs amounted to $126, which were paid.

The Full Term.

Thomas S. Higham, of the Twenty-first Ward, was sentenced in the Third District Court September 30, for living with his wives, contrary to the provisions of the Edmunds law. In reply to Judge Anderson's inquiry he stated that he had nothing to say before the passing of the sentence. The Judge then assumed a stern expression of countenance and remarked that he would show no leniency. The full penalty, six months' imprisonment and a fine of $300 and costs, was then imposed. Mr. Higham was taken to the penitentiary later in the day.

Returned Missionaries.

Elder A. H. Woolley, of this city, returned home on September 30, from a mission to the Northern States. He left home on October 8th, 1887, and labored in the Southern portion of Illinois for the first few weeks. He was then called to the Pennsylvania Conference. From that time until April last he sojournd in the southern part of Pennsylvania, chiefly in Bedford and Fulton counties. He next proceeded to Long Island, N. Y., where he remained for a period of nearly three months. In regard to the work at Long Island, this is an old mission field, and Elder Woolley did not meet with much encouragement, there being very little inquiry concerning the Gospel. There is a small branch numbering some thirty Saints, who have established a relief society which is doing a good work.

As to Pennsylvania, Elder Woolley describes the people as being very hospitable, and says that they treat the missionaries with marked kindness. Some few persons embraced the Gospel during his stay amongst them, and others are at present investigating. Elder Woolley left Long Island toward the end of August last, and attended the Pennsylvania conference, held in West Virginia, being released from his labors as a missionary on September 16.

He comes back to Utah in good health, having greatly enjoyed his mission. He was joined, when at Long Island, by his wife, who has ever since been the companion of his travels.

Elder Robert McMichael, of Whitesville, Summit County, reached this city on Sunday evening from a mission to West Virginia. He left Utah on December 12th, 1888, and went to Mathias, Hardy County, where he continued until the 15th of the present month, when he was released on account of ill-health.

Elder McMichael reports satisfactorily of the people among whom he has been laboring. Generally they treated him with much kindness, and many were found anxious to investigate the Gospel. The meetings were, on the whole, well attended, and but little opposition was offered to the Elders during his stay.

Shot for a Deer.

The Utah Journal of Sept. 30, has the following particulars of a sad occurrence:

Hyrum Jensen was shot and killed in Blacksmith Fork Canyon on Thursday morning by H. H. Peterson, Jr., a teacher of one of the Hyrum schools. The facts as nearly as can be learned are as follows: On Wednesday morning the young men started up Blacksmith Fork deer hunting. They camped at the left hand fork of the canyon and before daylight on Thursday morning started out for deer. It was agreed between the young men that Jensen should follow the ridge and Peterson should go up the hollow, the arrangement being so made that no accident might occur. After going for a time Peterson saw something moving in the bushes in the hollow, and thinking it a deer, he fired. He is an excellent shot, and immediately following the report of his gun came a frightful scream. In an instant he divined what had happened, and ran to the spot. There he found young Jensen dying, with a rifle shot hole through his body near the abdomen. Jensen exclaimed: "Henry, you have shot me." He lived about twenty minutes, but told Peterson that he was not responsible for what had been done, declaring: "I should have followed the ridge as we agreed and it would not have happened." When Jensen breathed his last, Peterson ran three miles to the nearest point where assistance could be gotten and secured help. Placing the dead body of his companion in a wagon he drove it to Hyrum alone, where it was taken home. Word was sent to Logan and C. C. Shaw, justice of the peace, immediately went to Hyrum. An inquest was held over the remains on Friday morning and a verdict returned which corresponded with the facts above given.

Another sad feature in this connection is the fact that a younger brother of the deceased is now lying dangerously ill from typhoid fever. In all ways it is a most unhappy affair.