OFFICIAL INTEGRITY.

THERE has been some controversy of late concerning the character of an extraordinary proportion of the great men of the world in all departments of certain federal officials, and statecertain federal officials, and state-ments have been made and charges the Italian people, especially in Southern offered which reflect severely upon some of them. Denials of certain of we can easily find the cause of this without these statements and charges are made, and assertions are put forward The Germanic (Including the Anglo-Sax of unswerving official integrity. on or British) stock, and the Celtis-Lish Whether technically the charges stock, have heretofore had the making of and accompanying statements can be legally sustained and proved, is store assisted to the work by the Latin a question for the courts to deter-mine if it ever comes before them, or and with those charges we have little to do. But when immaculate composite, and will, perhaps, in time, gain certain qualities which it would be used the worse for having. We may be quite sure that the American type, at the close of next contary, will differ in many respects from the American type which existed at the close of inst century. integrity is professed, the public opens its ears, knowing that appearances do not justify such snowy whiteness of official character in all federal officials, however honorable community. But there have been there is still not so much done in and are others of whom we could not conscientiously say as much.

Protestations, no matter how use of those who are insured and not conselections, no matter how Protestations, no matter how solemn, go a very little way, when they run counter to known and un-deniable facts, being indeed worse than silence. If an official in all his official dealings, shows a fair, frank, straightforward, up-right spirit, and invariably dis-charges the functions of his office in an impartial man-ner, in the manifestly true intent and spirit thereof, he makes good his claim to official integrity, and his protestations of the same are worthy of ready acceeptance, being supported by the best of all back-ing--noble actions, fairly above suspicion. That such has not isen suspicion. That such has not been the case with some Federal officials is well and painfully known. No person can sustain a claim to offi-cial integrity who enters upon his official labors with, or displays in them, any other purpose than to properly fulfill his duties in their proper spirit. If his main object is proper spirit. If his main object is of the entire loss at the amo some other than this, he is corrupt, and that main object, sooner or later, will swerve him from the proper performance of his duty, as in many known instances in this. WASHINGTON, 14.—The Treasury department is advised of a very gross violation of the Danks of New York City. It appears that in order to assist the operations of the build clique in gold, some of these banks have been accustomed to sub-ject the gold on depesit to a double use, they have both reported it to the Treasury as specie gold deposits and have also used it as special collater-als for loans. A convention has been sitting on the matter at Jackson, Tennessee, but the main difficulty is that much of the territory to be taken away from the old States will not part with it, and there is no likelihood of Congressional consent to the scheme.
