der in Heber.

Leslie Downs Again in Trouble—Death
Of John Davidson—Wedding Permits.

Ogden, Jan. 6.—An autopsy performed yesterday on the body of Theodore Fries, who was killed a week ago at Heber City by a man named Coburn, developed facts sufficient to warrant the officers in making preparations to make other arrests. Just what conditions were found by the physicians who examined the body would not be given until last evening, preferring to hold the same a secret for the present. Several bullet wounds were found on his body that were not known before. There were present at the autopsy besides the physicians the sheriff and county attorney of Summit county. The officers have returned to Heber City, where it is said other arrests will be made. Fries was to have been buried yesterday from Lindquist's undertaking parlor, but the burial was postponed until today.

LESLIE DOWNS IN THE TOILS.

The arrest of Leslie Downs of Ogden at Milwaukee is no surprise to the local police as when he lived in Ogden he was a source of trouble to the officers because of his depredations. The Milwaukee police requested the local police to intercept express packages that had been sent west by the youthful criminal. They were successful in locating a box containing a number of watches which they are confident were stolen and sent her as a present. A description of the articles found in the box was given to the local police. Downs, who was in with a gang of young toughs, who were thieving and plundering. Among the many crimes looked against him was his being implicated in holding up a Chinaman and striking him over the head with a gun. He succeeded in getting out of that offense because of his youth and a flaw in the juvenile court laws.

Three Japs were held up last night at the rear of the Faber saloon on Twenty-fifth street by a couple of men who did not exhibit any guns. The foreigners were relieved of a watch and some small change. The hold-up was promptly reported to the police with the result that Detective Hutchins and Officer Harberson an hour later arrested Frank Clayton and Charles Lowry, who this morning were identified by the Japs as being the men who turned the trick. The prisoners will be charged with highway robbery.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

VALUE OF FARM CROPS.

Mount Pleasant Farmers Realize Quarter Million from Farms.

Special Correspondence.

Mt. Pleasant, Jan. 5.—David Davey of Mt. Pleasant, and Thomas Rees of Washes, who have been doing some work on an old coal claim in the vicinity of, south of here, are succeeding so well that by the end of this month they intend to have coal on the market here. The vein is from 15 to 20 inches thick, is of excellent quality at a depth of 100 feet. Several claims have been opened up at that depth and as many men will be at work there in a few days.

Two men are at work under these same gentlemen in the old Bonnie mine, two miles east of Heber. They feel confident that a good body of coal will be found by drifting in a different direction.

VELVET FOR FARMERS.

The threshing machines companies make the following report on this fall's work, which shows something of the amount of grain raised in this vicinity. The Monson Threshing Machine company threshed 19,000 bushels of wheat, 19,455 bushels of oats, and 3,590 bushels of barley. Making a total of 23,045 bushels.

The Jordan-Renberg Threshing Machine company threshed 19,500 bushels of wheat, 3,000 bushels of oats, and 5,000 bushels of barley, making a total of 27,500 bushels.

The third company was one run by a horsepower and its total was about 20,000 bushels; a grand total of 90,000 bushels. This would mean to the town in dollars between $50,000 and $60,000. Through the creamery industry about $65,000 was realized. The sheep, cattle, and other industries of less importance would bring about the same as the other two, making a combined income of the town running between $250,000 and $275,000.

HORSEMANSHIP IN THE U. S. ARMY

Officers Must Pass the Riding Tests Prescribed by President or be Retired.

GEN. BELL SUBMITS REPORT.

In Europe Mounted Officers Must Keep Themselves and Mounts in Fit Condition for Instant War.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Thirteen photographs from life, illustrative of hair-raising exploits in horsemanship, form the unique exhibit sent to Congress by direction of the president to accompany recommendations from himself and the chief of the staff for the betterment of army riding. These pictures are intended to show how far ahead of American military men are Europeans in the art of riding. They certainly constitute a remarkable series. One of the most thrilling pictures represents an Italian cavalryman riding over a 20-foot perpendicular cliff, the photograph being taken in series to illustrate the sagacity of the horse and the skill of the rider in maintaining a pose within the center of gravity in different stages of the descent. There are pictures of German student officers apparently leaping from hill to hill, of fat farmers and lieutenant-colonels of the same nationality going through bogs and swamps over hedges. French obstacle riding, the famous drag-hunt of the German army, and stirring pictures of the hounds in full cry on boar hunts.

The official correspondence with these pictures consists of a letter from the president to the secretary of war on Dec. 30 last, requiring of him to secure legislation regarding infantry-mounted officers and establish remount depots, saying:

"Both of these measures are essential to the improvement of horsemanship in the army."

Another letter from the president to the chairman of the house committee on military affairs transmits a report from Maj.-Gen. Bell, chief of staff, explaining the photographs the president saying:

"The field officers of our army can not be held exclusively responsible for the poor riding which has been frequently observed among them. The quality of our horses does not equal that of mounts used in foreign armies. Furthermore, though all infantry captains in European armies are mounted, an infantry officer in our service has little opportunity to practise riding until he becomes a field officer."

Gen. Bell prefaces his report by quoting a note from the president referring to "a number of press comments, apparently inspired by the impression that such a test (riding ability) was somewhat extraordinary and unusual of," and requesting him to state the requirements in foreign armies in this respect. Speaking generally the report shows that the whole in Europe is that all mounted officers of every grade shall keep themselves and their mounts in fit condition for instant war, and most of them maintain schools where student officers are constantly under instruction in horsemanship. Moreover, the conditions of European service are so different from our own that the day work of nearly all mounted officers is performed under the eye of their superior officers, affording ample opportunity to judge of their qualifications in horsemanship, so that special tests are superfluous. The great annual maneuvers also afford practical testing fields of all officers, and any officer deficient in horsemanship at that time is assigned to some kind of duty not requiring physical activity, practically shelved, or becomes subject to retirement without further examination. Cross-country riding to hounds is participated in by all mounted officers, whose efficiency in riding is as well known to everybody as their personality.

Taking up the great military countries separately, Gen. Bell praises the French cavalry. All officers of cavalry take a two months' course in equitation and in ordnance whenever they become majors, at ages varying from 35 to 45 years and weights ranging from 125 pounds to 250 pounds. The course includes obstacle jumping, hedge and water jumping and cross-country work generally. The school horses are used and changed every day, and the officer spends about four and a half hours daily in the saddle. Beside this, he exercises his own two or three private mounts. Steeplechasing is frequently indulged in, and it is not an uncommon thing to see gray-haired majors or lieutenant colonels indulging in this sport. One French test last year consisted of one day of school work, one day for a march approaching 45 miles at an average speed of eight miles an hour, one two-mile steeplechase and one day's obstacle jumping.

In Germany it is a common thing to call a goodly number officers of the rank of captain and higher from the army for deficiency in riding or endurance in the saddle. When brigades and divisions frequently march 35 miles per day, mostly at night, it can be seen that a very considerable demand is made on the senior mounted officers.

Says Gen. Bell:
"At Hanover, where the German riding institute is situated, the bridle paths are full of fat majors and captains hammering along with grim determination in their faces. Referring to such officers, young students of the riding school have a jocular saying, 'His bread basket will buy him a top hat before long,' meaning that the brigade commander will write the officer referred to a most courteous note thanking him for the splendid service he has rendered the fatherland for so many years, saying he would always be held in the highest esteem for his efficiency, etc., whereupon the recipient forwards his application for retirement. The way officers who really love their profession struggle against stoutness and incapacity for field work, which means that they must go, is said to be pitiful. It is also astonishing what wonders dogged perseverance in practise effects."

The hardest German test is a drag hunt lasting six weeks, three hunts a week, beginning with a gallop of from five to six kilometers (a little over a half mile each) and working up to 80. The going is stiff, the fences are big, with numerous streams and ditches, and the ground soft and slippery. No one but the surgeon stops for a man that goes down. Says Gen. Bell: "That the test is really severe may be judged from the fact that it is commonly referred to as the 'Knochen Muhle' (bone mill), on account of the number of bones broken."
