To the Deseret News: Nothing could | quotes E. H. Roberts' convention more perfectly betray the weakness of speech in answer. All this is so many more perfectly betray the weakness of their side, who declare for separate maintenance of the Agricultural college and the university than that last communication from Logan. The northern town is the home of the A. C., its population generally torment their ingenuity for reasons why the college should not be moved, and Mr. Thoresen himself no "fastidious and ambitious theorist," and fully imbued with the prejudice of his community in this respect, 'was born soon enough" to have attended "our past legislatures and conventions," where this subject was dis-cussed. And yet these two letters of his are the strongest argument that he or they can make for separation! ONLY GENERAL STATEMENTS.

In this last letter he begins by grave ly setting down in a general statemen for which the Logan people contend He charges Salt Lake with wanting the change; he speaks of the great loss that would be involved to the rest of the state; he asserts that the "other educational and public institutions" would suffer. And this after the facts and figures I gave to prove the conpoint. trary.

NO PLOT BY SALT LAKE.

Salt Lake does not "want" consoli-dation. No one here outside of educators and a few merchants whom Logan iself frightened into taking interest in the question, has any concern in the matter other than that the plan best for the state shall be adopted. Indeed, there is a strong suspicion that many in Salt Lak, actually would not like to have the combination effected, because it would cut out 512 students from the preparatory school here and give in return barely 50-a similar alarm, Mr. Thoresen, to what your people have The Logan community is erroneously reading into others the motives that ac-tuates itself. If Mr. Thoresen has given the strongest reasons for separate maintenance, and I suppose he has, be-ing no "theorist" and old enough to have attended legislatures and conventions where this question came up, one would naturally suspect that the popu-lation of Cache valley holds to this local prejudice as its mainstay.

SAYS THORESEN DODGES.

As to the loss involved and the cry about other institutions suffering-what purpose can Mr. Thoresen have in systematically ignoring my facts and fig-ures to prove the opposite? In my former letter in reply to his, I showed clearly not only that there would not be a loss to the state, but that there yould be a saving of more than a mil lion dollars in 15 years, and also that the "other educational and public institutions" of the state, even the agri-cultural college itself, would be better provided for. These facts Mr. Thore sen disdains to notice. If one did no know that the Cache valley people are readers of the "News," one would infe from all this dodging that his letters there were designed for the perusal only of some northern friends, since the Lo-gan Journal publishes only Mr. Thoresen's "bunch to the university professors.

RAISES STRAW MEN.

In order, however, that there should appear in his letters some shred of argument, Mr. Thoresen, with evident deliberation, attributes to me a few ab surd statements so that he might have the pleasure and credit of disproving them. I cannot interpret in any other light his ascription to me, in his first letter, of the notion that the A. C. could women would be attracted and of be made self-supporting, whereas I which we all would be proud, and that showed that the idea originated in a scores of industrial high schools could Cache valley man. Nor can I interpret be established in various parts of the otherwise a statement in this last letof his. He makes it to them greater university might draw students good of the state. an at present. Yours for the from the cast and the west, and he JOHN HENRY EVANS.

thrusts at the air. I never advanced such a theory at any time. I fully concur with Mr. Roberts in his statement that we cannot hope for 50 years to draw from the east and the west. All want with a greater university is save money for the state, to give better training to our own young me and women, to bring high schools to the doors of the people, and to keep our boys at home for their undergraduate work. That is all. How heroic, then, is it on the part of Mr. Thoresen to demolish arguments for consolidation "ad-vanced" by myself. But that kind of reply will not mislead those who read both sides of this controversy.

Evans, Thoresen and Consolidation

ATTENDANCE AGAIN.

Mr. Thoresen decries my unfairness n accepting only the catalogues for 1906-7, and throwing discredit on his 1906-7. figures from previous annuals. I insist-ed on the figures for last year merely because they were the latest, not be-cause I disputed the others. Mr. Thoresen's were not at all to the point, though they were given in refutation of mine. And I refused to accept them as such because they had no application whatever to the subject. I stated, however, that I could accept the figures readily enough, and still not lose my NOT 147 BUT 71.

For the point at issue was, not the general attendance of college students. This number I gave as 71 instead of 147, as statey by Mr. Thoresen; and he asks me for my authority, notwithstanding I gave it at the time. I am aware that 147 is the number of students of college grade announced in the A. C. catalogue for 1906. But this is only on the basis of two years' preparation, a lower standard, as I showed, then either that of the University of Utah or of universities generally throughout the United States. There is no reason why the college should have, a lower standard of entrance requirement than other schools of a similar grade. Besides, the commission (the Logan members included) made their preparatory course. The fresh-men of the A. C. are not college stu-dents, Mr. Thoresen and the A. C. annual to the contrary notwithstanding, and would not be so regarded in any reputable school of higher education, in the United States. As to Mr. Thoresen's complaint that

As to Mr. Increases a complaint that the catalogues for 1906-7 were not be-fore the public, if they were even published, at the time he first wrote, he is mistaken. The U, of U, annual was in the hands of the students early in June, and that of the college was multished maximum to his first was published previous to his first letter. But this is a small matter, and has no bearing on the question. All the facts which I gave from the report of the commission (the commission, Mr. Thoreson, not the two Cache county members), could have been verified by reference to the catalogues. suppose, indeed, that Mr. Thoresen did verify them, for he says nothing about the matter further than to complain at me for knowing that the facts were WHAT LETTERS HAVE SHOWN.

This controversy has proved conclusively that there is no reasonable objection to consolidation, that there a certain blindness (pardonable no doubt) on the part of the north toward the interests of the rest of the state that the Agricultural college could be combined with the university for what either the normal school or the of mittes costs that there would be an actual saving to the state of more than a million dollars in 15 years, that there could be established a great school at home to which our young men and state, where agriculture would

The youth, who is 19 years old, big and husky, was accused of striking his aged father and his little sister last Sunday. The parent was the complaining witness, Young Appel pleaded guilty and when he was fined $75 by Judge C. B. Diehl, the defendant had the nerve to turn to the sire who had been the victim of his assault and asked him to pay the fine. The elder Appel declined, and the ingrate went to jall for 75 days.

Marshall Coming Home-United States Judge John A. Marshall has written Stenographer Christy that he expects to arrive in Salt Lake shortly before the 19th of September, after having a very pleasant vacation in Europe. His return is made earlier than was expected, because of the tremendous return travel from Europe. If he had delayed sailing to a later date i, would have been impossible to have secured return passage before some time in October. He will set cases for trial at Ogden on Sept, 19, the trials to commence on Sept, 24, if any cases are set.
