The B. vs. B. of B. Case Supposed.

Suppose that some time ago, when Henry C. Bowen was a widower, he became engaged to a young lady remarkable for beauty, talents and accomplishments, and, being engaged, expected to marry her. Suppose, however, that before the day set for the marriage, she confessed to him that she had been seduced by the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher. Suppose that Bowen went to Beecher with this revelation; and suppose that then Beecher confessed his crime, likewise went down upon his knees before Bowen, and deploring his sin, declared that he had earnestly and truly repented thereof, and adjured the injured man, for the sake of the woman he had loved, not to expose either the licentious, adulterous pastor, or his beguiled and unfortunate paramour.

Suppose, then, partly because he confided in the genuineness of Beecher's repentance, and partly because his business interests were favored by seeming to believe in Beecher's innocence, Bowen continued to uphold Beecher as the pastor of Plymouth Church, and that this went on for years with varying circumstances, but with silence on Bowen's part as to the purport of Beecher's confession, until another man accuses Beecher of seducing his wife, and the scandal of that accusation becomes loud in the land, and at last it is brought before a court of justice to be investigated and ended.

Under such circumstances would it not be safe for Beecher to defy Bowen, and for his counsel to cover Bowen all over with denunciation and with shame? Could Bowen reply by telling the truth about the acknowledgment of guilt by Beecher, and by dragging out facts which honor requires him to conceal? Can he testify and cover with infamy a woman to whom he had been engaged, and whose fatal secret had been confided to him in such a manner? Must he not maintain silence at the cost of his own reputation and at the sacrifice of every impulse of retaliation and even of justice?

Suppose all this to be true, is not the situation of Bowen really one of the most tragical and pitiable in all the complications of this unprecedented drama?—N. Y. Sun.

"I don't mean to say that Gen. Sherman was not a fair soldier," says Sergeant Bates, apropos of "the book," "but it would have looked better if he had mentioned some of the more conspicuous rank and file by name."—Buffalo Express.

AN ORDINANCE

In relation to Water, Water-Ditches and Culverts.

SEC. 1.—Be it ordained by the City Council of Salt Lake City, that all owners or occupants of lots in said City, requiring water from a main ditch for irrigation or other purposes, are hereby authorized and required to dig suitable ditches to convey the water across the sidewalks, to or from their respective lots.

SEC. 2.—All persons having ditches across the sidewalks, to or from their respective lots, are hereby required to make good box culverts and keep them in repair, the covering of the culverts to be on the same grade as the sidewalks, and to put suitable watertight gates at the ditch entrances of the culverts; and, when their times for irrigating expire, they shall securely close said gates.

SEC. 3.—All persons using ditch water on their lots, during the period when it is allotted by the water masters, and after official notice of said allotment, at any time or in any quantity not so allotted, shall be liable to a fine of not less than one nor more than fifty dollars.

SEC. 4.—All persons having ditches running in front of their lots, between the street and sidewalk, or having ditches in their lots are hereby required to so fix said ditches that the water shall not flow therefrom to the injury of said streets or sidewalks, or to the waste of said water during any period of its allotment for irrigation.

SEC. 5.—All persons desiring to place dams or sluiceways in the water ditches, are hereby required to obtain permission from and construct them under the direction of the watermaster having jurisdiction, and to keep them in proper order, as provided for in the fourth section of this ordinance.

SEC. 6.—All owners of city lots, or parts of city lots or farming lands, within the limits of said City, are hereby required to make and keep in repair the ditches opposite their lots, or parts of lots or farming lands.

SEC. 7.—When it is necessary to make or repair ditches, to convey water for irrigation or other purposes, it shall be the duty of the watermaster to give to the persons concerned therein reasonable notice of the time and place such work is to be done; and it shall be the duty of such persons to make their proportions of said ditches, or the repairs thereon, and in case of refusal or neglect to comply with said notice of the watermaster having jurisdiction, said watermaster is hereby empowered to have the necessary work done, and the cost of said work shall be assessed proportionately to the farming lands, lots, or parts of lots of said delinquents benefitted by said water, and the amount thereof shall be a lien upon said land, lots, or parts of lots as are city taxes.

SEC. 8.—All persons so using water as to cause, through their failure or neglect, damage to any lot, street, sidewalk, ditch bridge, or other property, shall be liable to a fine in any sum not exceeding fifty dollars for such offence, and to pay for all damages accruing thereby.

SEC. 9.—All persons are hereby forbidden to run water or dig ditches across any of the public roads or streets within the limits of this corporation, for the purpose of conveying water for irrigation or other purposes, unless they bridge, pave, or enclose the same under the direction of the Street Supervisor.

SEC. 10.—The watermaster having jurisdiction is hereby required to notify all persons infringing upon this ordinance, and, upon their refusing to comply with its requirements, he shall report them and their infringments to the Mayor or any alderman of this city, who shall cause the offenders to be brought before him, and, upon conviction they shall be liable to a fine in any sum not exceeding twenty-five dollars for each offence, and to pay for all damages that may accree therefrom.

SEC. 11.—In cases where persons are obliged to convey water across grounds between their premises and a public water-ditch, which they are hereby authorized to do, they are hereby required to do so under the direction of the city watermaster, and with the least possible injury to their neighbors' property, both in digging the requisite ditches and in managing the water therein; and, for failure or neglect in so doing, shall be liable to pay for all damages caused thereby. When public water ditches pass through private grounds, the right of way therefor is hereby guaranteed; and any person having the right to use the water therefrom is hereby authorized to pass along said ditches, as occasion may require, during the time said person holds said right; said passing to be under the supervision of the water master having jurisdiction.

SEC. 12.—"An ordinance in relation to water ditches and sidewalks," passed March 3rd, 1860; and "An ordinance relating to the water and water ditches for the farming lands of Great Salt Lake City," passed March 5th, 1860, are hereby repealed.

Passed June 22nd, 1875.
