FIRST PLANS FOR COMMERCIAL CLUB

Architect's Drawings in Hands of Board of Governors for Consideration.

GREAT MODERN STRUCTURE.

It is Ten Stories High, and if Made Fireproof, Will Cost Over $400,000.

Location Not Yet Determined and Other Plans Are Yet to be Submitted to the Board.

General interest is centering in the proposition of the Commercial club to erect a fine nine or ten story building, which shall be a permanent home for the club as well as to afford excellent facilities for offices and business purposes generally. The matter has been brought up before the board of governors several times and always discussed with interest, as the club has become such a popular institution that its membership is steadily increasing and the scope of its social operations become more widely understood and appreciated.

ARCHITECT'S PLANS.

In fact interest has become so marked that the board has finally taken serious steps toward carrying out its cherished plan, and has invited several prominent architects to submit sketches for the office proposed. The plan is to have the two upper floors devoted immediately to the uses of the club, including a large and elegant dining room, with several smaller dining rooms or ordinaries as they are called in hotels; also model kitchen conveniences, commodious and well equipped reading and sitting rooms, parlors and billiard rooms, card rooms, cloak rooms, a spacious library apartment, extensive dressing and wash rooms. The library especially is an object of solicitude, as it is steadily growing, and the works that are bequeathed to its shelves are likely to be of great value, particularly the works of reference which will cover a wide educational and scientific advantage of the club will be made more prominent than ever.

ROOF GARDEN PROVISION.

Then the ladies-wives and daughters of the members of the club, will be no means forgotten, as special reading rooms, parlors, dining and dressing rooms will be provided for them. It is the plan and purpose of the club to make the new apartments very commodious and it is proposed to have a fine roof garden, where members and their families may enjoy concerts during the warm summer weather.

FIRST SET OF PLANS.

The first of the sketches to be presented for the consideration of the board accompanies this article. It is from Mr. Neuhausen's office, and is considered one of the handsomest of the kind yet presented to the local public. No details have as yet been prepared, for the locality of the proposed building has not yet been decided upon, and the style of construction is not yet determined. But such a structure as the one for which plans are herewith presented, would be about 100x150 ft. in actual dimensions. If fire proof construction is to be selected, the entire cost will run over $400,000; if not, the cost will be considerably less. However, it is believed a perfectly fire proof building would be preferable. The board of governors are to be congratulated on taking so important a step which will endow the club more than ever, with its enterprising management, to the commercial world. The final selection of the sketch for the accepted and permanent structure will be made as early as possible.

He caught a slight cold while out fishing a few days ago, but paid no attention to it until today, when we felt it necessary to consult a doctor."

Dr. J. K. Carnochan, the Cleveland family physician, who is attending Mr. Cleveland, would not discuss his patient's condition.

FIVE MEN KILLED IN SAN FRANCISCO

Were Working Unconscious of Their Danger When Walls Topped Over.

HIGH WIND CAUSED COLLAPSE

Foreman Called Out a Warning, Which Some Heeded and Other Laughed At.

San Francisco, Oct. 20.—Five men were killed and two injured by the collapsing of walls caused by the high wind this morning. Three unknown men were crushed to death under a wall at the southeast corner of Commercial and Montgomery and another badly crushed. Two were killed and one probably fatally injured under the ruins of a wall of the John Hoey Furniture company on Mission street near Third.

The names of the dead are Peter Johns and G. Durand, a Greek. The injured man is Charles O'Connor, who lives at Sixteenth and Church streets.

Both accidents occurred at almost the same time—half past eight. The men were working unconscious of danger. The walls swayed for a while in the heavy wind and then crashed down. John Riordan, foreman of the Mission street work, noticed the wall swaying ominously just a few minutes before it fell. At that time there were 12 men working under the mass of masonry. He called to them to come out.

All obeyed but Johns, Durand and O'Connor. C. Carboni, one of the men, was so impressed by the warning that he rushed out, abandoning his team.

O'Connor laughed at the order and Johns and Durand began to leave leisurely. Suddenly there was a louder shout from the foreman. The men looked up and saw the wall begin to topple.

Johns and Durand rushed frantically for the street. O'Connor, seeing that it was too late to escape, backed against the other wall. The wall coming down with a crash.

A cloud of dust rose, hiding the shattered mass of masonry that entombed the three men. Members of the fire department and a detail of police from the southern station impressed a gang of laborers and began the work of rescue before the dust had cleared away. O'Connor, who was pinned against the opposite wall, began to moan pitifully. The sound added strength to the workers' arms, and in a few minutes he was carried out terribly crushed.

The other victims were buried under tons of brick. When the rescuers reached them they were crushed beyond recognition. Their bodies were taken to the morgue. The bodies of the horses were not taken out for hours.

Durand was a resident of Oakland and leaves a large family. The other accident of the morning happened at the southeast corner of Montgomery and Commercial streets. Three men—all of them Italian laborers whose names are as yet unknown—were pinned beneath a falling wall and lost their lives. A fourth man, Giovanni Connesso, was badly injured and now lies between life and death at the Harbor hospital. But for the fact that they had no goggles and quit work rather than labor in the blinding dust raised by the north wind this morning, two more laborers might have lost their lives in this accident.

These four victims were engaged in salvaging brass in the ruins of the brick building formerly occupied by Paul P. Bernhard & Co., manufacturers of the corner of Montgomery and Commercial streets. The building adjoined the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance company's building and was owned by the Insurance company.

The brick side wall adjoining the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance building had been swaying in the wind unnoticed by the working men, and when it toppled over they were pinned beneath it without any warning or any chance for their lives.

A moment after this accident, a policeman turned in a fire alarm from a nearby box. Engine No. 3 responded with 20 firemen, and the work of digging the men out of the ruins was begun. In a short time the lifeless body of one laborer was taken out and a second, still alive, but frightfully mangled, was recovered and rushed to the Harbor hospital. Fully half an hour elapsed before the other two dead bodies had been rescued from beneath the tons of brick that fell upon them. Who the dead men are cannot be known until some of their friends or relatives come forward and identify them. Their fellow laborers do not know their antecedents.

Edward stood at the corner of Locust and Fourth streets, near his brother's business house and when Albert passed, shot without warning, exclaiming, "I'm a man now." Edward, who has been a sanitarium patient, was arrested and at the four courts declared his regret that he had not killed his brother, asserting that the brother exerted a hypnotic spell over him.

At the city hospital it is believed the wounded man cannot live.

HAVANA SUFFERED MOST BY THE CYCLONE.

Havana, Oct. 20.—Reports of the damage done by the storm in the interior of the island continue to come in slowly. The extent of the damage done to the tobacco crop in the province of Pinar del Rio is not yet fully known, but it is believed to be great. The tobacco was planted in this year on account of the continued rains, hence the plants have not yet sprouted and many of the seed beds have been washed out, necessitating re-planting, which will retard the crop. The storm is reported to have been very severe in the Vuelta Ajaja district of Pinar del Rio.

The principal havoc outside of Havana is reported to have been at Batabano, where seven men were drowned, the American steamers Campbell and Sara were wrecked, many houses destroyed and 200 persons rendered homeless. The mayor of Batabano has issued an appeal for relief for the destitute and Gov. Nunez of Havana province, will proceed there today with funds and food supplies.

Elliott, commandant of marines, today received a cablegram from the commandant of marines at the camp, stating that the marine camps suffered only slight damage, that there were no casualties among the men and that all were well. Barrett, assistant treasurer of the Philippines, who sails for the islands tomorrow by the steamship Minnesota, said here last night that the great need of the islands today is the removal of duty from sugar, tobacco and other agricultural products coming from the United States. The islands will never raise sugar in such enormous amounts as to menace the home market, but under the present tariff there is a lack of incentive to planters.

Mr. Barrett further expressed the opinion that the islands would never offer great agricultural possibilities to Americans.
