Time Honored Customs Adhered to by University Students. April fool day was not permitted to slip by at the University without some recognition at the hands of some of the exuberant students. When the fourth year normals gathered in Prof. Stewait's room to recite in pedagogy the inspiration came on. The professor and that he will be able to travel in was jate, the students were idle, ergosome fun. The door was locked securely. One of the students assumed the role of dignified professor and an impromptu program was pulled off that proved to be a veritable mine of merriment. One of the boys told of his prospective experience as a country school teacher. Some of the girls recited with startling elecutionary effect, one of the poys delivered an oration that would have made Mark Anthony's celebrated panegyric sound like the cackle of a ien, But the climax was reached when two of the boys, neither of whom could carry a tune in a sack, sang a ditty about two rods long. One of the critic teachers was present and ad-dressed the class. She admired the ide-awake spirit of the students and
