The mines are running full blast, and he thinks the trouble is practically over.

Saturday night's audience must have been an inspiration to the actor, diffi-cuit as it is said to be to please him. With prices advanced to $2.50 for the best seats, there were not enough of them to gatisfy the demand, and a sec-and night could have been sold out as readily as the first. It goes without saying that the staging and the support ways of a bleb order of excellence According to the dispatches from outland, Mrs. Frances G. Luke of this eity was the visitin of a put up job in which Joseph and Max Seldler were implicated. While on an outing, Mrs. Luke was induced to intrust her cash, 150, to Joseph Seldler, who presently limppeared and failed to show up. Max went out to find Joseph and he were of a high order of excellence, Mansfield would not be the artist he is, if he stopped at anything short of the admirable. Held's band closed its 1903-1904 season o the Grand theater last night, with great elact, before a crowded house. The band's efforts were of a very high order, and showed the effects of long and faithful work. The house was apand faithful work. The house was ap-preciative, so that the musicians did not lack for encouragement. The "Sleigh bell serenade" was especially well received, as was also the saxa-phone and flute duet, and the "Siege of Rochelle," was a difficult work excel-iently performed. Mr. Phillips' tenor solo was well received, and the per-formance of the Schettler stringed quintet, was one of the best perform-ances of the kind ever given in this city. Miss Mulvey particularly proved herself an artist; and it is only fair to say that Prof. Schettler has brought up his pluyers to an high order of perform-ance. Hoyt Sherman leaves this week on an extended eastern trip, in which he will visit his son, who has just gradu-ated from Phillips Andover academy, and will take his examinations on the Such list, for admission to the academ-ical department at Yale.
