

KING LABOR AT LAGOON TODAY.

Clab's Sons of Toil Crowd Every Train to the "Most Beautiful Spot."

ALL BUSINESS IS SUSPENDED.

Newspaper Offices Offer the Only Center of City Activity—The Resorts Are All Throated.

With a laboring man today: "When masses celebrated her labor day a month ago the fear was that the laborers would burn up the empire. In truth today the fear is that the laborers will burn up the track to Lagoon," so great is the rush for trains to this resort. It was an ideal labor day right from sunrise, for everything conspired to make it a day of rest and recreation.

In Salt Lake the day was characterized by quietness, there being few signs of business activity outside of the street cars and the newspaper offices. The stores and public offices were packed tight while they poured forth their laboring masses to enjoy their well-earned day of rest.

NO BLUE MONDAY.

It was not a blue Monday, this day of later, and to be as far away from labor as possible the parade was abandoned with all its respective efforts, and the money it would have cost went into prizes for the Lagoon field day where the state Federation of Labor was held.

THE PROGRAM.

DIVING AND DIPS.

At Salt Lake the crowd started out early in the day, the principal attraction being to get a last dip in the lake and swim the last time this season. An attempt will be made to ride Silver King the handsome diving horse this afternoon, and it promises to be more successful than any previous effort.

AT CALDERS.

versity. While here she visited the juvenile court and secured some data concerning its work and she will also secure data from the juvenile courts of Denver, Chicago and Minneapolis. Miss Hayes is in charge of the college settlement work at South Park, San Francisco, founded by Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, and is very much interested in a plan to teach morals in the schools without teaching sectarian religion. She believes that morals should be taught from an ethical standpoint alone, and that the schools should be character builders as well as brain builders. She was entertained while here by Mrs. Frank Steele and other Salt Lake women and left the city Saturday evening.

JUDGMENT AFFIRMED.

Supreme Court Dees So in Case of Steed vs the R. G. W.

An opinion affirming the judgment of the lower court in the case of Thomson Steed against the Rio Grande Western Railway company, appellant, has been handed down by the supreme court. The case was tried in Davis county and a jury returned a verdict in favor of plaintiff for $1,000 as damages for injury and expense by being struck by a train while attempting to cross defendant's tracks at Farmington on June 27, 1903. Defendant claimed that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence and hence the court erred in refusing to instruct the jury to return a verdict for defendant. The opinion of the supreme court, written by Justice Murray and concurred in by Chief Justice Barch and Justice Straup, affirms the judgment and holds that the court's instructions on contributory negligence were sufficient.

A GOOD TRIP.

Fire Chiefs' Convention at Duluth Most Successful Yet Held.

Chief Bywater, who returned Saturday afternoon from the International and National Fire Chiefs' convention, says he had a most enjoyable and instructive trip. The first convention was held at Duluth, Minn., and the other at Kansas City. The chief said that the convention at Duluth was probably the most successful ever held, and at both cities demonstrations with new fire fighting devices were given and proved of great value.

The most efficient machines, including engines, ladders, trucks, hose wagons and chemicals, were exhibited, and at Duluth the chief saw the operation of a fire boat, which was built at a cost of $100,000. All of these devices were fully considered by the fire chiefs. While attending the convention at Kansas City, Chief Bywater read an interesting paper on "The Effects of Politics on the Discipline and Efficiency of Fire Departments."

"CALL OF THE DESERT."

Subject of Rev. Frank Eddy at Yesterday's Morning Meeting.

Rev. Frank Fay Eddy of the Unitarian church preached on "The Voice of the Desert" yesterday morning, and said in part: "To many natures the call of the wild is real and emphatic, especially in the early springtime when plant life bursts forth in riotous profusion. It is a call to cast off bonds and customs and to become a child of nature, to revel in the wild primal things. "But there is a call of the desert that is nobler. As one rides hour after hour across the desolate wastes of the great arid region, a strong soul feels the impulse to conquer the conditions that make these wide acres a lifeless, treeless solitude. It is the call to endeavor. It is an external challenge to the high courage in strong men's souls. In hours of relaxation we love the lily and the rose, but the misshapen cactus and the hardy, indomitable sagebrush are, too, deserving their place for they are emblems of the soul of all sacrifice.

"Oh, the desert wastes of life, arid and unproductive, but not hopeless, thank God, for do not they, too, perpetually challenge the strong soul for aid? Is it not true that we cannot rest easy in the presence of these spiritual wastes if we have within us aught of love or knowledge? "The church, what is it? Is it not a reservoir for the waters of knowledge and love and righteousness, with many conduits and channels meant to irrigate the solitary places of religious and holiness as the rose so that in the wilderness the way of the Lord shall appear?"
