

ANGLO-RUSSIAN WAR AVERTED.

Differences Between Two Countries Will be Referred to an International Commission.

BALFOUR ON THE SITUATION.

Declares that Rojstevsky's Report is an Insult to the British Government.

London, Oct. 28.—War between Russia and Great Britain has been averted and the settlement of the only points in dispute regarding the attack by the Russian Second Pacific Squadron on British trawlers on Oct. 21 has been referred to an international commission under The Hague convention.

Details of the agreement between Great Britain and Russia on the mode of settlement of the questions arising out of the firing on British trawlers by the Russian second Pacific Squadron were supplied by Premier Balfour in a speech delivered before the National Union of Conservative Clubs at Southampton last night.

The ascertainment of the facts for submission to a commission formed under the rules of The Hague peace conference will be through the coroner's inquest at Hull, an investigation by the British board of trade, and the examination of officers of the Russian ships which fired on the fishermen.

In his speech Mr. Balfour ridiculed the official explanation of Admiral Rojstevsky, but praised the spirit in which the Russian emperor's government had met the crisis. In both Russia and Great Britain the prevailing feeling is that of relief that there no longer seems to be danger of war between the nations.

In the meantime orders have gone from St. Petersburg to Vice Admiral Rojstevsky to hold his squadron at Vigo, and Spain will be asked to permit those Russian ships concerned in the incident to remain there until the inquiry is completed. The remainder of the squadron is expected to proceed to its destination.

SETTLEMENT ASSURED.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says: "The North sea incident will be settled by an international commission. This is absolutely assured. The British proposal submitted to Russia was to refer the question to a commission under articles 2 to 14 of The Hague convention, and a certain number of officers of the Russian squadron competent to give testimony were to be left behind."

Russia's proposition submitted to Great Britain through Ambassador Benckendorff declares that the emperor, being desirous of shedding the fullest light on the North sea incident, proposes that the whole question be submitted to scrupulous investigation by an international tribunal.

"Foreign Minister Lamsdorf, after his audience with the emperor at the Tsarskoe-Selo this afternoon, officially informed Ambassador Hardinge of the character of the Russian proposal, no direct reply being given to Great Britain's proposition."

"It is simply a question now of which government will have the honor of offering a solution, the principle of which both have decided upon, the outcome of this appearing unimportant. The British proposal also provided for the representation of other powers besides Russia and Great Britain on the commission."

"It develops that independently Russia and Great Britain offered each other the same solution to the North sea incident. Last night instructions were telegraphed to Ambassador Benckendorff in London to propose an international inquiry to the British government, and this morning Ambassador Hardinge, who had received almost similar instructions during the night, submitted a proposal for a commission to Foreign Minister Lamsdorf."

"Count Lamsdorf went to Tsarskoe-Selo at noon, and the communications passing between the governments were considered by the czar and the foreign minister."

BALFOUR ON SITUATION.

Premier Balfour, speaking at a meeting of the National Union of Conservative Clubs at Southampton tonight, broke the silence which has been so long preserved and had brought the people of the United Kingdom to a condition of almost desperate irritation and had given rise to misconceptions which Mr. Balfour tonight exposed.

"The Russian ambassador," said Mr. Balfour, "has authorized a statement to the following effect: The Russian government, on hearing of the North sea incident, at once expressed its profound regret and also promised most liberal compensation."

"The Russian government has ordered the detention at Vigo of that part of the fleet which was concerned in the incident, in order that the naval authorities might ascertain what officers were responsible for it, that those officers and any material witnesses would not proceed on the voyage to the far east; that inquiry would be instituted into the facts by an international commission, as provided by The Hague convention."

Mr. Balfour said that this arrangement was not in violation of the constitution of an international commission in order to find out the facts. Any person found guilty would be tried and punished adequately. The Russian government understood that the Russian government would be taken to guard against recurrences of such incidents. Special instructions on this subject would be issued.

"Preliminary to this court," said Mr. Balfour, "there would be a coroner's inquest at Hull over the dead fishermen, a board of trade inquiry and an inquiry by Russian officers at Vigo. The board of trade inquiry would be specially constituted by the British government to include representative men. The Russian embassy has been asked to send a representative and compensation having already been offered, nothing now remained but to determine which account was correct, Rojstevsky's or the trawlers'."

Mr. Balfour plainly said that Thursday evening Russia and Great Britain seemed to be on the brink of war, and yet gave the frankest praise to the attitude preserved throughout by the czar and the Russian government.

which gives a very interesting statement not yet published. The admiral is quoted as saying that when the vessels of the Russian squadron found themselves surrounded by the fishing fleet the warships had to stop their engines continually, so as not to get their screws entangled in the nets. The warships frequently gave way to the trawlers.

Suddenly the cruiser Aurora saw ahead two torpedo boats coming toward the squadron at full speed. She turned her searchlight on them and then noticed two floating mines close to her. At once she fired on the torpedo boats. Immediately after the shot with the result that one of them was sunk, and the other escaped and was lost sight of among the trawlers.

The admiral added that there were two men injured on his flagship. One, a priest, had a hand shot off. Six shots fired during the incident hit the Russian vessels. The Aurora was hit and has not yet been repaired.

While the premier was unable to praise the pacific attitude of the government too highly, he bitterly assailed Rojstevsky's report, declaring that it was an insult to Great Britain as a neutral nation, and he ridiculed its probability. The immense audience received Mr. Balfour's announcement of the settlement of the affair with unbounded enthusiasm.

The day was an eventful one in the metropolis. The population, stirred by daring headlines in the morning newspapers, seemed convinced that war was inevitable. The cabinet meeting, which was held at noon, served to increase rather than allay anxiety.

Throughout the country there had spread a deep rooted though perfectly erroneous idea that Great Britain had given Russia a time limit in which to reply and that "Charles" Belford, England's naval idol, was on the spot. Many, indeed, thought it was only a question of hours when he would be demolishing Russian ships. Without the least national desire for war, a great naval excitement had been worked up.

In the streets tonight many expressions of disappointment might be heard because the crisis had not developed into hostilities. This merely voiced the opinion of the thoughtful, which comprises a considerable section of the public. No further differences are expected.

BRITISH PRECAUTIONS.

Channel Squadron to be Stationed at Vigo, Spain.

London, Oct. 28.—The Daily Express asserts that Admiral Sir Cyprien Bridge will be one of the British representatives on the commission to inquire into the North sea affair, which Premier Balfour has announced, and which, the Express adds, will sit at Vigo under neutral chairmanship. The Russian ships will anchor off Vigo, and Admiral Belford has been ordered to station the Channel Squadron there during the sittings of the commission.

The opinions of the press on the settlement as stated by Mr. Balfour are by no means unanimous. The opposition journals welcome it as a great victory for the principles of conciliation and arbitration, and all express the belief that danger of war has been avoided; but regarding the manner of arriving at an agreement, ideas greatly differ.

"The Daily Mail hails it in the biggest type caption as 'A Great Victory.' The more thoughtful papers and those devoted to the government interests are much less pleased. The Standard declares that Mr. Balfour's statement will be received by the majority of Englishmen with a sense of profound disappointment."

"Russia," the Standard says, "has given way a little, but we have given way more. With resounding emphasis, with the movements of great fleets and all the impressive preliminaries of war, it was made known that England would have redress by a commission. But a compromise has been accepted. If this was all that was intended, we need not have made so much fuss. The whole business comes to a very lame and impotent conclusion that does not greatly redound to the honor and dignity of the country."

Other conservative papers similarly complain that Great Britain is now debilitated from all action, apparently without any guarantee as to what portion of the second Pacific fleet will be allowed to continue its journey, and with only Russia's promise of protection against such incidents as the North sea affair.

Much criticism is bestowed on what is regarded as the unnecessary eulogies the premier paid to Emperor Nicholas and his government, and the fact that Mr. Balfour had authorized the deduction of the Russian admiral, whose conduct he has consented to refer to an international tribunal.

The Daily Telegraph dwells with gratitude on the judicious and honorable part which it believes M. Delcasse, French foreign minister, and Ambassador Cambon played in "this most welcome settlement."

RUSSIAN PRESS.

War Talk Indulged In During Excitement Disappears.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 29.—A decided change in the tone of press comment on the North sea affair has taken place this morning. The war talk indulged in during the first excitement has disappeared, and the suggestion of an international tribunal of inquiry to ascertain the facts is welcomed as a natural and honorable solution of the difficulty.

This outcome will insure a definite establishment of the facts and place the responsibility, and is attributed in diplomatic circles mainly to the direct interposition of Emperor Nicholas and King Edward. The British government, in face of an excited public opinion which was demanding the most extreme measures, proposed the submission of the issue to a commission under The Hague convention, while the Russian government was preparing a similar proposal to Great Britain. Neutral powers, notably France and it is believed, the United States, were using all their influence to avoid a world catastrophe.

The Russian public has as yet had no intimation of the solution reached. For the last 48 hours the people and the newspapers have been greatly aroused. Jingoism was rampant, and the direct charge was repeatedly made that Great Britain was privy to a contemplated attack on the second Pacific Squadron. The people, without counting the cost, talked lightly and even joyfully at the prospect of war with the traditional enemy at whose doors the public mind lays so many of Russia's difficulties. At this time this feeling entertained in the higher responsible circles, where the gravity of the affair was fully realized and where it was believed that the honor of Russia demanded the most complete and searching inquiry to establish before the world whether a blunder had been committed, and if so, to fix the responsibility.

TROUBLE BETWEEN TWO BIG ELEPHANTS.

"Aggies" Do Not Propose to Compromise With Varsity Disputation.

WILL NOT PLAY ON THE 12TH.

Feeling at Logan is that the Championship Match Should be Played On Thanksgiving Day.

Manager Riser of the University team may have trouble ahead, in trying to pull the big game for the state championship off on Nov. 12, instead of Thanksgiving day. Comment on the announcement at the Agricultural College is bitter, and one statement is that the game will positively not occur on the date mentioned by Manager Riser. The following from the Logan Journal of the 21st last, sums up the feeling against Riser and the U. of U.:

The University has announced that it will not play the A. C. on Thanksgiving day, as originally decided upon, but says that it has an open date on Nov. 12, and that the college may have that. The U. of U. bunch evidently has forgotten that it is not in a position to dictate the terms of the meeting this year. The A. C. boys hold the championship and they will say when, where, and upon what terms that game will be played. Don't forget that last year the varsity players held the championship, and when the college asked for a game, they said: "You can have a game, but only on our terms," and they made the terms rather harsh. But the farmers now complain. They played the game upon the terms laid down, and they won the championship. Now, if the U. of U. people think that the college is going to permit them to run the show thing again this year, they are mistaken, badly mistaken."

NO GAME ON THE 12TH.

"It can be said positively that the game will not occur on Nov. 12, nor on any other day that is not entirely agreeable to the champions. The college people had hoped to see the A. C. U. of U. game made the one big event of the year. Two years ago the A. C. played in Salt Lake and received $20, last year the U. of U. came here and was paid $20. That arrangement up, and the college boys now want to make arrangements to play the game alternately at Salt Lake and Logan, and to have the gate receipts divided equally between the teams."

"But now the University was willing to play on Thanksgiving day, provided the champions would take $20 for the game, which amount would not pay the actual expenses of the team. The U. of U. is trying to get the hog, and the champions would do just as well to cut off such a crowd from its visiting list."

"AGGIES" HAD "RATTLES."

Bad Case of Stage Fright Principal Cause of Defeat.

A letter from one of the A. C. team published in the Logan Journal rebuts the disastrous drubbing administered the team by Seattle, to a bad case of stage fright and general "rattles," such as never came in a way practiced and well seasoned team. Since the letter was written the Aggies have been beaten off their feet by several third rate teams on the coast, and are no doubt due to receive the same treatment from the remaining teams in their scheduled games. The letter says that "the Washingtons got away from the first of the game for a touchdown, but the Utahns then took a brace and the first half ended with a score of 6 to 0. In the last half the A. C. went all to pieces, and their opponents scored practically at will. A much better showing is expected in the other games."

With the Ball Players.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 28.—Seattle was a well played game, Hogg was fast for San Francisco at critical points, striking out two men in the seventh and three men in the ninth. Score:

San Francisco..... R. H. E. 6 1 0
Batteries—Hogg and Leahy; Bacher and Slick.
Umpire—Cassidy.

San Francisco, Oct. 28.—Oakland bunched the Aggies again. Thomas today, three runs coming in the second inning on a trio of safe shots. Oscar Graham was in the net and kept the hits scattered. Score:

Tacoma..... R. H. E. 3 4 3
Oakland..... R. H. E. 3 2 2
Batteries—O. Graham and Stark; Inoué and C. Graham.
Umpire—Perrine.

Portland, Oct. 28.—Baum was a complete outcast to the home crowd and as a result Portland received another setback at the hands of Los Angeles. Starkella was hit freely and effectively. Manager Riser was ruled off as grounds for disputing a decision of the umpire. The game was called at the end of the seventh inning on account of darkness. Score:

Portland..... R. H. E. 9 3 3
Los Angeles..... R. H. E. 10 10 0
Batteries—Starkella and Klinebeck; Baum and Slick.
Umpire—Brown.

GOOD ATHLETIC SHOW.

Interesting Entertainment Given Last Night at Moore Gym.

The athletic entertainment given last night at the clubhouse of the Utah Athletic Club, on East Tenth street, was attended by a good sized crowd. The program consisted of bar work, fencing, tennis, wrestling and boxing, and every event was enthusiastically applauded.

The boxing matches played the crowd greatly. Two of the bouts, between Hawk and Green, and Gleason and Smith, were pretty fast affairs, the boys going at it in a manner that indicated that a knockout might occur at any time. The boys were evenly matched and the bouts were declared "a draw."

Little Terry Davis, the 12 pounder, who challenges anyone his weight in the state, gave an exhibition with a lad named Lyons. Terry did some clever work, but of course, could not "cut loose" and "show" the spectators the wallop he carries.

In the fencing match, Kelly seemed to be the better man.

have the better of it over time, and when the points stood 7 to 7, Kelly, disarmed Price and then deliberately turned his back. On guard had been given and immediately recovered his weapon and made an attack, winning the match by 8 to 7. Had Kelly not been so careless he probably would have won the match.

The parallel horizontal bar work of Prof. Bartlett and class was slightly interesting, the young athletes doing some fairly difficult stunts. The class is composed of Blake Richardson, Mel Saville, Earl Richardson and Hal Young. These young men were pupils of Willard Bean. Their tumbling was as good as anything seen here by the amateur eye.

In the wrestling bouts, Gregory defeated Driggs. Only one fall was secured during the struggle. Angell and Parry struggled and captured a space barely 4 by 15 feet, without a fall and the contest was declared a draw.

"PENNY" GOSSIP.

The "Aggies" may retain the championship this year by not playing for the honor.

A dispatch from Chicago says: Tommy Ryan and Jack tonight were matched to fight 10 rounds at Blue Island, Ill., on Nov. 15 at 185 pounds.

The familiar sylph like figure of "Wee Willie Hired" for some time called "Bill" was seen rambling about town last evening, under the guiding care of "Pat" Schuler. The several hundred-pound ball-player was glad to be among the boys again.

Here is the schedule of football games to be played today by Utah teams: University of Utah vs Denver University, at Denver.
Utah Agricultural College vs Multnomah, at Astoria.
Salt Lake High School vs Ogden High school, at Cummings field.

In all probability there will be a bowling contest arranged soon between local team and the Park City team. The latter feel pretty confident they can show the Salt Lake team how to bowl.

The manager, or captain of the Parkettes started yesterday that they would be pleased to come down here for a contest at almost any time.

"Dare Devil" Jed Newkirk, and his man-killing 390, will be seen at Agricultural College again this afternoon. The exhibition beginning at 4 o'clock. Bert Fuller and Newkirk will race, Fuller having a big handicap. The record for a mile is 2:10. He will also try to break the three mile record which is 3:28.

All week. Z. C. M. I. Page 4.

He Writes of the Questions That Interest Him Most at the Exposition.

A private letter from Col. E. P. Holmes, who, with Mrs. Holmes, is doing the big fair, contains the following items of interest:

"We are about at the close of our three weeks at the exposition, the greatest one that has ever been held, and have as yet only partly seen it, but we now know what it is that we want to study. Particularly is this true of some of the more practical questions that bear upon some of our irrigation problems in the west, and particularly relating to the cheap method of pumping water to apply on land a little above existing canal systems, for as is often the case, a considerable tract of good land may lie just a little too high to be watered by gravity system."

A wonderful power system is in use here, located in the boilerhouse of the exposition. By the use of a small quantity of charcoal or coke, a gas is generated that is used in any gas or gasoline engine, and at a cost of less than one-half cent per horsepower per hour. Electric energy costs three or four times this amount, and power produced from coal is much more than twice as expensive. The whole plant, pump, engine, and gas generator costs but a few hundred dollars, is within the reach of a person of ordinary means, and can be operated by any one of ordinary intelligence. Indeed, the plant in operation here of 15-horsepower capacity, could be run by almost any boy, I am thinking of installing the system in Idaho on my ranches."

"There is also a new powerful windmill with pump, which will raise a great amount of water to a moderate height, that seems most practical. Light winds prevail in the central valleys of Utah, but in the valleys of the Snake river in Idaho, it is the opposite. The great improvement in gas engines at the exposition is a distinct feature, one in which the last 10 years has seen a vast improvement."

"But what we want and must have is a cheap alcohol fuel, which can be made from the best sugar plant refuse."

"Next in importance is a steam turbine engine that is bound to revolutionize the power of steam by the use of coal. There
