

OTHER SIDE OF KOOYMAN CASE

Mrs. Kooymann Tells of Causes
Which Resulted in Family Troubles.

PENCHANT FOR OTHER WOMEN

Testimony of Mrs. Eggen, With Whom
Hollander Fleed to California—
Judge Puts Them on Probation.

"The other side" of the Kooymann family's troubles became known this morning when the examination of Kooymann was concluded before Judge Gowans of the juvenile court. Jealousy appears to rankle in the heart of Mrs. Kooymann and to have been the cause of all their trouble. Out of this cause, however, there have come many others and a tangle of domestic strife will have to be unraveled in the mind of Judge Gowans before he passes final judgment in the matter. He has instructed the probation officers of the court to inform him as to certain obscure points relating to the Kooymann family customs and habits. He indicated in court this morning, however, that if Kooymann and his wife will make good the promises made to him, the custody of their children, Hendrika, Henry and Mary, will be given over to them. These children have been declared delinquents and are wards of the court. The present action was one in which Kooymann was to show cause why he should not be deprived of the custody of the children.

LIKE NURSERY RHYME.

The story told in court this morning brought to mind the nursery rhyme that has lived longer than the memory of man, and promises to live yet longer. "There was an old woman who lived in a shoe," etc., seems to apply to the Kooymann family. The facts appear that at times there was not a shoe in the Kooymann family, and hence the application is faulty in that respect.

MRS. EGGEN'S STORY.

Some peculiar testimony was given this morning by Mrs. Eggen. Mrs. Eggen said that while she was married to Kooymann, Kooymann cultivated an acquaintance with her and became unduly intimate with her, so far as she was concerned, that Kooymann brought serious charges against her and forced her to seek a divorce. She declared that Kooymann broke up her home, but she as firmly said that she never did go in much good. Kooymann wanted her to marry him, she said.

Kooymann finally went to California to get a job, and Mrs. Eggen furnished the money for his fare and Kooymann packed her furniture. Then the two went to San Francisco together. They were brought back by the officers upon complaint of Mrs. Kooymann who charged that their relations were not proper.

WHAT JEALOUSY DID.

All this and much more made Mrs. Kooymann so jealous that frequently the two quarreled. During these quarrels, the testimony showed, Mrs. Kooymann has toyed with tea kettles, teapots, coffee pots, stove lids and other heavy and movable objects of kitchen and then has hurled them at the head of the head of the family. On these occasions Kooymann has taken to heart the little rhyme that refers to him that runs away. He has hurried from the house, sometimes in most decided dishabille, to return only after he thought the storm had passed. It was shown that the conduct of the two branches of the Kooymann family had been all but perfect, and that strife ruled in the home.

NAMED AS DICTATOR.

Kooymann at the conclusion of his testimony said that he had talked with his wife since the present action commenced, and that they had reached an agreement whereby he was to become the dictating power in their household. His wife has agreed, he said, to listen to him and to take his advice in the matter of bringing up their children. He has promised that the curfew law shall regulate the going and coming of the children and has made many other promises to the court if it will only keep the children in their home.

"RAN AFTER" WOMEN.

At the conclusion of Kooymann's testimony, Mrs. Kooymann was called into the courtroom by Judge Gowans. He asked her about the causes of the trouble at the Kooymann home. She said that it had all been brought about by the women Kooymann insisted on "running after." She admitted that it rankled in her breast and that it caused all their trouble. She declared that her heart was torn with the thought of giving up her children and asked the court not to take them away from her and her husband.

BLAMES WIFE FOR TROUBLE.

Kooymann said in court that his wife thinks he has started all their trouble and that he believes a divorce will follow this action. He promised the court that in the event that it did he would assume all charge of the children and that they will be given a good home and be properly cared for.

The court was at a loss as to how to decide the question with the information now at hand. He has concluded to put Kooymann on probation and during the time intervening between the session and the passing of final judgment the children will remain where they are. The court will have to be assured, however, that conditions in the home are to be improved before he will consent to having the children grow up longer in the surroundings that have been theirs for some time past.

HACKDRIVERS LOSE.

Supreme Court Hands Down Decision
In Suit of Oregon Short Line.

The supreme court has handed down its opinion in the somewhat celebrated "hackdrivers' case." This was an action brought by the hack drivers of the city to the supreme court in the suit of the Oregon Short Line railway against E. T. Davidson and others, the railroad company having secured an injunction in the district court which prevented hack drivers entering portions of their depot grounds. The opinion, in brief, holds that the fact that the railroad company has permitted certain persons to solicit business upon its property does not give all persons the right to do the same thing. The opinion is written by Justice Frick and concurred in by Justices McCarty and Straup.

DAYS GROW LONGER.

The days are growing perceptibly longer, particularly in the evening, which begins to lengthen out at the first of the year, earlier than the mornings; the reverse occurring, after June 21, when the sun reaches the summer solstice, and turns south towards the equator. The sun now is moving, according to official time, at 7:31 a. m., but this is figured on a horizontal plane, the mountains not being reckoned with. On this account, 30 minutes must be added, making the actual time of rising, for this valley, 8:01 a. m. In calculation for sunset, the western mountains cut very little figure, on account of their low altitude with regard to this city, as compared with the eastern mountains. So three minutes only are considered, and this is deducted from the official time of sunset. Today's official hour of sunset is 5:54 p. m., and deducting three minutes, makes the actual time, 5:51 p. m. Daylight at present is lengthening out from two to three minutes daily.

TO IMPROVE NORTH BENCH.

An improvement league is being organized among North Bench residents, with a view to push the completion of the boulevard and pave it with macadam or natural gravel, and to look after the beautification generally of that section of the city. The boulevard is being used in a way, but it is very far from being completed.

MAY GET NEW DEPOT.

Catch Junction has been after a new depot for a long while and the recent visit of a number of Harriman officials, including W. B. Nothing official is forthcoming at the present time.

TO BUILD MORE TRACKS.

Reported That Moffat Line Will Construct 68 Miles Additional Road.
According to New York papers, the Moffat line has let a contract for 68 miles of additional tracks. The road is to be built from the present terminus, which will carry it to Steamboat Springs, 68 miles from Denver. This is just half the total mileage of the road. The letting of the contract is the expected move following the organization of the Denver-Steamboat Springs Construction company, recently organized by Colorado financiers with Col. Dodge at their head. It is estimated the 68 miles will cost $2,000,000. The terms of the contract are not made public.

PROGRESS AT DEPOT.

Water in the Harriman depot grounds is making work of excavating a very slushy affair. The mud formed by the frosty ground is exposed to the sun and air. About 40 cars of mud have been removed and several hundred plans for the removal of the slush, such as concrete driveways, etc., are being touched up by R. E. Klemers in charge of the buildings department of the engineering offices of the O. S. L.
