They are men whose honesty, integrity and in-telligence I believe have iever before been called into question and are cer-tainly as much interested in the good order and well-being of the City as any persons can be who have their homes and all that they hold dear and sacred here. In regard to the evidence for the de-fense; while we may have given it too much consideration and we may have erred in judgment and may have libe-rated a guilty man, still that evidence was straightforward and consistent and we believe it to be truthful, and it certainly was more reasonable than though the defendant had gone there to "Sing a song." business; to myself at least, at a very serious inconvenience. We performed that duty as faithfully as we know how. If we erred, which has yet to be proven, we erred on the side of mercy, and not with any desire to shield the guilty. In conclusion, I would say for my-self that I performed this duty as I would any other, with a desire only for the right and without fear of the frowns or courting the favor of any Yours respectfully, E. Fatal Explosion at Ogden. Shortly before 10 o'clock on Wednesday evening a loud report resembling a heavy clap of thunder attracted the attention of the citizens of Ogden. An instant before the noise was heard a number of parties noticed a bright red glare and flames near the mouth of Og-Aen Cafion. It was soon discovered shat the cause of all this was the explosion of nearly 200 pounds of powder at the mill of the Utah Powder Company, in the cañoo, and that an employe in charge of the mill-James Hoxer-was fatally injured by the accident,

Mr. Hoxer was the only man in the mill at the time of the explosion, and could give no account as to the cause, which will probably remain a mystery. The building was blown to atoms, the machinery considerably damaged, and pir. Hoxer was thrown a considerable distance. The debris which was scattered around took fire, and by the energentic efforts of the Ogden firemen and others was extinguished in time to prevent the in the "arms of the god of sleep," that ignition of large quantities of powder it would be cruelty to the audience to which still remained undisturbed.

Mr. Coxwell, the English æronant, and Mr. Glaisher, the eminent mete-orologist, have made a number of high ascensions together. The most re-markable of these took place Septem-ber 5, 1852, when they attained the greatest altitude ever reached by man. Mr. Glaisher estimates this to have been between 36,000 and 37,000 feet, or about seven miles. His last observashock received at the time of the Cahoon fire, and all the deputies except Mr. Glenn retired. The latter waited with his prisoner until he got his breakfast and attended to Mrs. Angell and daughter, who were severely burned on Wednes-

Just before ten o'clock, according to Glenn's statement, as they were about to start for the Commissioner's office, Dr. Young asked the deputy to wait a minute while he said good bye to his wife. This he agreed to do, and the been between $6,000 and $7,000 feet, or about seven miles. His last observa-tion made before the greatest elevation was reached, showed an altitude of 29,000 feet. He then became insensi-ble and so remained for the space of about seven minutes, the balloon meanwhile ascending until it was checked by Mr. [Coxwell, who seized the valve-rope] by his teeth, as his hands were helpless. September 15, 1804, M. Gay Lussac reached a height of 22,977 feet, his as-cension having been made for scien-tific purposes. Blanchard claimed to have ascended to a height of $2,000 feet, and Margat, Garnerna, Robertson and others have claimed to outdo this, but in most cases their balloons were too small to have been able to carry them so high. Messrs. Rush and Green ascended to an altitude of over 25,000 feet. Doctor went up stairs-the last seen of him by the deputy, who waited a while, and finding that his prisoner did not return, instituted a search which proved fruitless. A ladder was leaning against the wall and near a window, and it was supposed the Doctor departed from the house by that means. Marshal Ireland was notilled, but the efforts made to recap-

Men's fingers are not all shaped alike, some having short stub-bed ends, with nails that wear off as fast as they grow; others have fong, slender fingers, with sharp nails to correspond. One heard that the other was talking against him, and be went to him and said: "Will you be kind enough to tell me my faults to my face, that I may profit by your Christian candor and try to get rid of them?" The truth is, I feel now that in going around talking against you I have been serving the devil myself, and have need that you pray for me and forrive me the wrong I have done you." Dr. Hodge tells the story very well, and here and there, in almost every community, is a man or woman who might profit by it. Mr. Miln again came before the curtain, still clad in his traveling dress and wearing a weary look upon his countenance, stating that he again presented himself as a speaker instead of an actor, and informed his hearers that the "baggage had not yet arrived," and he supposed the clerk in charge of the baggage, room was by this time
