

MIDLAND WILL CUT DOWN TIME

So Says General Passenger Agent W. F. Bailey.

THREE HOURS TO BE CLIPPED

When the Platte Cut-Off is Completed Denver Will Be Closer to Salt Lake.

W. F. Bailey, general passenger agent of the Colorado Midland, came into town yesterday on his way through from the coast, having been delayed several days en route.

When seen he stated that he had been in San Francisco during the last few days installing the officials in the new office in that city. The officials that are now located there he said, were E. C. Ryan, general agent, Malone Joyce, traveling passenger agent, A. S. Barrow, city freight agent, and W. Garretson, traveling freight agent. Both Mr. Ryan and Mr. Barrow are ex-Salt Lake men, the former having held a general agency under that corporation. Malone Joyce was formerly in the service of the Missouri Pacific.

In speaking in regard to the plans of the Colorado Midland, Mr. Bailey stated that it was the intention of the road to make the dirt fly on the Platte canyon cut-off immediately after election and the work could then be pushed to the limit until well into the time between Salt Lake and Denver, over the Midland, would be reduced fully three hours. Other extensive improvements he said were being projected that would see fruit in the near future, with the result that the Midland would become, if possible, more popular with its patrons.

Commencing October 15th a new tourist car service from both San Francisco and Los Angeles would be put on right through to Chicago, and would be run every week until further notice. This innovation, he said, was to accommodate the increasing business of the line.

In speaking in regard to the observation cars that had been placed on their trains right through from Ogden to Denver, Mr. Bailey stated that they already had passed their most sanguine expectations and that they were being patronized to a great extent by tourists and the traveling public generally. The cars had been furnished with all the latest magazines and next week will be supplied with handsome stationery headed with the well-known Indian in colors.

New U. P. Coal Camp.

The new Union Pacific coal camp at Pioneer Hollow is making fast strides in the way of improvements, says the Evanston News-Register. Seventeen houses have been removed from Almy to the new townsite and sixteen of the twenty-two new residences have been completed. The dump has been finished, the scales and screens are in place, the boilers are in position, and the large engines are on the ground. A modern hotel is under construction, and in the course of the few days the site-tracks and turntable will be finished. Men are boring for water and at a depth of 140 feet have struck a small flow, but it is the intention to go to a depth of 1300 feet to secure the pure liquid. The mines have commenced shipping on a small scale and the coal taken out at present is used on the division. From all indications, Pioneer Hollow is to be a substantial mining camp of Santa county.

After Edwin Gould.

New York, Oct. 3.—The hearing on the application for an order to show cause why an injunction should not be issued restraining Edwin Gould and others from conducting the annual election of directors of the St. Louis-Southwestern Railroad company, has been adjourned until Thursday night by consent of counsel. The injunction is sought by Andrew Haas, of London, and other stockholders, who alleged that although the estate of Jay Gould owns only some 70,000 out of 365,000 shares of the company's stock, it has been controlling the election of directors by the use of proxies, so that minority stockholders did not secure their lawful representation on the board. It was urged that similar unfair action was planned for the meeting of today. What had been made the basis of the agreement to postpone the argument could not be learned. It was said, however, that Mr. Gould and the New York directors had not yet left the city for St. Louis, and that the agreement probably involved a postponement of the annual meeting.

SPIKE AND RAIL.

"On to Los Angeles."

Auditor Theron Geddes of the Rio Grande Western is in New York.

The Colorado Midland is placing some artistic advertising matter in circulation.

Joseph K. Choate of Denver, formerly president of the Central Pacific and Southern Park road, is numbered among the guests at the Knutsford.

General Manager W. H. Bancroft, General Traffic Manager S. W. Eccles and General Passenger Agent D. E. Hurley returned yesterday from their trip north.

The stockholders of the St. Louis-Southwestern railroad, generally known as the Cotton Belt road, convened at the general office of the company at St. Louis yesterday for the purpose of electing a board of directors.

General Agent W. H. Donnell of the Colorado Midland today severed all connections with that corporation and takes unto himself a charming helper-daughter in the person of Miss Sadler, the well known liquor dealer of this city. Mr. Donnell has the heartiest wishes of all the residents on Railroad Row, who predict that the latest double-header to be put on the Midland will be a splendid innovation. Congratulations are in order.

SCANDINAVIAN MEETING.

Scandinavian meeting in the Fourteenth ward Thursday, at 8 p. m.

The Sunday School will be held in the Assembly hall in the afternoon, immediately after the Conference in the Tabernacle.

J. M. SODAH, M. CHRISTOPHERSON, J. S. JENSEN.

MUNYON'S GUARANTEE.

Strong Assurances as to Just What the Remedies Will Do.

Munyon guarantees that his Rheumatism Cure will cure every case of rheumatism in a few hours; that his Dropsy Cure will cure every case of dropsy in a few hours; that his Kidney Cure will cure every case of kidney trouble in a few hours; that his Headache Cure will cure every case of headache in a few minutes; that his Cold Cure will cure every case of cold in a few minutes.

THE LITTLE ESTATE.

Glen Miller Appointed Guardian of the Minor Heirs—Bond $32,000.

Glen Miller has been appointed guardian of the person and estates of Fannie M. Clara, Romania, Fernora T. and Decker Little, minor heirs of the late James T. Little, in place of Bishop Scanlon, who recently resigned. The appointment was made on the petition of Alice S. Little, mother of the children, and one of the heirs, who is over fourteen years of age. Mr. Miller's bond was fixed at $32,000, which he filed today with W. C. McCormick and J. E. Dooly as sureties.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY.

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All cures referend the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25c.

STATE MEDICAL SOCIETY.

Doctors Meet Again Today and Discuss Subjects of Great Interest.

There was another good attendance today at the sixth annual meeting of the Utah State Medical Society. The following program was carried out:

Morning session.
How to Conduct a Case of Labor, Normal or Emergent.....
.....W. W. Woodring, M. Pleasant
Discussion opened by C. M. Wilson.

Thrombosis of Dural Sinuses.....
.....P. F. McKenna, Salt Lake City
Discussion opened by W. R. Pike, Provo.

Do Doctors Disagree?.....
.....A. C. Ewing, Salt Lake City
Discussion by C. G. Plummer, Salt Lake City, and Belle A. Gemmell, Salt Lake City.

Some Cases of Ear Disease in my Practice.....
.....D. Moore Lindsay, Salt Lake City
Discussion opened by M. A. Hughes, Salt Lake City.

Afternoon session.
Observations on Formidolohyde.....
.....W. B. Ellerbe, Salt Lake City
Discussion opened by A. C. Behle, Salt Lake City, and W. J. Croxall, Logan.

Chemistry as a Part of a Medical Course.....
.....T. Kingsbury, President State University.
Discussion opened by R. W. Wisner, Salt Lake City.

Diseases in Schools.....
.....E. V. Sylvester, Salt Lake City
Discussion opened by A. J. Hosmer, Salt Lake City.

This evening the society will be regaled with a banquet given by the Salt Lake County Medical society.

AMUSEMENTS.

The conference rush has not yet set in at the Theater, though it is looked for tonight. Last night's audience was not a large one, but it was a thoroughly delighted one. "The Magistrate" belongs to the school of the best comedies of the modern style, and it has for years been a favorite both in England and America, having been brought out in New York, we believe, by Daly's company, with the inimitable James Lewis in the leading part. Mr. Stockwell has appeared in it for a long time, and has once before enacted it here. He is thoroughly delightful in the part, his natural comely vein finding a humorous outlet in his employment in the trials which beset an English magistrate, who so far forgot himself as to go out on a lark, and who was in consequence arrested and brought up in his own police court. He was very well supported, principally by Mr. Clement in the heavy swell part of Lukyn, by Mrs. Clement in the part of the wife, and Mr. Seabury as "Cia." "The Magistrate" was repeated this afternoon at a matinee. Tonight one of Dickens' stories, "No Thoroughfare," will be presented under the name of "A Great Obstacle." The play was originally dramatized for the celebrated Pechter, who made a strong character of John Oberlander, the character to be portrayed by Mr. Clement.

At the Grand there was another good audience last night, and "Brown's" "Tove," and the indications are that a good business will be done up to Saturday night, when Brown will leave town.

CLEARING HOUSE REPORT.

Salt Lake City, Oct. 3, 1900.

Today's clearings.....$14,156.87

Same day last year.....$1,257.87

ORE AND BULLION REPORTS.

M'CORNICK & CO.

Mingo bullion.....$3,100

Silver and lead ores.....6,600

Cruiser Terrible Off for Taku.

Wei-Hai-Wei, Province of Shan Tung, Monday, Oct. 1.—The British first class cruiser Terrible, and the British second class cruiser Abulbas, with the transports, having on board the third brigade of Indian troops, started for Taku at short notice.

"The Laborer is Worthy of His Hire."

But a wage-earner can get more for his personal services if in strong and vigorous health. The blood is the life-giving and strength-making part of the system. If it is pure, all is well; if not, it should be purified with Hood's Sarsaparilla, which makes the weak strong.

Can Eat—"Was tired out, had no appetite until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. It built me right up and I can eat heartily." Etta M. Hager, Athol, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Never Disappoints

Hood's Pills cure liver ills; the non-irritating and only cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

TWELVE YEARS FOR HOLD-UP DAYTON

Youthful Desperado Sentenced by Judge Cherry Today.

HE SHOT JOHN H. KIMBALL.

His Statement to the Court Admitting the Shooting, and Intimating He Was Fully Justified.

Frank Dayton, the young Texan, who held up and shot at John H. Kimball, and E. W. Hesse, in this city about ten days ago, wounding the former in the wrist, was arraigned before Judge Cherry today upon two informations which accused him of assault with intent to commit robbery.

The prisoner pleaded guilty to both charges and upon his request that judgment be pronounced at once, the court sentenced him to twelve years in the State prison, six years on each charge, the second sentence to begin at the expiration of the first.

Before passing sentence the court asked Dayton if he had anything to say and the prisoner replied in the negative. Prosecutor Van Cott was then asked what he knew of the case and that gentleman briefly related the attending circumstances of both hold-ups. Kimball, the prosecutor declared, was shot while complying with the prisoner's request to throw up his hands.

After Mr. Van Cott had concluded Judge Cherry again asked Dayton if he had anything to say. The prisoner rose to his feet and said: "The gentleman's statement about the shooting is not correct."

"I shot him all right," he continued, "but it was only when he started to ward me."

Judge Cherry gave the youthful desperado a sound lecture, saying that he regarded the class of crimes to which the prisoner had pleaded guilty among the worst in the category.

Dayton is twenty-two years old. He began his twelve years' sentence this afternoon.

TO QUIET TITLE.

B. Y. Trust Company Brings Suit Against the City.

The B. Y. Trust company has entered suit against Salt Lake City to quiet title to a strip of land 25 feet by 22 1/2 feet, running from Commercial street to State street.

The city claims that the plaintiff company deeded the property to it six years ago in consideration of the abatement of certain taxes.

BLACK-HAWK WAR VETERANS.

A meeting of the Veterans of the Black Hawk War will be held at 7:30 o'clock on Saturday evening, over the Barnes-Hardy store, opposite Z. C. M. I. A full attendance of the members is desired by the committee as business of importance is to be transacted.

THE BULLION-BECK TRIAL.

Case of E. W. Wilson Against J. A. Cunningham et al.

Action Involves Title to 51,000 Shares of Bullion-Beck Stock—The Allegations.

The case of E. W. Wilson, as trustee in bankruptcy of the estate of John Beck vs. J. A. Cunningham, Josiah Barnett, trustee, the Security Loan and Trust company, P. T. Farnsworth, the Bullion-Beck and Champion Mining company and Zion's Savings Bank and Trust company, an action involving the interest of Beck's estate in the Bullion-Beck and Indian Creek Gold Mining company, was called for trial before Judge Hiles in the equity branch of the Third district court today.

"The complaint sets forth that on August 16, 1897, the defendant, P. T. Farnsworth, of the Bullion-Beck and Champion Mining company, and 50,000 shares of the Indian Creek Gold Mining company, which were transferred to the defendant Cunningham for the purpose of defrauding Beck's creditors. Plaintiff prays for an accounting and a return of the stock.

Cunningham claims to have bought the Bullion-Beck stock absolutely and says he paid Beck's debts for the 51,000 shares and paid Beck $219,728.93 for them.

The attorneys in the case are: Brown & Henderson and Rives & Schroeder for plaintiff; E. L. Williams for Cunningham; Ritchie & Barrett for Josiah Barnett, and the Security Loan and Trust company, and Farnsworth & Lund for Farnsworth, and Bennett, Harkness, Bullion-Beck and Champion Mining company.

The taking of testimony was proceeding this afternoon.

POLITICAL POINTERS.

Itinerary of Gov. Wells, ex-Congressman Allen and Hon. George Sutherland beginning next week—Monday, October 9, Spanish Fork, 10th, Richfield, 10th, Marysville, 11th noon, Junction, 11th, evening, Panguitch, 12th, Parowan, 12th, Cedar City, 14th, Beaver, 16th, Priceto, 17th, Kanosh, 18th, Fillmore, 19th, Deseret, 20th, Nephi.

James Quayle of Logan, a well known Cache county Republican, paid his respects to his party headquarters in this city today.

Governor Wells, E. B. Critchlow and George Sutherland will speak at Murray tonight.

Senator Stewart of Nevada will speak at the Salt Palace on Friday night. He is also down for an address in the Ogden opera house on Saturday evening. It is not improbable that the senator from Nevada will make a tour of the mining camps in the interest of Republican principles.

Hon. George Sutherland and C. E. Allen spoke at Park City last night before a crowded audience in the Dewey theater.

Thomas Fitch addressed a large audience at American Fork last night. The other speakers were John D. Dixon of Provo, candidate for State treasurer.

Seamstress for Ounay Agency.

[SPECIAL TO THE "NEWS"]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—Jennie M. Wells, of Stillwater, Oklahoma, has been appointed seamstress in the Ounay Indian school, Utah. Henry Gardner appointed postmaster at Mount Carmel, Kane county, vice W. J. Jolley, resigned.

DR. PARK IS LAID TO REST

(Continued from Page One.)

school over which he presided soon became known as the best school in the Territory, said the speaker, and his services were soon needed in Salt Lake. Dr. Park was unpretentious to the last degree," continued the speaker. "The nature of a child to him was an open book and he never sought to pervert it, but to direct it through the proper channels. Dr. Park was not only original but progressive. He organized his pupils into military companies and had them dressed in uniform. I don't think any pupils ever had a better teacher over them than that was Dr. Park. In the academic grade, I think, he had no superior."

The speaker then spoke of the work Dr. Park accomplished as head of the University, and pointed out the progress that advancement made under his able management.

"Dr. Park," said the speaker, "was the most lovable and companionable of men. Little to him was of great interest, but that which was of great interest to him was never a boy or girl who came in contact with his gentle sympathy who did not learn to love him, and that love shall remain as long as life shall last. In his calm and quiet procession with love and tender reverence they will bear him away to the city of the dead, bounded on one side by time, on the other by eternity."

HON. JAMES SHARP.

James Sharp, president of the University board of regents, was the succeeding speaker. He outlined the early struggles of the University, and the inspiration and energy injected into the work by Dr. Park. "I respect the memory of a man like Dr. Park. His life was given to his chosen calling. He gave what he had to the cause. That was his life-calling, and he ended his life in the work of education. And when the day comes that the chapter of education will be written in the history of Utah, Park will be written as standing pre-eminent among the chief educators of his time."

GOVERNOR WELLS.

Governor Wells was the next speaker, and his address was as follows:

"It is only a very few words that I shall have to say. I appear before you today not as a speaker, but as a listener to the virtues of our friend who has departed this life, but as a mourner who loved him and who keenly feels his loss. At such a time I cannot but wish for the accomplishments of our great one that I might recount to you in a way that would impress upon you the splendid merits of the man whose remains now lie before us, that I might depict to you some of his achievements and show you the loss which the community has suffered in his taking off. But I shall leave this duty to others more qualified than I."

Have known Dr. Park since my boyhood, when I first went to school with him in the old Deseret University. I see around me many faces that were familiar in those old days, and this sad occasion opens the floodgates of memory and deluges me with reminiscences of our dear old doctor. Without desiring to disparage the high esteem in which very many of our professors, both of the past and the present, are held, I believe it is not an injustice to say that Dr. Park succeeded in endearing himself to his pupils, in winning their hearts and in holding their love and respect to a greater extent than any teacher that I have ever known. He was splendidly equipped for his life's work. The Great Creator endowed him with a genius spirit, a simple, honest, lovable nature, a genial, happy disposition and a most generous soul. His education seemed to me to be of the highest order. He was a man who knew everything, and for myself, I never asked him a question, no matter how complex, but with the fullest confidence that his answer would not only be satisfactory, but absolutely truthful and accurate. He ruled by kindness and moral suasion and never by force. I do not remember ever seeing him punish a pupil; yet his school room was always a model of decorum and good order. His pleasant smile when one said his lessons well and his awful frown when one said them poorly are recollections that I am sure will remain with all his pupils while memory lasts. The tendency of his teachings, both those of precept and example, was to uplift and to elevate. He encouraged the pupil who worked, but he did not encourage the pupil who relied on the work of others. He was a man of high character and high ability, and he was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order. His pleasant smile when one said his lessons well and his awful frown when one said them poorly are recollections that I am sure will remain with all his pupils while memory lasts. The tendency of his teachings, both those of precept and example, was to uplift and to elevate. He encouraged the pupil who worked, but he did not encourage the pupil who relied on the work of others. He was a man of high character and high ability, and he was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order.

From 1871 to 1896, a period of twenty-five years, I had but little association with the doctor, but with the admission of the State into the Union he came to Salt Lake, and he was a member of my official family. I always thought the people honored themselves in honoring him with this office, and it was a great honor to me to be permitted to round out a noble and useful career in the highest educational office in the gift of the people. The administration of the State is a heavy task, and it is a task which requires the most careful and efficient, prompt, and forceful. He labored in his office almost up to the day of his death, though at times it was apparent that energy and perseverance alone prevented his going to his rest. He was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order. His pleasant smile when one said his lessons well and his awful frown when one said them poorly are recollections that I am sure will remain with all his pupils while memory lasts. The tendency of his teachings, both those of precept and example, was to uplift and to elevate. He encouraged the pupil who worked, but he did not encourage the pupil who relied on the work of others. He was a man of high character and high ability, and he was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order.

From 1871 to 1896, a period of twenty-five years, I had but little association with the doctor, but with the admission of the State into the Union he came to Salt Lake, and he was a member of my official family. I always thought the people honored themselves in honoring him with this office, and it was a great honor to me to be permitted to round out a noble and useful career in the highest educational office in the gift of the people. The administration of the State is a heavy task, and it is a task which requires the most careful and efficient, prompt, and forceful. He labored in his office almost up to the day of his death, though at times it was apparent that energy and perseverance alone prevented his going to his rest. He was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order. His pleasant smile when one said his lessons well and his awful frown when one said them poorly are recollections that I am sure will remain with all his pupils while memory lasts. The tendency of his teachings, both those of precept and example, was to uplift and to elevate. He encouraged the pupil who worked, but he did not encourage the pupil who relied on the work of others. He was a man of high character and high ability, and he was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order.

From 1871 to 1896, a period of twenty-five years, I had but little association with the doctor, but with the admission of the State into the Union he came to Salt Lake, and he was a member of my official family. I always thought the people honored themselves in honoring him with this office, and it was a great honor to me to be permitted to round out a noble and useful career in the highest educational office in the gift of the people. The administration of the State is a heavy task, and it is a task which requires the most careful and efficient, prompt, and forceful. He labored in his office almost up to the day of his death, though at times it was apparent that energy and perseverance alone prevented his going to his rest. He was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order. His pleasant smile when one said his lessons well and his awful frown when one said them poorly are recollections that I am sure will remain with all his pupils while memory lasts. The tendency of his teachings, both those of precept and example, was to uplift and to elevate. He encouraged the pupil who worked, but he did not encourage the pupil who relied on the work of others. He was a man of high character and high ability, and he was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order.

From 1871 to 1896, a period of twenty-five years, I had but little association with the doctor, but with the admission of the State into the Union he came to Salt Lake, and he was a member of my official family. I always thought the people honored themselves in honoring him with this office, and it was a great honor to me to be permitted to round out a noble and useful career in the highest educational office in the gift of the people. The administration of the State is a heavy task, and it is a task which requires the most careful and efficient, prompt, and forceful. He labored in his office almost up to the day of his death, though at times it was apparent that energy and perseverance alone prevented his going to his rest. He was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order. His pleasant smile when one said his lessons well and his awful frown when one said them poorly are recollections that I am sure will remain with all his pupils while memory lasts. The tendency of his teachings, both those of precept and example, was to uplift and to elevate. He encouraged the pupil who worked, but he did not encourage the pupil who relied on the work of others. He was a man of high character and high ability, and he was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order.

From 1871 to 1896, a period of twenty-five years, I had but little association with the doctor, but with the admission of the State into the Union he came to Salt Lake, and he was a member of my official family. I always thought the people honored themselves in honoring him with this office, and it was a great honor to me to be permitted to round out a noble and useful career in the highest educational office in the gift of the people. The administration of the State is a heavy task, and it is a task which requires the most careful and efficient, prompt, and forceful. He labored in his office almost up to the day of his death, though at times it was apparent that energy and perseverance alone prevented his going to his rest. He was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order. His pleasant smile when one said his lessons well and his awful frown when one said them poorly are recollections that I am sure will remain with all his pupils while memory lasts. The tendency of his teachings, both those of precept and example, was to uplift and to elevate. He encouraged the pupil who worked, but he did not encourage the pupil who relied on the work of others. He was a man of high character and high ability, and he was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order.

From 1871 to 1896, a period of twenty-five years, I had but little association with the doctor, but with the admission of the State into the Union he came to Salt Lake, and he was a member of my official family. I always thought the people honored themselves in honoring him with this office, and it was a great honor to me to be permitted to round out a noble and useful career in the highest educational office in the gift of the people. The administration of the State is a heavy task, and it is a task which requires the most careful and efficient, prompt, and forceful. He labored in his office almost up to the day of his death, though at times it was apparent that energy and perseverance alone prevented his going to his rest. He was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order. His pleasant smile when one said his lessons well and his awful frown when one said them poorly are recollections that I am sure will remain with all his pupils while memory lasts. The tendency of his teachings, both those of precept and example, was to uplift and to elevate. He encouraged the pupil who worked, but he did not encourage the pupil who relied on the work of others. He was a man of high character and high ability, and he was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order.

From 1871 to 1896, a period of twenty-five years, I had but little association with the doctor, but with the admission of the State into the Union he came to Salt Lake, and he was a member of my official family. I always thought the people honored themselves in honoring him with this office, and it was a great honor to me to be permitted to round out a noble and useful career in the highest educational office in the gift of the people. The administration of the State is a heavy task, and it is a task which requires the most careful and efficient, prompt, and forceful. He labored in his office almost up to the day of his death, though at times it was apparent that energy and perseverance alone prevented his going to his rest. He was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order. His pleasant smile when one said his lessons well and his awful frown when one said them poorly are recollections that I am sure will remain with all his pupils while memory lasts. The tendency of his teachings, both those of precept and example, was to uplift and to elevate. He encouraged the pupil who worked, but he did not encourage the pupil who relied on the work of others. He was a man of high character and high ability, and he was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order.

From 1871 to 1896, a period of twenty-five years, I had but little association with the doctor, but with the admission of the State into the Union he came to Salt Lake, and he was a member of my official family. I always thought the people honored themselves in honoring him with this office, and it was a great honor to me to be permitted to round out a noble and useful career in the highest educational office in the gift of the people. The administration of the State is a heavy task, and it is a task which requires the most careful and efficient, prompt, and forceful. He labored in his office almost up to the day of his death, though at times it was apparent that energy and perseverance alone prevented his going to his rest. He was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order. His pleasant smile when one said his lessons well and his awful frown when one said them poorly are recollections that I am sure will remain with all his pupils while memory lasts. The tendency of his teachings, both those of precept and example, was to uplift and to elevate. He encouraged the pupil who worked, but he did not encourage the pupil who relied on the work of others. He was a man of high character and high ability, and he was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order.

From 1871 to 1896, a period of twenty-five years, I had but little association with the doctor, but with the admission of the State into the Union he came to Salt Lake, and he was a member of my official family. I always thought the people honored themselves in honoring him with this office, and it was a great honor to me to be permitted to round out a noble and useful career in the highest educational office in the gift of the people. The administration of the State is a heavy task, and it is a task which requires the most careful and efficient, prompt, and forceful. He labored in his office almost up to the day of his death, though at times it was apparent that energy and perseverance alone prevented his going to his rest. He was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order. His pleasant smile when one said his lessons well and his awful frown when one said them poorly are recollections that I am sure will remain with all his pupils while memory lasts. The tendency of his teachings, both those of precept and example, was to uplift and to elevate. He encouraged the pupil who worked, but he did not encourage the pupil who relied on the work of others. He was a man of high character and high ability, and he was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order.

From 1871 to 1896, a period of twenty-five years, I had but little association with the doctor, but with the admission of the State into the Union he came to Salt Lake, and he was a member of my official family. I always thought the people honored themselves in honoring him with this office, and it was a great honor to me to be permitted to round out a noble and useful career in the highest educational office in the gift of the people. The administration of the State is a heavy task, and it is a task which requires the most careful and efficient, prompt, and forceful. He labored in his office almost up to the day of his death, though at times it was apparent that energy and perseverance alone prevented his going to his rest. He was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order. His pleasant smile when one said his lessons well and his awful frown when one said them poorly are recollections that I am sure will remain with all his pupils while memory lasts. The tendency of his teachings, both those of precept and example, was to uplift and to elevate. He encouraged the pupil who worked, but he did not encourage the pupil who relied on the work of others. He was a man of high character and high ability, and he was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order.

From 1871 to 1896, a period of twenty-five years, I had but little association with the doctor, but with the admission of the State into the Union he came to Salt Lake, and he was a member of my official family. I always thought the people honored themselves in honoring him with this office, and it was a great honor to me to be permitted to round out a noble and useful career in the highest educational office in the gift of the people. The administration of the State is a heavy task, and it is a task which requires the most careful and efficient, prompt, and forceful. He labored in his office almost up to the day of his death, though at times it was apparent that energy and perseverance alone prevented his going to his rest. He was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order. His pleasant smile when one said his lessons well and his awful frown when one said them poorly are recollections that I am sure will remain with all his pupils while memory lasts. The tendency of his teachings, both those of precept and example, was to uplift and to elevate. He encouraged the pupil who worked, but he did not encourage the pupil who relied on the work of others. He was a man of high character and high ability, and he was a man who was always a model of decorum and good order