

Headliners at the Juvenile Court With Appropriate Stage Settings.

SOME MORE FAMILY HISTORY.

This Time the Three Children Occupy The Lime Light With Jim Smith as Star Orator.

The Kooymans and Jim Smith, : police court lawyer, were the headliners before Judge Gowans this morning, and the performance was worth while, The question before Judge Gowans was as to whether or not Kooyman and his wife are fit persons to have the custody of their three minor children, Henry, age 9, Hendriga, age 16, and Mary, age 6, all of which have been adjudged delinquents under the juvenile court law.

Kooyman was placed on the stand to testify and in response to questions by Smith, said that his conduct was exemplary, that sometimes he earned $20 a day, that his children had a good home and plenty to wear, cat and drink. Kooyman said that he has not been drank for 19 or 20 years and that liquor never enters his home. He says that Hendriga works in a laun-dry for $7 a week and that other members bring in enough money to make the family income $20 a week whether the father works or not. However, Kooyman said that in eight years he has not been idle three months. He has, however, worked in so many places that he had difficulty in remembering their names. The children are never out at night with-out their parents' consent and when they are out, they know where they are. by Smith, said that his conduct was

HAVE MANY QUARRELS.

HAVE MANY QUARRELS. Mr. Carlson of the county attorney's office brought out that Kooyman and his family have some strenuous times. Kooyman told Carlson that the cause of all the trouble is that he wants his own way in the matter of vringing up and disciplining the children. He de-clared that he is wiser than his wife, that he knows lots more than she does, and that he has received a su-perior education. However, Kooy-man admitted that during the argu-inents at the Kooyman home dishes and kitchen tools fly about in the air like hawks, occasionally putting such a dent in the paternal skuil that he is completely "knocked out" for a short time and is forced to take up his tem-porary residence in another home than his own until the trouble blows over.

GALANTRY NOT DEAD.

"Do you quarrel with your wife fre quently?" asked Mr. Carlson of Kooy-

"I never quarreled with a woman yet and never will, No, Sir." Kooyman's answer would indicate the side of the house on which the trable starts, but the peace officers who have dealings with the family so very often have other views

The court chamber ringing with his police court eloquence, Jim Smith was a part of the show not to be overlooked. He objected in megaphonic tones to several of Mr. Carlson's ques-tions. The court as a rule overruled Mr. Smith, seeking to establish all facts Mr. Smith, seeking to establish all facts in the case without regard for the fine points in rules of evidence, as is con-templated by the juvenile court law. When he rested his case it was with a dramatic appeal to the court that the custody of the children be awarded to their parents. The order was not en-tered and the state produced several witnesses to rebut the testimony given by Kooyman. Willard Hanson was on the stand at the noon adjournment of court. He testified that his acquaint-

Concerning the nature of the testimony, Mr. Murray feels confident as to the outcome

Mr. Murray feels confident as to the outcome. Mr. Murray reports something of a mensation in Butte and Helena re-garding President Shannon of the local union of Western Federation of Miners now doing time in the Helena jail for contempt of court in running Bell Bine-men out of town. It seems that Shan-non's friends secured the ears of the Montana senators at Washington so that they went to the president to have him pardon Shannon out. The presi-dent's reply was that if Judge Hunt recommended it, he would comply with their request. This however, has not been accomplished, so Mf. Shannon remains in durance vile. But the fact that such effort to secure presidential clemency for Shannon and not the the others doing time in jail for the same offense, has occasioned unbrotherly feelings among the different unions rep-resented by the other contempt pris-oners, and there is much remark in consequence of a somewhat torrid char-acter.

BEAT HER ALMOST EVERY DAY

After Three Years and Two Months to Day She Wants Court to Free Her.

Three years and two months to the day has been sufficient time to convince Maude E. Perkins that Howard Perkins is not the man she should have married. They entered into the marriage contract at Pocatello, Nov. 28, 1905.

CAME TO SALT LAKE. On April 1, 1907, they came to this city, bringing with them their child, a son named George, who is now 11/2 years old. It may have been this change; but one week after coming here, according to the complaint filed by Mrs. Ferkins today, in which she is seeking divorce, Perkins became cruel and inhuman.

In addition to these charges, Mrs. Perkins says that he has failed to sup-port her and her child. She asks di-vorce, custody of the child, suit money and attorney's fees.

DEMURRER FILED.

Issues Joined in Effort to Break Arthur Brown's Will.

Max Brown, administrator of the es-tate of former Senator Arthur Brown, who was killed by Anna M. Bradley in the Raleigh hotel in Washington, Dec. 8, 1906, has filed a demurrer to the action brought in the district court by Mrs. Bradley's mother, in which it is sought to recover judgment awarding the Brown-Bradley childrein a portion of the deceased senator's estate. The action brought by Mrs. Bradley's mother indicates that fraud, undue influence and circumvention Bradley's mother indicates that fraud, undue influence and circumvention were used when the will of Senator Brown was drawn. The demurrer of Max Brown sets out that, although fraud, duress and circumvention are alleged in the complaint, it is ambig-uous in that it does not set out by whom these influences were used and in what manner. The hearing on this demurrer will come up before Judge Morse.

MADAM BUTTERFLY COMING.

Salt Lake One of the Few Western Cities Visited.

Fuccini's beautiful grand opera, "Madam Butterfly" is very soon to reach Salt Lake again on its second cross-coninent tour. The big company with its own symphony orchestra of nearly 50 people started on its continental tour during Christmas week after the Philaduring Christians week after the Phila-delphia engagement. Since then all the principal cities in the south have been visited and next week the company will reach California where ten performances are to in given before starting for Sait Lake. The company has its own charter-ed train of baggage cars, coaches and pullman sidepers, and will reach this city oh Saturday, February 15, for a, matinee and night performance. Frank C. Payne who has been general representative for the English Grand Op-era company since it was first intrduced her, arrived from Los Angeles yesterday to make all preliminary arrangements for the return of the big company to Sait Lake.

for the return of the big company to Salt Lake. "It requires the courage of a Henry W. Savage," said Mr. Payne, "to chance such an expensive itinerary in a thea-trical season that is already marked with numerous failures. "Madum Butterfly" in order to pay expenses must play to an average of $4,000 a day on its western trip this year. The corps of principals is larger than last year and the orches-tra is even a finer body of musicians. This city is to have all the celebrated songhirds who recently appeared with the company during its second New York run at Mr. Savage's Garden theater. This will include Phoghe Strakosch, the gitted niece of Patti; Betty Wolff, the German prima donna, whose impersonation of the title role has resulted in having her photograph printed in all the eastern magazines since her American debut; Rena Vivienne, the only American gir out of the four, who sings the leading role and who sang the part in this city last year; and, Dora De Fillippe, the part last year and the returned to Paris for further study tof the role with the composer himself during the rehersals at the Opera Comique. # Utah Boy Wins First Place in Penn.

sylvania Debate.

A paper published at the University of Pennsylvania, under the title of "The Pennsylvanian," contains an ac-count in its issue of Jan. 21 of the winning of the Frazier debate by Dale H. Parke, a former University of Utah student, and a Salt Lake boy. Parke was a track man who excelled in the burdles, and in addition was a debater of prominence while here. He went to Pennsylvania several years ago and is a member of the law class of 1909. In the debate which he won, eight speakers spoke, including Daniel Alexander, another Salt Lake boy and a companion of Parke's. The prize brought with it $40 in cash and a university pin. In a private letter to his mother, con-cerning the winning, Mr. Parke says: "The honor of winning carries with it the undisputed championship in de-bating at 'Penn.' In announcing the "The Pennsylvanian," contains an ac-bating at 'Penn.' In announcing the decision of the judges, the chairman said that the winner was easily the best debater that had ever represented Penn.<sup>4</sup> When he said a moment later that I was the winner, you can guess my surprise.
