out of commission six toughs who were tent on tearing up the show furniture, and kloking in the sides of a wagon, incidentally beating up an employe who interfered. The tough young men ap-poared early in the show with an over-stock of profamity, and expressed it treely against the performing animals. When the show was out instead of de-parting with the crowd they started to kick to pieces a wagon used by the Shetland ponies in doing their tricks. An employe named Beck interfered and was hil in the neck. He, or some-one else fired a shot as an alarm, and the showmen gathered from all points. Then the hoodiums got theirs. It didn't last long, but it was a weary six that broke free and departed in haste, after getting as severe a drubbling as they had any desire for. No arrests were made. made.
