"Another thing that reveals the ab-surdity of the story," added Mr. Campbell, "is the report that the new com pany will capitalize at $50,000. Why, it cost us over $30,000 to put in the plant to furnish the Sait Palace light alone. That is just one branch of the busi-ness, But I think the people will conede that we have been magnanir towards them, for we have reduced the price of the light when nothing but our sense of duty to the people caused us to do it for we were the sole occupiers of the field."

ing a Few Weeks With Relatives.

James B. Wallace of Cincinnati Spend-

One of the most interesting men to visit Salt Lake recently is James B. Wallace, of Cincinnati. His father, George B. Wallace, was perhaps as well known in Salt Lake as any of her citizens. This, however, is his son's first visit to Utah, and while his father here and reared a large family established a good name, he remained east and built up a large fortune. He was born in Boston, Mass., in 1842, and in 1854 went to Cincinnati with his mother, and has been an honored citizen of that city ever since. When the war of secession broke out he enlisted as captain in the Union ranks, and came out at the close of the war with the rank of major, hav ing won his promotion by gallant and ntrepid conduct on the field of battle gone into the enterprise solus, and that After the war he returned to Cincin nati where he engaged in the drug busi ness. Possessing an extraordinary business knack he succeeded well and acquired an ample competence has always been one of Cincinnati's most substantial and public spirited citizens, enjoying a popularity that is acquired by but few business men. He was for a long time a member of the chamber of commerce and served that body as secretary and treasurer. Of later years he has dealt almost exclusively in real estate and stocks in which fields of finance he has been eminently successful.

Mr. Wallace is one of the most companionable of men, possessed cheerful and happy nature and a keen but harmless wit. He will remain in the city two or three months, the guest of his sister, Mrs. Mary E. Garrett 168 North Second West street. He has his wife and two children, one of whom is charming and accomplished young lady, and a graduate of Bryn Mawr college.

PERSONALS. M. J. O'Meara has gone to California. P. T. Farnsworth has gone to Frisco for a few days. John Sampson of Plain City, Weber county, is here on a business visit.

Miss Carrie Stawart, recently operat-ed upon for appendicitis, expects to be out of the hospital in about a week.

Matt Dougherty has returned from the oil fields near Evanston, Wyoming, where he has been making an inspection for two weeks past.

R. H. Terhune, who has been in Colorado for some time past managing some mining interests for a Boston syndicate, is at home on a visit for a few days.

Captain James B. Wallace and famly of Cincinnail are visiting with Mrs. Mary E. Garritt, the captain's sister. Mr. Wallace is a son of the late Geo. B. Wallace, and is prominent in Cincinnati business circles.

J. F. Murphy, president of the Phoenix Oil Refining company of Cleveland O., hus made an Investigation of the fields of Spring Valley, Wyoming, and laims that the oil from that place is superior to the California product.

M. Heiner, state food and dairy com nissioner, went down to Provo today o investigate an alleged case of butter adulteration reported to him, With the exception of some brands of vinegar eret News and all news dealers.
