

WILL NOT SEND MORE CURRENCY

Treasury Department Has Plan For Distribution That Prevents.

PLENTY OF MONEY HERE.

Local Bankers Carry Larger Surplus Than They Would Under Ordinary Circumstances.

Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. C. D. Edwards, through a confidential source, has declined to send to Salt Lake banks additional currency, upon depositing $500,000 worth of the new certificates of the Federal Reserve, bearing 2 per cent interest.

The reply of Mr. Edwards to the Salt Lake request, which was being handled by Mr. Knox of this city, was to the effect that the department could not send the currency "for the present."

It was proposed to purchase and deposit the certificates with the government, when the currency would be sent to increase the circulation here.

THE GOVERNMENT PLAN.

It is suggested that the government desire to circulate its currency through the financial centers, New York, Chicago, San Francisco and St. Louis. It is pointed out that by this method the banks of the large cities might conveniently distribute the currency much better than could be done by the treasury department.

It is said that the Salt Lake banks really have more currency now than they would have in an ordinary period. The financial situation has made it expedient for bankers to carry a larger surplus than they ordinarily would, and much larger than the banking laws require.

EASTERN CREDIT.

In addition to the large surplus carried by local banks, the deposits made in New York, Boston and Chicago and placed in this city are in the movements of currency and credit.

Salt Lake banks, as is usual with banks which have been in the field, have been their limit of currency and credit. It was thought by the national banks in this city that they would be able to secure more currency in the manner indicated, that the securities would justify the department in doing so, but the department evidently has a contrary opinion, not that they believe the securities insufficient, but their plan for the distribution of relief is adopted and they do not wish to make any changes.

DULL DAY IN COURT.

Up to the hour of noon today, but one suit had been filed in the office of the clerk of the district court, no marriage license had been applied for, neither had a set of incorporation papers been presented for record. Other departments of the county were similarly lacking in items of public interest, as were also the state and city offices. In the opinion of officials and newspaper men a duller day for business had not been known in a long time, if at all.

In Judge Ritchie's court a jury was being secured in the smaller smoke damage case of Nathan Smith vs. the Utah Consolidated Mining Company and H. H. Channing, Jr. The jury in the case of Yorkelien versus the Utah Light & Railways company was being selected. In Judge Armstrong's court was engaged in some minor probate matters, and in Judge Morris's court there was nothing doing.

PERSONAL DAMAGE SUIT.

A personal damage suit for $400 was filed today in the district court, Albert Berger being the plaintiff and A. Anderson the defendant. Berger alleges that on the first day of November of this year he was struck on the hand by a large rock, thrown wilfully and without cause by the said defendant. It is set forth that the injury was very painful and will keep him from work for a long time.

ENTERTAINED AT RINK.

More than 500 of American's employees attended the roller skating party given at the Auditorium last evening and had a most enjoyable time. The grand march was participated in by about 100 couples. It was led by Miss Reba Marston and Mr. James P. O'Leary. This evening the telephone girls will be entertained, and tomorrow evening the employees of McDonald's Candy company will be the guests.

How Bank "Runs" Start—A letter was received today by a local bank cashier from a friend connected with the Merchants National bank of Portland, which closed its doors, stating the run on the institution recently was caused by reports that were malicious and absolutely without foundation. A million and a half was paid out in two weeks and altogether the deposits were reduced by $2,000,000. The bank was absolutely solvent, but finally had to refuse to pay out any more money until it could realize on its loans.

The cause of the murders was learned and five or seven burrows they had been using.

WAGE REDUCTION CAUSES BIG RIOT

At Joliet Strikers and Men Wishing to Work Come Together In Bloody Fight.

REVOLVERS FREELY USED.

Attempt to Reduce Hours and to Knock Off Two and a Half Cents Per Hour.

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 22.—A riot occurred today as a result of a strike following an attempted wage reduction among stone quarriers. Strikers and men wishing to work clashed in a bloody fight. Revolvers were used, but most of the shots were fired in the air to intimidate. Stones were thrown and a number of men on both sides were hit, but no serious injuries are reported. The riot occurred in the vicinity of the Western Stone company's quarries, which have been on strike since last Monday. Today the men from the quarries at Joliet, Ill., went to Joliet to take the place of some of the strikers and this precipitated the clash.

Police and deputy sheriffs are now patrolling the quarry district.

PROSPERITY'S BELWAIR.

In the midst of Wall street's hysteria over a great trust company's collapse, there was a cry went up that business was safe because the present year had been one of general prosperity. It was remembered that the desperate money stringency of 1902 came about when agriculture was everywhere depressed and farmers and other producers generally to do.

At present the financial situation is very different. It is hoped, for the first time since the agricultural crops are large, and where they fall short of previous years the prices prevailing will in some cases more than make up for the shortage. Pretty nearly every industry in the land is holding a brisk market for its output, and a surplus rather than a shortage of money is the rule. If this kind of prosperity can be maintained, the Wall street will have to enter, and the real makers of property need not worry about that.

THE SUNDAY THEATRE.

A significant movement for securing Sunday rest has been started in New York on the initiative of the Actors' Church alliance. It has, however, a backing among actors outside the particular organization which is promoting it. The significance is that the movement, this comes from within. Generally it has come from without. The Sunday theatre has been opposed by the moral forces of society on the ground of its profane and social condition in which better things were handicapped and because those engaged for our delectation had a right to a rest day as much as any worker. It is in this ground rather than any moral or religious one that the present movement is based.

Recently a New York theatrical manager addressed the meeting of the Sunday theatre on the novel ground that the law regulating Sunday amusements is arbitrary and one-sided. He says that the present law operates so as to permit shows which are a menace to good order and suppresses others which are unobjectionable. If unscrupulous managers continue to evade the spirit of the law it may be that the respectable element in the business will unite with other moral forces in the communities which are disturbed by Sunday shows and stop them altogether.

THE ROYAL BOX.

The king and queen of Portugal have their birthdays on the same day. The Duchess Vera of Württemberg is fond of hazards, especially charade. She has some unique specimens which exhibit an intelligence that surprises all her friends. Princess Elise Frederick, the Kaiser's daughter-in-law, is extremely fond of monkeys, and at Potsdam she has a house for them containing no fewer than 14. The Kaiser does not hesitate to protest, for he considers it a foolish waste of money.

Princess Frederica of Sleswick-Holstein, the youngest of the German empress, has a romantic history, having declined all offers of marriage since the tragic death of her fiancé, Duke Frederick of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who, while in command of a torpedo boat, perished in the Baltic with the entire crew.

WATER ON NATIONAL RANGES.

In its investigations for the improvement of grazing lands within the national forest carried on during the past year the forest service has found that the ranges on some of the forests cannot be fully utilized by stock because of a lack of proper water supply. Plans have been made for bettering these conditions as rapidly as possible.

Work to improve the water supply on the national forest ranges will be started this year on the Leadville national forest in Colorado and the Tuscon national forest in Arizona, and before the opening of another grazing season a number of ranges will be improved very materially.

Coal Consumed in the Manufacture of Coke.

A comparatively few coke making establishments in this country is accurate record kept of the quantity of coal consumed. Much of the coal used is changed directly into the oven without having been previously weighed or measured, and the only method of ascertaining this quantity is to determine the amount paid to the miners for mining, which is based sometimes on the measured bushel or ton, sometimes on the cubical contents of the mine car—standards which are apt to differ considerably from the weighed ton or bushel. At some of the establishments where the coal is crushed and washed before being sent to the coke ovens, the weight of the coal after the state, pyrite, and other impurities have been removed is reported for the weight of coal charged into the ovens. In establishments where the ovens have been constructed chiefly for the purpose of utilizing the slack coal, little or no account is taken of the weight of the material. Although the determination of the amount of coal consumed in the manufacture of coke is therefore to a large extent a matter of estimate, it is believed that the statistics just published by the United States geological survey in an advance chapter from "Mineral Resources of the United States, Calendar Year 1906," on the manufacture of coke in 1906, by E. W. Parker, statistician in charge, while necessarily only approximate, may be accepted as sufficiently accurate for comparative purposes. As the industry becomes better organized greater attention is paid to statistics in all details, and the annual statistics become more accurate year by year.

MAN AS A BIRD.

Uncle Sam's weather sharp is not prophesying fair sailing for that much talked of airship. Not that he thinks aerial flight an impossibility, but there are other things involved than that which are not so practical and useful thing which the enthusiasts promise. Professor Moore told the congress of aeronauts at their recent session in New York that the first use of aerial navigation will be in war, and there it will be limited to scout duty, because the airship will not be able to carry troops and arms. Railroads have long been used in war, but they were of little service for the reason that they were at times unmanageable. When the complete airship comes it may succeed in military reconnaissance where the balloon failed. Just as aerial service will be limited to a narrow field in war, so it will be in commerce, according to this authority. The airship cannot carry freight, but can transport mails when the wind is favorable. The uncertainty of the wind is proverbial, and we all know that nothing can stand before a mighty gale unless it is anchored. It is said that man will conquer the air when he has learned to imitate the bird. But there have been no mammoth birds discovered in the upper air. As for passenger airships, Professor Moore says that the number which can be carried in the ideal airship will be so small compared with the cost of maintaining the service as to be prohibitive. Ten persons and a speed of 35 miles an hour is the best record thus far, of course some people would pay star
