of individual acting. Mr. Ryley, one of the best known Tweedlepunches of the "Florodora" organizations, had the part of the Tenarfoot professor, and he made no end on Professor, and he carrington a product the role. Miss here the sector of the party agreed to do so, however, but Hassard refused to allow it. When threatened by Marble with arrest Hasthreatened by Marble with arrest Has-sard knocked him down with a blow Carrington, a very charming singer, rendered the part of the leading lady in over the right eye, and stamped on his face while down. Marble, as soon good fashion, and was warmly applaud-d for her high and clear soprano notes. as he was free, drove his machine to the police station, where Officers Evans Mr. Cameron was a manly colonel in appearance, but he should not indulge and Johnson joined him for a quick run back to the saloon. Monroe was located in the rear and locked up, but in high tenor flights. His low notes are good, but his high ones are like steel flings, to say nothing of their Hazzard and his two friends had dis-appeared. At the police station Monroe not being on speaking acquaintance with the key. Mr. Crawford's Bill Barpaid the automobile man's bill. Charges were preferred against Has-sard of assault and battery while Mon-roe was retained on the charge of ker, Mr. Romain's gambler and Mr. Wanzer's Chinaman were all good sketches. The scenery and the costumes throughout were new, striking. drunkenness. and original, and the whole entertain-ment goes with a rush and vim that the addience found vastly pleasing. It might, however, be abridged 15 minutes to advantage. It goes for the last time tonight. . . .

The biggest rush the Theater has known since the season opened came this morning for the Frank Daniels' sale. The lobby was filled with people sale. nearly all day and the demand for seats was such as to insure the financial success of every performance.

"The Convict's Daughter" opened at the Grand last night before an audience which demonstrated that in the hands of a good company the play is still a heavy drawing card. The com-pany last night was a capable and well balanced one. It brought out the point of the play to their fullest advantage and scored a more than marked success. The villain drew hiss after his whenever he appeared, , and the here as never lacking for applause. In ad vertising the thrilling escape from prison on a passing freight train as the leading feature of the play, the management created a slightly falso impression, for the play is not one o stage thunders and heavy effects Rather it is a quiet study in the heart of man, genuine, and based deep in feel-ings that are fundamental. In the hands of Frank Heal, the man beneath the tramp's rags, sticks through in every crisis, and he continually proves that every pound him weighs a full sixteen ounces. The character really embraces four differ-ent parts, that of the Weary Willie careless tramp, sharp witted and ready to do anything for a meal, except work, Robert Graham, the long lost father of the girl, who knows that his history will disgrace her, convict 1234 in Sing Sing, and William Woodsord, the well to do mine owner of the west. In all of these parts Mr. Beal scored a success. As the heavy villain Charles C. Bartling was entirely successful in ringing down a shower of hisses upor himself whenever he appeared, despite is good looks and handsome clothes. Clara Louise Chapman portrayed the name part acceptably. The play goes again tonight, and twice tomor-

There was quite a surprise party at the Theater last night. "The Tender-foot" came without any great amount of advance trumpeting, and many people had obtained the idea that it was either a number two company, or an abridged edition of the big original. The audience which assembled found it one of the brightest and liveliest muslcal comedies we have had for a long time past. Indeed its chorus, in numbers, voices, costuming, and looks is the most stunning organization any opera company has brought west of late. The chorus, in fact, was the star feature, but this is not saying that bere were not some excellent instances the saloon. There Marble demanded restful sleep.

JUMPED ON CHAFFEUR.

Thomas Hassard Made a Brutal Assault on M. E. Marble.

Because he thought $10 too high a tariff for a three hour's ride over Salt Lake in an automobile. Thomas Hassard struck M. E. Marble, the chauf feur of the machine, a blow over the eye that dropped him to the ground, and then jumped on him with his feet. before he could recover himself. The affair occurred yesterday afternoon in the Harmony saloon on State street be tween Third and Fourth South Monroe and Hassard arranged the ride,
