FRAGMENTS.

A BAD horse adorns the culvert crossing the street near the Raleigh corner, 19th Ward.

SOME good adobies can be bought or traded for at the Philadelphia Restaurant, Main St. See notice elsewhere.

HAVE you read the advertisement of the Tabernacle Choir trip to Nepal on Tuesday next? If not, do so. Fare only three dollars.

TRAVEL is temporarily stopped over the Sixth Ward bridge. Chas. Lambert, county supervisor of streets, is fixing the break to which allusion has already been made.

AUERBACH'S mercantile establishment will be closed from sundown to-morrow evening till the same hour Saturday evening, the occasion being the Jewish New Year.

PLAYING ball in the public and busy thoroughfares of the city ought to be put a stop to. A spirited horse was struck by a ball a day or two ago and nearly ran away. Yesterday a lady with a child in her arms was in the neck with such force as to almost knock her out of the vehicle. The youngsters do not seem to have much respect for kind words. Who'll try another remedy?

LOCAL NEWS.

The Colorado Travelers.—A private dispatch from President Joseph F. Smith states that himself and party are well, and will reach Antonio, Col., to-night.

Many Thanks.—The management of the Deseret Hospital acknowledge with thanks, the receipt of flowers for the patients, from Mrs. M. M. Barrett, of the 12th Ward, and Mrs. Sarah Bishop of the 19th Ward. Also, magazines and papers from Mrs. Paul A. Schettler.

Information Wanted.—By Moses Williams, 5 Clarence Row, Tynearne, Rhymney, Mon., England, of his brother Abenequo, who emigrated to Utah in the year 1844, with the family of John or David Jones, from Gars Paken near Nantyglo, Mon. His age at the time of his departure was 8 years.—Mill. Star.

Happy Parents.—The last number of the Millennial Star contains a notice of the birth of a fine ten pound son, on the 25th of August, to the wife of Elder Herbert L. James of the Liverpool office. Our congratulations are herewith heartily offered, whether they'll keep fresh till they reach the old country is another question.

Dramatic Souvenir.—We are in receipt, from the Madison Square Theatre, New York, of a photographic collection of twenty-four of the most successful of the 150th performance there of Mr. David Belasco's successful play, on the evening of September 19th. The life-like action and faithfulness of these reproductions are due to the instantaneous process in photography by the artist, Mr. George G. Rockwood, of Union Square, New York. Manager Malloy has our thanks for this nice little souvenir.

Good Words.—The Millennial Star of September 1st says of the missionaries who left with the company of Saints which arrived here yesterday:

"Fifteen of these Elders have been serving in the British mission, fourteen in the Scandinavian, and two in the Swiss and German. Most of them left their homes in the United States more recently, and have been reluctantly compelled to cease their missionary labors on account of ill health. All have labored faithfully to spread a knowledge of the Gospel and to save souls, and now they return to their mountain homes with the approval of the Almighty and benediction of the Saints.

The Electric Girl.—Lulu Hurst, the electric girl, is booked for October 2nd and 4th, at the Salt Lake Theatre. From Musical and Dramatic, a San Francisco paper, a communication from New York, signed "Esor," says this among other things:

"Fred Stinson starts to-morrow (if he has not gone to-day) for San Francisco, in charge of Miss Lulu Hurst, the strong girl who created such a sensation here. Stinson, Charles Frohman and Al Hayman are the proprietors of the tour, and the young lady will only give two performances in San Francisco."

No More Twain.—The wedding bells rang out figuratively last night, to herald the holy matrimony of one blessed union in the most matrimonial bonds, and the eternal union of two young and loving hearts. They were Reed Smoot and Allie Eldredge, who were married in the Logan Temple, and whose wedding reception is to take place this evening at the residence of the bride's parents in the 12th Ward. The happy groom is a son of President A. O. Smoot, and Mrs. Anna Smoot, of Provo, and the beautiful bride a daughter of President H. S. and Mrs. Chloe Eldredge, of this city. The young couple and their friends went to Logan on Tuesday and returned by the morning train. The Nays wishes them all the happiness their hearts can desire.

Not in Harmony.—The lettering upon the inscription tablet recently placed upon the east front of the Temple is causing a good deal of comment of an uncompromising character. It must be admitted that these reflections are not without foundation. The inscription is devoid of beauty of design and is not properly constructed. Besides all this the glaring black letters have an unpleasant effect upon the eye. The tablet as it now appears is out of harmony with the magnificent building, which is one of the finest and most imposing structures on the continent, or at least will be when completed. We may be mistaken, but in our opinion, a more tasteful design, in letters of gold of the finest quality would be much more suitable than those which are now attracting so much attention and unfavorable criticism. Such an incongruity is not necessary in view of the fact that there are letter designers in the community who are scarcely surpassed anywhere.

THE GOODWIN SUICIDE.

EVIDENCE AT THE INQUEST—VERDICT NOT YET RENDERED.

The News last evening informed the public of the finding of a dead body in a gulch, a little northeast of the Warm Springs Bath House, and that an inquest was being held at Sexton Taylor's office, where the body had already been identified by a brother of the deceased, as that of William Goodwin, the D. & R. G. fireman who disappeared so unaccountably about five weeks ago.

At 3 o'clock p.m., the coroner's inquest convened, Messrs. Mark McKimmins, Chas. O. Whittemore and Dr. Jeter Clinton having been summoned to act as jurors. The first proceeding, after swearing in the jurors, was to examine the body which was in a pine box in the Sexton's back yard. On the person of the deceased were found a small comb case with comb and glass, a memorandum book, a silk handkerchief, some matches, two or three meal tickets issued by the D. & R. G. Railway, a tobacco pouch and a buckskin money bag containing $2.75 in silver. There was also a letter addressed to Wm. B. Goodwin, (the missing fireman's full name), and signed J. M. G., his father's initials. It was dated at Halley, Idaho, July 11th, and addressed to Colton, Utah.

The pistol with which it is supposed he fired the fatal shot, and which a News reporter has since examined, is a Smith and Wesson 32 calibre, five-chambered revolver, a self-cocker, one chamber of which was entirely empty, another having in it an empty cartridge shell, and the other three loads still in. As said before, the weapon was thickly coated with rust, doubtless caused by the rain, but it had evidently been new at the time it was last used. This pistol answers the description of one sold by broker Charles Little to a man he did not know, some five weeks ago, at his stand on Second South Street. Mr. Little says he does not distinctly remember the person who bought it, but the sale was impressed upon his memory from the fact that he had two pistols, a Colt's revolver and a Smith and Wesson, and the customer, after selecting the latter and paying for it, asked Little to load it for him. This he did, putting in but four cartridges and letting the hammer down on the nipple of the empty chamber, wondering all the time what the man wanted of it and at his apparent lack of familiarity with a pistol, shown by his asking to have it loaded for him.

This item, of course, has not been adduced at the inquest, having been ascertained only this morning, but it is a strong connecting link in the evidence favoring the suicide theory. Now to go back a little.

The first witness examined at the inquest, which followed the examination of the body by Dr. Benedict and the others, was William H. Ridd, the young man who first discovered the body. His evidence was substantially as set forth in our last issue. Louis Oviatt next testified to being informed by Ridd of the body's being there, and to notifying the officers of the City Hall also that a body had been found. He also testified to being on the hills, that although he lived but about three-quarters of a mile from the fatal gulch, he would not have thought anything out of the way if he had heard a pistol shot in that neighborhood at the time. Dr. Benedict testified to examining the body and finding but one wound, which, passing through the brain, would cause a profuse hemorrhage and certain death. The shot was fired from right to left, a common method with suicides. The ball he had found in the hat was of the same calibre as the pistol found by the body. The pistol's being on the left side of the body was a little difficult to explain, but it might have been thrown there as the man fell, or have dropped upon the body and rolled off on that side. It was evidently a case of deliberate suicide. The secluded place was no proof against such a theory. Suicides usually sought solitude. He knew one who went skating, and waited till his companions all retired home, then sat down deliberately, smoked a cigar or two, read a paper and then put his revolver in his mouth and blew his brains out. True, this might possibly be a murder, but the evidence all went to show suicide.

Harry C. Goodwin, brother to the deceased and the first identifier of the body, then testified. He saw his brother last on the 11th of August. He left on his engine at 10 p.m., and got back the morning of the 12th. He slept that day at the Rio Grande Hotel, and in the afternoon got up and built his fire in the engine, ready for the next trip. He left the round-house at 3.30 p.m., but was seen on the platform at 5.30 by Mr. Howard, engineer on the same locomotive for which he was fireman. He told the men at the round house he was going home to get his clothes, as he expected to get for some time. The morning of the 15th witness went to inquire for him at the round house, and was told by the man that his brother had gone away home, laboring under some wrong impression. Witness immediately went home, but found no trace. The deceased was not what could be called a drinking man, though he sometimes took a glass of beer, but not often. Witness did not know of any trouble between him and anybody. He thought some one had killed him as he was fireman, but that to the suicide theory. Did not see why he should go to such an out-of-the-way place to kill himself. He never owned such a weapon as that found by the body, nor habitually carried any pistol at all. He was of a quiet disposition, had had no domestic troubles, all was peace at home, and he kept company with no one. He was unmarried, was five feet ten inches in height and weighed 185 pounds. He made from $75 to $80 per month, but was not satisfied with his work and when his engine was ditched, July 7th, was out of employment till within a week or ten days of his disappearance. He had some of his belongings at the Pacific. The D. & R. G. company owed him from $150 to $175 at the time of his death. While out of work he came home and nursed his mother, who was sick. Witness slept with him, the night of the 10th, and borrowed a dollar of him on parting. He then had about ten or twelve dollars with him.

At the conclusion of this witness' testimony, it was deemed advisable to adjourn the inquest one week, at the same time and place, in order to procure other witnesses. The father of the deceased, J. M. Goodwin, has been telegraphed at Butte, Montana, and will reach home to-morrow. The mother is said to be prostrated by the terrible developments in the case.

New Periodicals.—From Dwyer's rustling news dealer, we received to-day the newest issues of the illustrated papers Puck and Harper's Weekly, also the Four Color Magazine. The first named has three colored cartoons on the political situation, as sarcastic and artistic as any we ever saw. Harper's is as usual bright and keen, giving the "Plumed Knight" and "Widow Butler" the full benefit of its pointed arrows.

THE MURDER OF MRS. FIFE.

A TERRIBLE CRIME QUICKLY AVENGED.

Reference was made in these columns a few days ago to the murder of the wife of Wm. N. Fife, Esq., by a Mexican, a ranch on the Chiricahua Mountains. On Thursday, September 12th, Francisco came to Fife's at 3 o'clock, something to eat, which was given him. Mrs. Fife charged him 25 cents for the meal. Francisco said that was too much and she replied that 15 cents would do. "Who is that coming?" said Mrs. Fife. Looking at her, she saw a pistol and shot her in the side. As she fell, fatally wounded, her daughter, fifteen years of age, rushed for help. The fiend turned upon the girl and attempted to shoot her, but the pistol missed fire. The girl attracted the attention of a Mexican employed at the place, who rushed in, and grappling with the murderer, succeeded in taking his pistol away. Francisco fled toward the bushes, when two shots were fired, one of which probably took effect in his leg, but he escaped. A large number of ranchmen, with a posse, were in pursuit. The board of supervisors, having offered a reward of $300 for the capture of the murderer. At the time of the tragedy Mr. Fife was on his way home from this place.

Bernard White, Esq., of Ogden, a son-in-law of the deceased, furnishes the following dispatch, announcing the sad event and the fate of the murderer:

My wife was shot and killed by a Mexican. The murderer was a man named Francisco.
